The Market.

Climatical conditions last week were favorable to the florist, as the weather was clear and cool, which brought out the plants and flowers in fine shape. All preparatory work for the holiday rush was managed in fine order. Christmas business started out brisk and was continuous until the curtain was rung down on the scene. The demand for plants and flowers was far in excess of former years and the enthusiasm of the public in general seemed to be aroused to a greater degree, even in the humblest homes.

Carnations were scarce, with an unusual demand, retailing from $2 to $2.50 per dozen, and only the regular customers were taken care of. Roses were of fine quality and readily cleaned up at top prices. Mums were in unusual demand and prices ranged from $6 to $9 per dozen. Poinsettias, as cut flowers, were extensively used for decorative purposes with stunning effects. Violets and orchids were the popular corsage effects for particular people, and valley also was in great demand. In fact, when the mist cleared away, not a flower was to be had in any of the shops. Azaleas, poinsettias, cyclamen and Lorraine begonias about totaled the blooming plants and were cleaned out at top prices, with a few exceptions. While the poinsettia was the most in demand, yet its popularity is on the wane, but the question arises: "What will be substituted?"

Various Notes.

The Tonseth Floral Co. reports business beyond expectations, with everything sold out clean at good profits and the work so arranged as to require less help. Azaleas and poinsettias were considered the best sellers, although local grown violets and carnations were considered the most profitable in cut flowers.

Clarke Bros. report business far in excess of former years, the increase being about twenty-five per cent. Cut flowers of all descriptions were cleaned out at top prices and a special feature of basket arrangements and fancy pottery met with general favor among the flower-loving public.

Martin & Forbes express entire satisfaction at the outcome, with a surprising increase in profits and volume of business. Everything of value was sold. Poinsettias and ericas, as a window display, created unusual comment.

Max Smith says it was a landslide, with the results far in excess of expectations, everything sold out clean and not enough to go around. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The first three days of Christmas week were rainy, but after that the weather was ideal, Christmas day being warm and sunny. Trade was light until a few days before Christmas, when it came with a rush, as usual, and everyone had more than he could do.

In plants, azaleas took the lead, but many spiræas and cyclamens were sold. Hampers and made-up baskets also sold exceedingly well. On account of the scarcity of cut flowers, there was a good call for all kinds of plants, which brought good prices. Tons of California holly were sold, and quantities of northern and eastern holly also. The mistletoe was fine and heavily berried. Most of the Gloire de Lorraines seen in this market were poor, being tall and spindling, with a superabundance of stakes showing. Some of the florists do not handle them at all.

Carnations in the stores sold from $1.50 to $3 a dozen; on the street stands, field-grown ones at 50 cents and 75 cents. In roses, Chatenay and My Maryland sold at $3 to $5 a dozen; Beauties, $10 to $18. Violets brought 25 cents a bunch. A few sweet peas were seen at 25 cents a bunch. Poinsettias were in great demand, selling at $3.

Various Notes.

Mr. Walters, of The Angelus, says, "Biggest Christmas we ever had. We haven't got over it yet. We could not wait on all of our customers."

Wright's Flower Shop never had so good a trade and was more than satisfied. They have the first Easter lilies seen in this market.

Morris Goldenson reports the best trade for years. The best grade of cut flowers sold first. The call was about equal for plants and flowers.

The Florist had a fine trade, cleaning out both plants and cut flowers in both stores.

The Redondo Floral Co. says, "Excellent sales. Plants had first call. Cut flowers very scarce. We are greatly pleased with Christmas trade.''

J. W. Wolfskill had a splendid trade on both cut flowers and plants. He did not raise the prices at all. He sold many boxes of pansy plants and growing valley. Many beautiful hampers of plants were seen here. About 200 boxes of prepared orange blossoms were sold to send east. He had several orders booked early for New Year's decorations.

At The Rosery everybody wore a satisfied look. They carried a big stock, but by 10 o'clock Christmas morning had sold out everything in the line of Christmas flowers and plants.

The American Florist reports a banner Christmas, with many decorations booked for the following week.

H. N. Page, wholesaler, sold everything in the flower line, and could have sold much more if he could have procured it. S. A. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Christmas has come and gone and from all accounts the sale of stock, in the aggregate, was quite up to that of last year, although the amounts were much smaller individually. The heaviest demands were for ferns, palms and flowering plants in pots. This was owing to the fact that we had been blessed with several weeks of bright, sunshiny weather prior to Christmas day, and as the result flowers were brought into town in such large quantities and were offered at such low prices that, when the final test came, the flower buyers preferred to purchase something different from the ordinary and a great run on plants was the result. Every well grown palm, fern or flowering plant was sold and these, together with poinsettias, made up the bulk of a large percentage of the orders. Violets were in great demand, and the retailers have justly criticised the stand taken by the growers during the holidays. Owing to the fact that there was a heavy demand for out-of-town shipments for this popular flower and it being possible to receive, for this occasion, a better price than the San Francisco florists were able to pay, a great majority of the stock was shipped out of town. This worked quite a hardship on the retailers and many complaints have been heard.

With carnations and roses, the supply was heavy; in fact, quite a few more were brought into town than the occasion demanded. Valley was rather scarce and proved to be an excellent seller. A few freesias, narcissi and daffodils were seen and these, together with quantities of cut poinsettias, made up the bulk of the flowers. At the time of writing the demand for New Year flowers was easily equal to the supply, and although the

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
Officers for 1909-10: Pres., F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; Vice-Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-fifth annual meeting, Denver, June, 1910.

W. B. OTWELL, Carlinville, Ill., says he is going to quit the nursery business because his time is fully occupied with other things.

THE Washington Street Nursery Co., of Geneva, N. Y., has certified to the Secretary of State that it has changed its name to the Ontario Nursery Co., Inc.

THE nurseries that have established landscaping departments find it more difficult to get competent help than to get orders. The number of small contracts is multiplying with great rapidity.

THE American Horticultural Co., Chicago, has been incorporated with $5,000 authorized capital stock to do landscape gardening and to deal in horticultural products. The incorporators are John C. Abbott, William H. O'Brien and J. W. Butler.

THE parking commission of New Orleans, La., has accepted the city's tender of eight acres of ground near the Melpomene pumping station, to be used as a municipal tree nursery. Edward Baker, ex-superintendent of Audubon park, has been appointed superintendent of the nursery, with a salary of $150 per month.

THEY call D. S. Lake the Phil Armour of Shenandoah, out in Iowa. The Lake Nurseries, which are now the largest industry of the town, were established in 1870, on what was then prairie land, located on the hillsides south of the famous Nishnabotna valley. Starting with only a few acres of land and no improvements to speak of, the business has grown under the same management to a plant of over 600 acres, with every modern equipment. Business was very heavy last fall, although muddy weather at times forced all the hands from the fields to the indoor work. The pay roll last week was ninety-nine. They are shipping stock right along. Immense quantities of apple seedlings go to the great apple growing valleys of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

GERMANS SET MINIMUM PRICE.

The Confederation of German Nurserymen sets a minimum price on fruit trees, and the plan works so well that it is purposed to extend the list.

At a meeting at Dresden it was stated that the circle of the branch societies is now complete for the whole of Germany. In Baden the union of the traders had become loosened, but under the direction of a more energetic president, a fresh start has been made, and forty-five members announced their adhesion at once. The Alsatians joined the Confederation, but the Lorrainers refused to join it. The business done at the central station with the single branches is steadily on the upgrade. Difficulties are examined, disputes adjusted, differences of opinion made clear; questions concerning every branch of nursery work and management come constantly under its purview.

Referring to the question of minimum prices for nursery articles, H. Sternbrockhau stated that the minimum price arrangements had withstood the test during the last two years, and proved its value. A book furnishes price lists of articles hitherto in force, and likewise a proposed lowest price list for fruit trees, fruit bushes, shrubs and avenue trees, in three classes; also a list of Union prices for sale to retailers.

MANURE FOR RHODODENDRONS.

I have read J. W. B.'s interesting article on rhododendrons and, like him, would be glad to know more about the parasitic plant that grows on the roots and is killed by any manure applied. The finest lot of rhododendrons it was ever my privilege to see in England, that country where rhododendrons revel, were planted in loam to which was added a little peat and plenty of moss litter manure. The growth made by these plants was simply marvelous, and they were and are the envy of all who behold them while in bloom.

The old theory about the indispensability of peat for these plants is long ago shattered, and it has been proven time and time again that they will grow fully as well in good loam, especially if

CARNATION DOROTHY GORDON

This wonderful new Carnation, a seedling of Lawson on Enchantress, is a money-maker for the commercial grower. It possesses all the strong points, without the weaknesses, of the parent varieties. Its unusual size, averaging 3 inches in diameter, clear, rose-pink color, strong constitution and excellent keeping qualities, commend it to all enterprising growers, together with the fact that it has regularly produced double the profits of Enchantress.

The Success of the Year.

Visitors at our establishment, and propagators who have given it a trial, speak of Carnation Dorothy Gordon in terms of the highest praise.

Most Profitable of All the Carnations.

We offer strong rooted cuttings of this splendid Carnation at the popular price of $10.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000. Orders are being booked daily and will be filled in strict rotation. Don't delay, but get in your specifications NOW. Come to Wyncote and see it growing, it's a great sight. If you cannot do that, write us for full particulars.

of a fibrous nature, if to the same is added some partially decayed leaf-mold, coarse sand and well-decomposed cow dung.

Some five or six years ago I had occasion to plant two beds of that well-known variety, delicatissima. In one bed loam, leaf-mold, sand and a liberal admixture of decayed cow manure was used. In the other no manure was used. These beds show in a conclusive manner the value of manure, for the one in which it was used is so incomparably superior that a child would note the difference. A liberal surfacing of manure last spring toned up the weaker bed somewhat, but it is still far behind the other one.

More rhododendrons are doing unsatisfactorily from root starvation than any other cause. Many people cling to the idea that they should not have manure, and think that a few leaves bedded around them each fall should provide all the necessary food. A generous top-dressing of good manure is the crying need of half the rhododendrons planted. A thick mulch of leaves in summer should always be provided. During long, dry spells it may be necessary to pull these aside and apply some water. Before giving the heavy winter mulch, if the roots are at all dry, they should have a thorough soaking. If we get freezing-up weather following such an unusually dry fall as we experienced in New England last season, there will probably be little percolation to the roots for months. Biting, frosty winds in late winter and hot suns raise havoc with quantities of plants when the roots are too dry. Dryness at the root is a more common cause of deaths than winter's cold.

All this bugaboo about a "parasitic plant" may be dismissed as so much moonshine, and he or she who would achieve success in rhododendron culture does not need peat, but the judicious use of manure, liberal mulching and plenty of water are necessities. Our principal cause of worry of late years has been the Japanese lace-wing bug, which has caused widespread havoc in many collections. Even today many people do not know it and attribute the discoloration and falling of leaves to red spider. A trifling examination shows them their error. Persistent spraying may keep it in check, but does not exterminate it. We are willing to risk killing the parasites with manure if we can only discover a sure cure for the lace bug pest.

W. N. CRAIG.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Kindly let me know what is the best way to get rid of grasshoppers or crickets, such as I send under separate cover. Are they poisonous, or do they do any harm to plants? The way I have been getting rid of them so far was to use stale beer, or often they get into pots and I put them out in the cold, where they are soon frozen. A. W.

The specimens forwarded were so badly crushed that it was impossible to determine what they were. Grasshoppers and crickets are not harmful under glass, especially at this season. They will eat a good deal of foliage during hot weather, but are generally more destructive outdoors than under glass. Fumigation and hand-picking should clear them out. We have not heard that either of the insects named is poisonous in any way. C. W.

The Market.

Since Christmas the market has been steady, but nothing rushing, as New Year's trade is not nearly so large as Christmas. Still quite a good business is reported by the uptown florists, where cut flowers sold well, but at prices not nearly as high. The weather was just the opposite of a week ago, and it was warm like a spring day, which made transient business good. It also made good business for the cemetery florists, who a week ago were all snowed in, with the glass down to zero. Our wholesalers were well supported with cut stock all week, with plenty of everything in season, except violets, which sold up clean every day.

Carnations were more than enough, with the top price at $4 per hundred for choice fancies. There was a great amount of fine stock in, but the bulk of it was in the poor grades. Roses have been selling well all week, with hardly an oversupply any day during last week. The price on these is also down a few cents. Long, fancy Beauties are down to $5 and $6 per dozen, and plenty of them in all grades. In bulbous stock, Romans, Paper Whites and valley are most plentiful, there being more than the demand can use at present. A few late chrysanthemums came in for the holidays, but had no demand.

From now on until Lent there should be much social activity, as several of the west end florists have a number of these events booked ahead.

Various Notes.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, called on the trade last week and reports a good Christmas business for the Belleville florists. The bad weather, as in all other places, kept the business down somewhat.

Charles Schoenle, of the Schoenle Floral Co., says that his firm had a splendid Christmas trade and did well New Year's.

Max Herzog has about completed his new place at California avenue and Sidney street. Mr. Herzog expected to open before New Year's, but will hardly be open for business before the last of this month. The place looks attractive, and he should do well from the start, as he will have little competition in this neighborhood.

Dr. Louis Krautter, professor of botany in the University of Pennsylvania, who froze to death in a New Jersey blizzard last week, was well known here. His wife was the daughter of W. H. Brockman. The funeral took place in Philadelphia Friday, December 31.

William Bouche, one of our best landscape gardeners, will visit New York at an early date to make plans for laying out a big estate. Mr. Bouche is one of the few artists in his line of work.

Frederick L. Bruenig, father of Mrs. Henry Berning, died, after a long illness, Wednesday, December 29. Further particulars will be found in the obituary column.

Otto Sanders, one of the newest downtown florists, located in the Maryland Hotel building, says his first Christmas business was more than he expected. Mr. Sanders sent out some neat advertising matter.

Ostertag Bros. had a few fancy club decorations for New Year's callers, which kept them quite busy during the holiday week. A large, fashionable wedding is booked for this month.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

President Ed. Gullett, of Lincoln, Vice-president George Franks, of this city, and other members of the executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association met at the University Club December 27 to discuss plans for the meeting of the association, to be held at the university in February. Members of the faculty of the horticultural department of the college of agriculture were included in the conference and, while no definite program was made up, plans for the convention were outlined so that arrangements may now be completed expeditiously.

The convention is to be held February 15 and 16, and will be attended by prominent florists from all parts of Illinois. In connection with the meeting will be a trade exhibition. On the evening of January 15, if the tentative plans are followed, a banquet will be held.

The meeting at the university will be of more than ordinary interest to the florists, inasmuch as their interest centers in a large degree in the experiment greenhouses at the university, which were established at the instigation of the association. An advisory committee appointed by the association operates in conjunction with the university in conducting experiments.

The executive committee will hold another meeting in Chicago sometime in January to make more definite plans. Messrs. Washburn, of Bloomington, and Ammann, of Edwardsville, were other members of the executive committee present. H. B. Dorner represented the university.

GALESBURG, ILL.—Holiday trade at I. L. Pillsbury's was a little better than a year ago. There was plenty of cut stock, except red carnations and red roses. The demand was principally for nice bedding plants.

BEAUMONT, TEX.—C. J. Axleson, of the Southeast Texas Floral Co., has had such excellent results with carnations that he asserts he has answered in the affirmative that frequently asked question: "Can the carnation be grown successfully in the gulf states?"

MALTA, O.—W. C. Scovell's trade during 1909 has in most respects been the best in all his experience. He has recently spent several hundred dollars in improvements, and his place is now in first-class condition. He thinks it will be necessary to enlarge his range in the near future, however, in order to take care of the increasing business.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The holidays are over and everyone is glad to get down to regular business again. In most cases the holiday business was more than satisfactory, as stock was fairly plentiful and brought top-notch prices. Numerous parties during the week called for many decorations and no end of flowers as gifts. Corsages were quite popular, calling for great quantities of violets, orchids, valley and peas.

Various Notes.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held in the Commercial Club rooms, Tuesday, January 11. The election of officers for the ensuing year and the spring show are on the program, also an exhibition of blooms. The meeting will be followed by the usual banquet.

Baur & Smith report a most successful holiday business, this firm having enjoyed an enormous cut of carnations.

The advance guard of the Hollanders arrived last week.

A. A. Warner, formerly manager of the A. A. Warner Floral Co., has taken a position with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co.

John Heidenreich had a fine lot of azaleas for Christmas.

The Smith & Young Co., of Cumberland, Ind., has been cutting some excellent Brides and Maids. This firm has also sent in some fine Cattleya Trianæ.

H. L. W.

Portland, Me. — L. C. Goddard has opened a branch store on Congress street, at the head of Park street. Mr. Goddard has a large range of greenhouses, conveniently located at Deering.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Though Fugleberg & Flister, of the South Side Flower Exchange, recently built another greenhouse, they are still unable to grow stock enough to supply their customers and find it necessary to buy considerable quantities of flowers nearly every week.

Lawton, Mich.—On the night of December 16 the boiler at George Allard's greenhouses was partly put out of service by a leak. By borrowing oil stoves from some of his neighbors, Mr. Allard succeeded in keeping the temperature high enough so that none of his stock was lost except a few rooted cuttings. Temporary repairs were afterward made, so as to allow sufficient time for the selection of a new boiler.

ADMIRATION

This carnation we offer to the trade as being one of the finest Carnations of any color that we know of up to date. Being a beautiful shade of pink, somewhat lighter than Winona, having that beautiful satin finish, always showing up well either in natural or artificial light. Plants benched in August are now coming into full crop, carrying from 10 to 20 buds. We have been cutting since September 10th. As a money maker you will find no equal.

The size of the flower is 3 to 3½ inches, excellent form, well built up in the center, with the petals so arranged as to make it stand the general requirements of a good fancy commercial variety. A grand keeper and shipper.

The habit is ideal, upright with no surplus grass and every shoot going into flower. Its freedom and earliness make it nearly the ideal carnation. The calyx is very tough and seldom bursts. Can be handled with great success either from the field or grown inside all summer. No one has to be an expert to handle this variety. It scored 86 points at the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis, January 27 to 28, 1909.

Price, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.
250 at 1000 rate.

Send for catalogue of all other new and standard varieties of carnations. We are always pleased to have visitors come and inspect our stock and varieties.

SCARLET GLOW. (New) an extra good bright scarlet, a large flower and exceptional keeping qualities. It is in perfect health, and has that early and free flowering habit that characterizes a paying commercial variety. $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

PINK DELIGHT. Clear waxy shell pink. The variety that won over Enchantress at the A. C. S. meeting, Indianapolis, January, 1909. It has all the good points to make it the leader and with its unequaled substance, the best keeping and shipping carnation in the light pink class.

In 1909 we had no surplus stock to offer. With our large stock this season we are in a position to take care of all orders. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

We have large stocks of White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Enchantress, Winona, Enchantress, Aristocrat.

BEACON. Selected, healthy, well rooted cuttings, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

ST. PAUL.

Belated Christmas Report.

Favored by Providence with ideal weather, Christmas trade broke all records. The goods were right, the buyers right and the weather right, so let us thank the all-wise Giver for the happy combination and hope that it may be repeated.

Greens sold well and everything in that line was practically cleaned out several days in advance. Nearly all the holly seen here was in good condition; bright, clean foliage and well berried. Bouquet green was scarce, but there seemed to be about enough for all requirements. The attitude of insurance companies with regard to this decorative material is shortening the demand as the supply decreases. Christmas trees, which in former years have been a drug, were all sold. Wild smilax was used in so many places that it may be considered a necessary holiday stock in future. Hemlock wreaths found ready buyers, while statice, ruscus and magnolia foliage were all in good demand. Red berries and mistletoe were all cleaned up, and boxwood wreaths sold at sight.

Plants were in greater demand than ever, and everything available was cleaned out. Poinsettias in pans were the best sellers, followed by cyclamens, azaleas, primroses, begonias and lilacs. Well-done peppers and cherries were easily disposed of. Ferns were in big demand, while some palms, as usual, went as gifts. Made-up, nifty baskets of plants sold well.

In cut flowers everything was in fine demand. Beauties were high in price and did not appeal to the best trade as strongly as fancy Richmonds and Killarneys. The greatest call, however, was for carnations and violets. Cut poinsettias were in great favor, and orchids found ready buyers.

The greatest handicaps to the trade here were the exasperating delays and "bobbles" of the express companies. Most of them were all at sea, and it was as easy for the camel to pass through the needle's eye as for the florist to find his flowers. Trains were eight to ten and twelve hours late, and many shipments were not delivered in twelve to eighteen hours after arrival, and opened up frozen stiff.

New Year's weather, trade and stock were a duplicate of Christmas on a smaller scale, and another high record resulted. The social season will now be in full swing until Lent begins, and the growers will be on needles and pins until Easter in the effort to get stock in bloom, so that a busy three months is anticipated.

NEW

CARNATIONS

The two prize-winning introductions of the Cottage Gardens

Mrs. C. W. Ward

Mrs. C. W. Ward is a perfectly formed flower, with full center; color, deep pink, several shades lighter than Lawson, deeper than Winsor; having strong, erect stems 24 to 36 inches in length. A vigorous, healthy grower and has never shown disease of any kind.

Awards

Society of American Florists, silver medal, Boston, 1906; the Craig cup for best seedling, Philadelphia, 1906; the Lawson bronze medal, Washington, 1908; the Horticultural Society of New York, silver medal, sweepstake prize for best 100 blooms, New York, 1909; The Horticultural Society of New York, diploma for best new variety, New York, 19 9.

Price, Rooted Cuttings—$2.00 per 12; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000; $95.00 per 1000 in lots of 2500; 25 at the 100 rate; 250 at the 1000 rate.

Alma Ward

This beautiful Carnation is pure white except during dark weather, when it shows delicate splashings of pink similar to the Cattleya Orchid, increasing its popularity.

Alma Ward is the largest and most fragrant Carnation ever grown, producing perfect flowers 3½ to 4½ inches in diameter on strong, erect stems, 36 to 42 inches in length.

Awards

The Lawson silver medal, Toronto, 1907 (no gold medal having been awarded); the Lawson gold medal, Washington, 1908; The Society of American Florists, silver medal, Washington, 1908.

Price, Rooted Cuttings—$3.00 per 12; $5.00 per 25; $9.00 per 50; $15.00 per 100; $35.00 per 250; $65.00 per 500; $120.00 per 1000.

Delivery Feb. 1. January cuttings all sold.

These varieties bring from $2.00 to $4.00 per 100 more than any other Carnation sold in the New York market.

Sangamo

Brilliant, glistening pink. Winner wherever shown: Chicago, St Louis and Milwaukee. The greatest bloomer and fastest grower of any. Flowers perfect, stems long and stiff.

Why You Should Grow SANGAMO

1st.—It will give you more blooms in a season than any other variety. The fastest grower we have ever seen. 2nd.—It is the best color of anything in this class, Winsor, Rose-pink Enchantress or any other. 3rd —The blooms are well formed, nicely rounded out in the center, and do not fade. 4th.—The flower stands well above the calyx, making it impossible to split. 5th.—It comes early with long stems that are always stiff, holding the flower gracefully. 6th -The entire stock is clean and healthy. The cuttings root easily and the plants lift from the field and establish themselves without a set-back. 7th.—Not only an exhibition variety, but the best bread and butter Carnation for any florist to grow. Let us pay your coal bill for you.

Rooted cuttings guaranteed. January delivery, 100, $12; 1000, $100.

A POOR CROP OF LETTUCE.

you to change the soil again at this time of year, unless you have a pile outside prepared for next year. So the only thing to do is to try to get that soil in better shape. Lettuce likes a sandy, loose soil, and I often add sand to the soil when mixing it if it seems heavy. You could get yours in better shape by spreading a layer of sand over the beds and mixing it in well with a good spading over. Then it would be well to put on a liberal coat of manure and turn it again, thus mixing it and loosening it thoroughly. If manure is not plentiful enough so that you can put on a good coating of it, some nitrate of soda would be good, but it is quite strong and should be sowed thinly, scattering it evenly, as if sowing grass seed.

If you fail to get good results after changing the soil in this way, you had better grow vegetable plants for spring sales or some other spring crop, but get a good pile of soil ready as soon as possible, to be used next year.

I would advise you to go at it quite differently next time. If your soil is sandy, you need not add more sand, but if not sandy, buy some to mix in. Select good, black, soft, fresh soil. To every three loads of soil which you haul up, put on a half load of sand and a load of good, fresh manure, and let it stay buried in the pile, to rot where its strength will not evaporate or wash away. Turn the pile over at least once in the summer. More than the above-stated amounts of both manure and sand would be beneficial, but it is far better to have the manure put in the soil several weeks or months before needed and use none at the time of refilling the beds. All you have to do then is to put in the soil and level it off for planting. H. G.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta

Another New Fern Originating with us Introduced fall 1909

Of all the valuable introductions in ferns that we have sent out, beginning with the Pierson (Nephrolepis Piersoni), we consider the Elegantissima compacta the most valuable of all, particularly from a commercial standpoint.

While this resembles Elegantissima in a general way, it is far superior to that variety, on account of its perfect habit. Yet it can hardly be compared with Elegantissima in a general way, because it occupies a place by itself and is as distinct from Elegantissima as that variety is from Piersoni—in fact, it bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. Elegantissima compacta has an ideal habit. The fronds are considerably shorter than those of Elegantissima, and it is a more compact plant. It throws a great many more crowns naturally, making a very bushy, dwarf, compact plant. The difference between the two varieties may be seen at a glance.

Fine, strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100; 4-in. pots, $7.50 per doz., $50.00 per 100; 6-in. pans, $1.50 each; 8-in. pans, $3.00 each.

We make a specialty of all kinds of Nephrolepis, carrying a large stock of all sizes at all times—Piersoni, Elegantissima, Superbissima, Bostoniensis, Scottii, Whitmani, Amerpohlii, etc.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

A good Christmas was followed by a good week's business, a number of large decorations and many funerals taking up all the stock which came in. Stock, however, could not be plentiful, with a blizzard and snow storm coming every day, which was the case until Saturday, when the weather changed. As a result of the warmer weather and rain, the snow is about gone.

Great trouble has been experienced on account of the way the shipments of violets have been coming in. Christmas stock arrived at 6 p. m. on Friday. Then, after continued disappointments all the week, the violets that should have been used for filling orders on Saturday morning were not received until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Now it is dark and rainy, and the wholesalers are complaining that there is not enough stock to go halfway around.

The retailers all say it was a good New Year's, but that is not much better than a good Saturday in this city, except that there are always several balls, which help to keep the decorators on the jump.

Various Notes.

The committees are all waking up on carnation convention work, which the holidays stopped, and are getting ready to report at the club meeting.

P. S. Randolph has the sympathy of his many friends in the death of his mother, who died Wednesday, December 29.

CENTRALIA, ILL.—J. W. Ross has incorporated as the J. W. Ross Co. The authorized capital is $40,000, and the company is authorized to do business in flowers, seeds and nursery stock. The incorporators are J. W. Ross, J. E. Karnes and J. J. Bundy.

KEARNEY, NEB.—H. C. Green, of the Green Seed & Plant Co., reports that Christmas trade was twenty-five per cent better than a year ago. The demand was principally for carnations, with Victory and O. P. Bassett in the lead. The Bassetts were extra fine, having 4-inch to 4½-inch blooms and no splits. Roses were fair. Not only was everything cleaned up, but there was not enough stock to supply the demand.

CANNAS AND GERANIUMS

We have as good a list of Cannas for florists' use as can be found; strong 2 and 3-eye divisions. Northern grown Cannas, divided from the clumps just before shipping are far superior to stock shipped from the South. We firmly believe that Cannas divided early, packed in thin boxes and stored for weeks or months have lost much of their vitality before the grower gets them.

Beaute Poitevine, Crimson Bedder, Duke of Marlborough, Alphonse Bouvier, Egandale, Robert Christie, Florence Vaughan, Burbank, Papa Nardy, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

King Humbert, $5.00 per 100.

(Many other varieties, but the above are a few leaders.)

GERANIUMS—Let us have your order for Geraniums for immediate shipment or to reserve until you want them. Standard varieties like S. A. Nutt, Mme. Barney, John Doyle, Alphonse Ricard Beaute Poitevine, Mme. Landry, Berthe de Presilly, Marvel and La Favorite, $25.00 per 1000, for strong 2¼-in. pot plants.

Selections of 1000, in named varieties, our choice, all good sorts, $20 00 per 1000. Tell us how many varieties you wish; can send 50 if you want that many.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Unusually cold weather was felt here around Christmas. Holly, greens of all kinds and Christmas trees were fairly disposed of this season. Plants in pots were not much in demand. The most business was done with cut flowers and bouquets of all sorts, showing a large increase over last year. Had the temperature been a few degrees lower our city gardens would have been badly touched and in need of new stock. The damage was done more to the leaves, but still many sorts of plants will have to be renewed, and the prospects for a good spring sale are quite encouraging.

Florists attending to decorations are quite busy. M. M. L.

Belvidere, Ill.—John W. Lyon is to open a flower store at 205 South State street.

New Orleans, La.—The display case for cut flowers in the new store of Charles Eble, in the Gruenewald Hotel building, was built to order by the McCray Refrigerator Co., Kendallville, Ind.

Pawtucket, R. I.—James Hockey, of the Prospect Greenhouses, has been in somewhat feeble health for some time. He has been able to give some attention to business, however, and trade has been ten per cent better than last year.

Berlin, Md.—D. W. Babcock has leased the Dr. Hammond place, consisting of fifty acres, on South Main street, right in town, and will plant it to nursery and florists' stock. Mr. Babcock is a lifelong nurseryman, having graduated from the nurseries of western New York. He has been foreman for J. G. Harrison & Sons for the last ten years.

Lake Charles, La.—C. D. Otis is taking active steps toward establishing a range of greenhouses and a nursery at Port Arthur, Tex., and it is said that John W. Gates is also interested in the promotion of the enterprise. It is probable that the old government experimental farm, near Port Arthur, will be selected for the purpose, as it has good railroad connections and other advantages. Mr. Otis is president of the Louisiana State Horticultural Association.

Pronouncing Dictionary.
A list of plant names and the botanical terms most frequently met with in articles on trade topics, with the correct pronunciation for each. 35 cents

Hardy Perennials and Old-fashioned Garden Flowers.
By J. Wood. Describing the most desirable plants for borders, shrubberies, etc., foliage and flowering. Illustrated. $2.00

The American Carnation.
By C. W. Ward. Invaluable to the carnation grower. All departments of the business are treated in a thoroughly practical manner. This book is the work of a careful, studious grower of ripe experience. Fully illustrated. $3.50

Tomato Culture.
By W. W. Tracy, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. The book deals with every phase of tomato culture and was written for the man who wants the latest and most complete information on the subject. Cloth. 150 pages. Illustrated. 50 cents

Ornamental Gardening for Americans.
By Elias A. Long, landscape architect. A treatise on beautifying homes, rural districts and cemeteries. A plain and practical work, with numerous illustrations and instructions so plain that they may be readily followed. Illustrated. Cloth. 390 pages. $1.50

The Forcing Book.
By L. H. Bailey. In this work the author has compiled in handy form the cream of all the available information on the subject of forcing vegetables under glass. In addition to this, the experience of many practical growers in different localities is furnished. $1.25

Bulbs and Tuberous Rooted Plants.
By C. L. Allen. A complete history, description, methods of propagation and full directions for the successful culture of bulbs in the garden, dwelling or greenhouse. The illustrations which embellish this work have been drawn from nature, and have been engraved especially for this book. Cloth. $1.50

The Pruning Book.
By L. H. Bailey. This is the first American work exclusively devoted to pruning. It differs from most other treatises on this subject in that the author takes particular pains to explain the principles of each operation in every detail. Specific advice is given on the pruning of the various kinds of fruits and ornamental trees, shrubs and hedges. Considerable space is devoted to the pruning and training of grape vines, both American and foreign. 530 pages. Illustrated. $1.50

Water Gardening.
By Peter Bisset. This work supersedes all other books that have previously been written on the subject of aquatics and their surroundings, and gives in full detail all the practical information necessary to the selection, grouping and successful cultivation of aquatic and other plants required in the making of a water garden and its environments, and covering all conditions from that of the amateur with a few plants in tubs, to the large estate or park. $2.50

Insects and Insecticides.
By Clarence M. Weed, D. Sc. A practical manual concerning noxious insects and the methods of preventing their injuries. Profusely illustrated. A generally useful handbook on noxious insects. It covers the whole field of insect pests very thoroughly and is especially valuable for its complete and up-to-date methods of fighting insects. The work is intensely practical. All the important insect pests are described and remedies for them, and methods of preventing their injuries described in detail. Cloth. $1.50

Handbook of Plants and General Horticulture.
By Peter Henderson. This new edition comprises about 50 per cent more genera than the former one, and embraces the botanical name, derivation, natural order, etc., together with a short history of the different genera, concise instructions for their propagation and culture, and all the leading local or common English names, together with a comprehensive glossary of botanical and technical terms. Plain instructions are also given for the cultivation of the principal vegetables, fruits and flowers. Cloth. $3.00

Greenhouse Heating.

IN the middle west the month of December was a tough one for the man who does his own night firing. It was the coldest December in many years, and made great inroads on the coal bin, besides requiring constant vigilance.

PURSUING the custom established three years ago, the American Blower Co., Detroit, this Christmas presented each employee with a sum in crisp new dollar bills, equal to the years of their continued service with the company. Along with the money was given an illustrated booklet, containing a short historical sketch of the institution of which the employees form such an important part, and all inclosed in an envelope decorated in holiday colors.

A NOVEL HEATING PLANT.

I have recently put into operation a cheap plan for increasing the efficiency of my heating plant and it may be that the idea can be used to advantage by other greenhouse owners.

My house is 36x60, eight feet to the ridge and three feet at the sides, all banked with soil. I have a five horsepower, upright boiler, with two 4-inch openings. Last year this boiler would not heat my house above 45 degrees during zero weather. I had two flows and three returns under my beds and across each end, which makes about 500 feet of hot water radiation. It is the same this year, but last fall I turned the boiler down under the beds and built a 3x2x4 firebrick furnace in front of it. I am now running the smokestack under the beds to the opposite end of the house. It is sixteen inches in diameter and is joined to a chimney of 18-inch sewer-pipe tile, so you see the heat travels sixty feet before leaving the house.

I am growing miscellaneous plants and, with this slight change in arrangement, have had no trouble in maintaining a temperature of 60 degrees, both day and night, although the outside temperature has fallen as low as 8 degrees below zero. SAMUEL RIMBEY.

TO HEAT GREENHOUSES.

Did you ever stop to think what it takes to heat a really big greenhouse plant? It isn't the trifling incident the uninformed might suppose. For instance, one day last month August Poehlmann, secretary of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., made a single purchase of 114 carloads of coal. That would be over 5,000 tons, but it would last only a part of the season. Putting it another way, that one order, if shipment were made all at once, would make more than two solid trainloads—if only two trains, they would have to be double-headers, for fifty cars is about all a big mogul locomotive is good for, especially in cold weather. But Mr. Poehlmann ordered deliveries spread over six weeks, at the rate of about three cars a day. He intends to keep his bunkers full.

heat a greenhouse, a few weeks ago Peter Reinberg gave a few figures as to the quantity and cost of his fuel in the season of 1907-8. He burned, he said, about 250 cars of Pocahontas coal, mined in West Virginia. The cars averaged about forty-five tons of coal each, or a total of over 11,000 tons, and the cost was something over $3 per ton. It was interesting that the cost of the coal at the mine was less than one-third its value when on Mr. Reinberg's siding—in other words, the cost of freight and switching was nearly two and one-third times the value of the coal at the mouth of the mine. Mr. Reinberg's fuel last season cost considerably over $35,000.

C. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn usually burn about 12,000 tons of coal a season at their plant at Hinsdale, Ill., with the prospect of exceeding that quantity if the winter continues as cold as it has started.

IN CENTRAL MASSACHUSETTS.

I intend to build a greenhouse 34x120 feet, even-span, five and one-half feet to the eaves and ten feet to the ridge, with rafters nineteen feet eight inches long. There will be glass in the ends down to the plate, and two feet of glass below the plate on the south side. The house will face five degrees east of south. The beds will be raised about twenty inches. Hot water heat will be used. How many 2½-inch overhead flows, and how many 2-inch returns on the sides, will be required to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero? What size of boiler and grate will be needed? Is it necessary to have the top of the boiler below the lowest return? A. L. B.

For a house 34x120 feet, built as described, the use of five 2½-inch flows and seventeen 2-inch returns should give the temperature desired. It is not necessary to have the returns above the top of the boiler, but if below that point for much of their length it will be advisable to use 2½-inch pipes throughout, and arrange them so that each pipe will give a complete and continuous circulation. Twenty pipes—that is, ten flows and ten returns—will be required. When one flow supplies several returns, part of which are below the top of the boiler, only a part of them will circulate properly.

The boiler should be one that is rated at 2,000 to 2,200 square feet of radiation. The grate may vary in diameter from 30 to 32 inches, according to the character and extent of the fire surface.

THE most satisfied people in America are the Florists using

Morehead Steam Traps

Have you ever talked with a brother florist who uses Morehead Return Steam Traps? If not, do so at the first opportunity and be convinced that you must install one at once.

There are more Morehead Traps installed in greenhouses than of all other makes of steam traps combined. The Morehead is distinctively a "florists' trap." Every feature of its construction has been treated with a view of meeting the special needs of the florist.

Many florists have written us that they "could not get along without it."

The Morehead Return Steam Trap will remove the steam line condensation as fast as it accumulates and return it to the boiler at nearly boiling heat, requiring but little fire to again convert it into heat.

The full heating value of the live steam is retained, making it possible through the resulting uniform temperature to grow as good stock in one end of the house as in the other.

The long life of the Morehead Trap is a useful life—in many specific cases the one individual trap has been in constant and continual service for over 15 years.

We will gladly ship to any florist a Morehead Trap for any reasonable trial period. If it is not all that we claim, ship it back at our expense.

Write today and ask for "Trap Book."

products of "der vaderland" as Charles Schmidt and Christian Binning, of the entertainment committee, and that the repast will amply satisfy the 6:30 p. m. appetites of the club members.

It has been the feeling of most of the members that the local retailers might obtain great benefit by becoming members and active supporters of the club. In fact, it is thought that the man or woman depending on a local trade has far more to gain by such a membership than the florist whose product is shipped broadcast. But the small local florist usually sticks closely to his place of business, frequently does his own firing at night, and imagines that he cannot afford to spare an evening a month. Yet, if he would view the matter in a true light, rise a step or two above his present level, take advantage of the advertising which would result from his mere membership in the club, learn what his fellow craftsmen are doing by listening to the interesting discussions which irrepressibly bob up at the regular meetings, he would be dollars ahead, have a stock of useful new ideas, and acquire an enthusiasm which would lighten the labors of his business.

While a Dutch lunch appeals most strongly to the male members of the club, some of whom express a decided aversion to anything in the nature of a pink tea, it is probable that at some succeeding meeting the occasion will be particularly adapted to both sexes, so that the lady florists of the city may be invited. When it can be made apparent that the interests of all branches of the florists' trade are in a certain degree mutual, and when the local retailers shall recognize the benefits of coöperation, one of the most alive and entertainingly instructive clubs in the country will be gradually built up.

Metallic Thermometer "A"

SIZE—8 inches high, 4 inches wide, 2 inches deep. Case made of cast aluminum, highly finished.

This little instrument is an accurate, fully tested thermometer showing the correct temperature at all times, and combines a device which will ring a bell at your bedside when the greenhouse gets either too hot or too cold.

The florist needs protection against the overheating of his greenhouses as well as a protection against cold, for which we can highly recommend our type "A." This device serves both purposes, and at the same time indicates, as previously stated, the actual temperature in his greenhouse.

We guarantee that actual results will at all times be obtained. This device has been subjected to the severest tests in our laboratory, for over two years, and at the same time has given entire satisfaction, under all conditions, to many users in the trade.

All you have to do is to set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures you want, and the thermometer will do the rest. It will ring a good, loud bell when either point is reached.

This device saves all worry over trouble from sudden temperature changes.

Investigate it today.

The "National" Differential Temperature Alarm

SIZE—4 inches in diameter, 1½ inch deep. Casing made of Sheet Aluminum.

A sudden cold snap, or a rapid thaw, may mean hundreds of dollars' loss because your greenhouse gets too hot or too cold before you realize the sudden change that has occurred.

Protect yourself from such danger

Our Differential Temperature Alarm is specially designed for florists' use and is guaranteed to give absolute protection from the dangers before stated. Set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures desired and this device will positively ring a bell at your bedside when either point is reached.

Over 2,000 of these instruments are now giving complete satisfaction to florists throughout the country.

It is constructed of the very best material available for the purpose, and contains no complicated mechanism; hence serves its purpose a lifetime.

The pointers on face of instrument can be set so as to allow a difference between a possible increase or decrease of temperature of only two degrees. All that is necessary is to change position of pointers by loosening set screw in center so as to set the pointers or hands on face of dial; then tighten said set screw.

We also manufacture separate instruments; No. 1, to ring a bell when the house gets too hot; No. 2, to ring a bell when the house gets too cold. Of course, the most useful is the instrument illustrated above, which is a combination of both No. 1 and No. 2.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Wholesalers and retailers alike express general satisfaction with the business done during the holidays. Weather conditions, during the Christmas rush, were against the retailers, and the handling of pot plants made deliveries difficult. While prices of some choice carnations did not reach over $8 per hundred, yet as a whole the volume of business done, and the returns to the growers, were quite satisfactory. American Beauty roses reached $12 per dozen for the best, while a larger number went from $5 to $8 per dozen. Some of the best Killarney and Richmond fetched $25 per hundred. President Taft and Maids, in the best grades, sold readily at $15, while medium and smaller grades ranged from 6 cents up.

Poinsettias are steadily increasing in popularity. There was a large supply of cut blooms, which sold from $10 to $20. Violets were in heavy demand, especially the singles, and not nearly enough to go around, and the same may be said of valley. The only glut noticeable was on Paper White narcissi. They moved slowly at $3 per hundred. A mistake was certainly made by some growers in holding back so much stock, especially in carnations, which would have sold to better advantage earlier in the week, when good prices could have been obtained. Good stock sold readily at $6 per hundred and much of the salted goods had to be moved at $3 and $4. One would judge they would learn from experience, but from the way it looks they've got the habit. Asparagus, smilax and ferns were plentiful. All in all, the holiday trade can be classed as satisfactory.

Various Notes.

A bowling club has been started and had their first evening of innings Monday, January 3, and they certainly had a hot time on the alleys.

Heller Bros., of Newcastle, Ind., surely had their stock in tip-top shape for the holidays. Their Beauties were never better.

Weiland & Olinger were short on their crop, but what was lacking in quantity, they made up in quality. H. Schwarz.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

NOXALL FLORISTS' HOSE

Furnished in any length up to 500 feet, without seam, joint or connection, ½ and ¾-in. sizes. An exceptionally high grade greenhouse hose, manufactured with a double woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover. The double woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking. Noxall Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 lbs. per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this. Noxall Hose is made by the latest and most improved methods and its construction is the most important improvement made in the manufacture of rubber hose since Goodyear discovered the process of vulcanizing rubber 75 years ago. No hose made will give equal service for greenhouse use.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Christmas, 1909, was all that could be desired in a business way, and some of the florists say that it went ahead of last Christmas. Plant trade had the run, although there was a good demand for cut flowers. Prices were good, both on plants and flowers. There was a goodly assortment of plants to choose from, namely, azaleas, Lorraine begonias, cyclamen, primroses, geraniums, cherries, ferns, palms, and a host of other flowering and decorative plants, while in the cut flower line there were roses, carnations, sweet peas, violets, daffodils, Paper Whites, mignonette, stevia, hyacinths, etc.

Carnations retailed at $1 and $1.25 per dozen. There was a good demand for red carnations, of which the supply was none too plentiful. Roses, of good quality, retailed at $3 per dozen; violets at $2.50 per hundred; sweet peas at $1 per hundred; daffodils at 75 cents per dozen and Paper Whites the same. There was a good call for evergreen wreaths, selling all the way from 25 cents to $2. There was a fairly good demand for Christmas trees, at prices ranging from 50 cents upwards. The weather was decidedly cold, making extra wrapping necessary and delivery a hardship.

Various Notes.

S. S. Peckham is back again at his place in Fairhaven, Peter Davis, the lessee, having given it up.

A. B. Hathaway is cutting some nice sweet peas.

R. E. Nofftz is growing some fine bulb stock, of which he makes a fine display in his store window.

E. H. Chamberlain is well satisfied with his Christmas trade and, when called on, was rushed with New Year's business.

R. H. Woodhouse reports business as fine. His place is in good shape.

Wm. P. Peirce; J. H. Cleary and Wm. H. Davenport had a fine Christmas business.

E. Y. Peirce is cutting some fine carnations for the Boston market. W. L.

Get the Benefit of Big Prices in the early market

The secret of success in market gardening is earliness. The Sunlight Double Glass Sash makes it easy to have the earliest and best plants. They will be ready as soon as the field is ready to receive them. The resulting crops will get the top-notch prices.

Sunlight Double Glass Sash lets in all the light all the time. Mats and boards for covering are no longer needed saving expense and labor.

Throughout the entire day the plants get benefit of the stimulating sunlight and earlier, better crops result.

The two layers of glass do the work. A 5/8-inch cushion of dry air between acts as a transparent blanket over the plants and protects them even in zero weather.

SAN FRANCISCO.

weather has been decidedly favorable, stocks were cut so closely for Christmas that the plants have not yet had time to recuperate.

Various Notes.

John Maxwell, the well known Napa, Cal., florist, is in town for a few days' visit.

Thos. Munroe and James Niven have purchased three acres in the neighborhood of Fairfax, Cal., with the intention of growing hardy outside flowers for the San Francisco market.

Philip Murray, until recently with Julius Eppstein, is at present with Clarke Bros. at Oakland, Cal.

John Kapplemann has severed his connection with the Thorsted Floral Co., of Oakland, Cal.

Miss K. O. Sessions, of San Diego, has shipped to the local dealers the best poinsettias received from the south this season.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will give a banquet at the Palace hotel sometime in January.

The Carnegie Institute, of Washington, has withdrawn the yearly annuity which was given to Luther Burbank for the past several seasons. G.

EASTON, PA.—S. M. Merwarth & Bros. are erecting another carnation house, 85x200 feet. They expect to grow next season about 15,000 of their seedling carnation, White Diamond, which, they think, will be valuable enough so it will not belie its name. They will not offer any of the stock for sale till 1911.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

LINCOLN'S IS ROSE DAY.

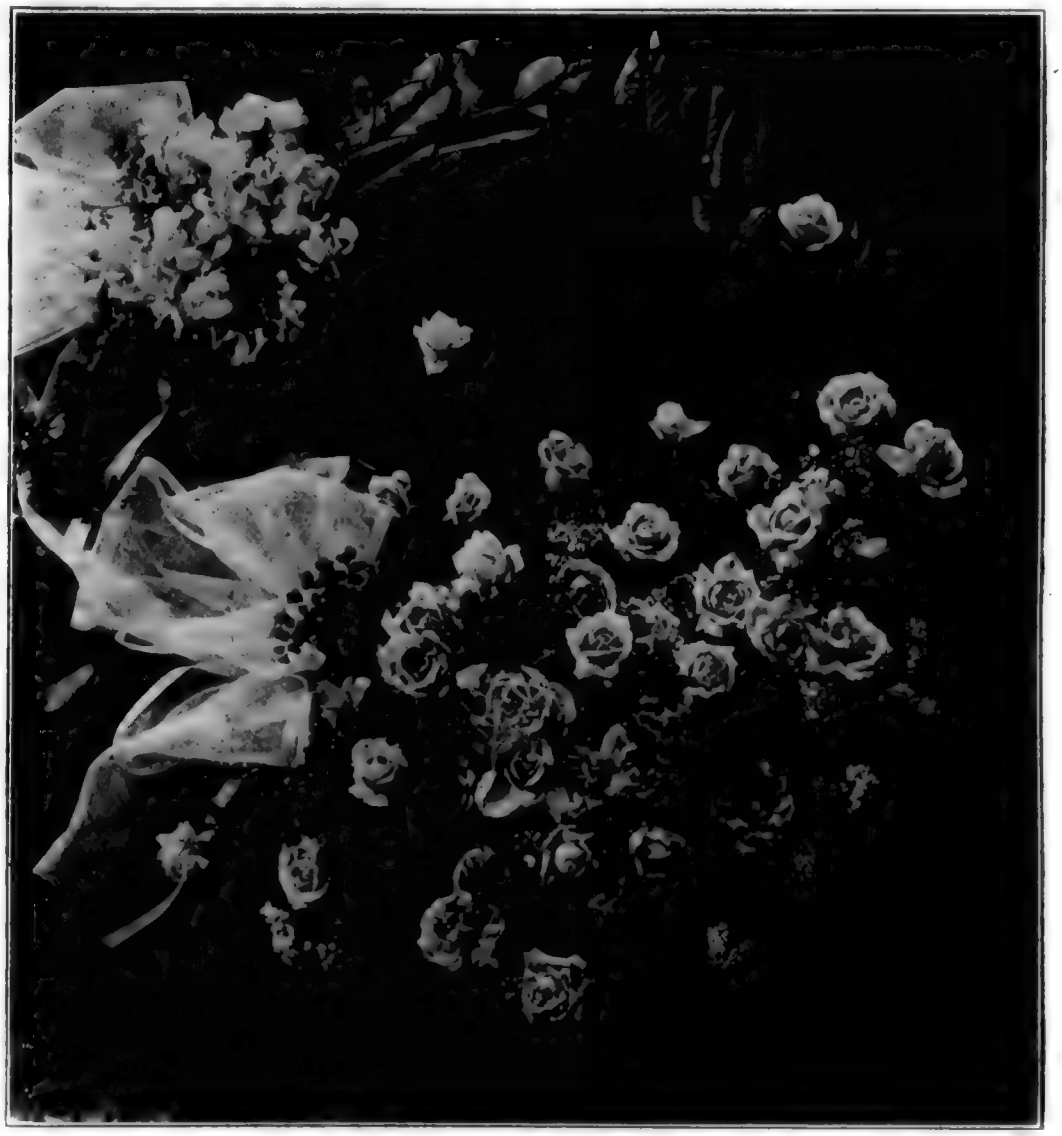
Carnation day, January 29, the McKinley anniversary, has not taken the popular fancy in the way it was hoped it would; let us all hope and work for the rose day now proposed—Lincoln's birthday, February 12.

Dr. J. F. Shafer, editor of the Evolutionist, is trying to establish a national custom of honoring Abraham Lincoln's memory by wearing a rose on the martyred President's birthday. Dr. Shafer sent the following notice to 100 newspapers:

A general request has been sent out asking everybody to wear a rose on Lincoln's birthday as a tribute to the memory of the immortal statesman and emancipator of a race. It is hoped that the wearing of a rose February 12 will become a national custom, observed each year not only by the race he set free but by all who honor and venerate the memory of America's most lamented president, Abraham Lincoln.

Every retail florist can help rose day by calling attention to it in his newspaper advertisements, by means of window cards and by word to his customers. Indeed, where retailers have made well considered effort some progress has been made in popularizing McKinley day and the wearing of carnations. Let everybody do his share and the use of flowers on these special days can be increased largely. Advertise, but don't raise prices; advertise, and provide some stock, but don't quit in disgust when no rush develops. Where McKinley day got its black eye was that, in the very start, a lot of people overestimated the demand, though they had done absolutely nothing to help create the call, raised prices and got stuck with a lot of carnations for which there were no customers. There are too many people in this world for anyone to be able to arouse their interest all in a moment; it takes a lot of time and stirring to get the whole mass in motion, but sentiment makes a strong appeal. Work on it.

DELIVERING CEMETERY ORDERS.



Can the readers of the REVIEW give any suggestions that will be helpful to a florist, in a small city with a population of about 7,000, who sometimes has a good run of cemetery trade, for Decoration day and other occasions? The two cemeteries are a mile from town, and there is no regular attendant to take care of the grounds or receive the flowers. In a case of this kind, does the average florist lose valuable time in looking up lots and then run the risk, after all, of finding that the flowers have been misplaced or have afterward been stolen? Sometimes we are driven almost crazy by calls from the two cemeteries to meet customers there at a certain time. If there is any good way of systematizing this work we shall be grateful for the information, for our patrons, of course, refuse to pay for flowers which have been left at the wrong place. Sometimes we have had 100 or more orders to deliver, without knowing where to place them or in whose care to leave them.

WREATH ON EASEL.

The accompanying illustration of a wreath on an easel is from a photograph of a design made by the Galveston Floral Co. The wreath was of magnolia leaves, with Bridesmaid roses at the bottom and a bunch of pink sweet peas on the upper left side. A little Sprengeri was used, but the fine green mostly was Adiantum Farleyense. The chiffon added no little to the effect.

This is a design which can be varied in innumerable ways. The base of the design may be of prepared magnolia or laurel leaves, of galax, leucothoe or boxwood, and the flowers can be varied to suit individual tastes. Such a wreath ought always to bring a good price, for it never fails to please the purchaser.

SMITH'S PITTSBURG STORE.

A Third Story Store.

The retail flower store of the A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburg, is notable for a number of things. To begin with, it is equipped and operated along the lines of highest class service. It also is one of the largest stores in the country, having over 100 feet of show windows. But what to many will appear as the most remarkable feature is that the store not only is on two floors, but that the largest and a most important selling room is on the third floor of the office building in which the main store occupies the corner of the street floor. The third story salesroom is reached by a private elevator from the street flower store, and by five public elevators belonging to the building proper. One of the accompanying illustrations shows this third story salesroom, where everything pertaining to the business is on display and sale. An inspection of the photograph, taken just before Christmas, will indicate that here cut flowers, plants, seeds, bulbs, baskets, vases, decorative materials and all the little side lines carried by a first-class flower store are on sale. A private telephone communicates with the main store, and pneumatic tubes convey money and orders from one section to another. During the recent holidays the third story salesroom was just as crowded as the main store, and customers generally find it as convenient to do their shopping there as in the street store.

On the third floor also are located the offices of the company, presided over by W. Jarvis Smith, the work-rooms, shipping-rooms and the large refrigerators operated by artificial cooling apparatus, where cut flower stock is kept. All work is made up out of sight of the customers, which adds not only to the appearance of the store but to the facility with which a large business can be handled.

The Street Store.

The main store on the first floor is one of the handsomest in the country, as a glance at the other accompanying illustration will show. As in the modern flower stores, there are no counters here, and there never is any rush or litter. On two sides there are over 100 feet of show windows, which are kept attractively decorated. Along the other side and end of the store is a mezzanine, under which is the cut flower display case, fifty-two feet long, and cooled by artificial refrigeration. Here flowers are arranged, not stored. This display case always is arranged for effect, the flowers being in brass receptacles, designed and patented by the Smith Co. The salesmen sell the stock from these display cases, and the vases are replenished from the stock box in another room. There never is any haste, noise or excitement in this store, the effort being to create an artistic atmosphere. There is a fountain plashing near the front entrance; there is music, and about the room there are cages of canary birds, which add to the charm, and it is more the rule than otherwise for customers to take seats and enjoy their surroundings after their orders have been taken and shot to the work-room through the pneumatic tubes.

No less an authority than Philip Breitmeyer says that the Smith Co. has the ideal flower shop of this country.

History of the Firm.

A. W. Smith, following a natural love for plants and flowers, put up a greenhouse in 1874. The stock he grew was handled so well that his trade kept on increasing until the concern now has thirty-five houses, but grows in them only the things which cannot conveniently be bought in the market. The output practically all is handled through the retail store. In 1892 Mr. Smith opened his first store, and about this time his sons, having completed their education and having inherited the business tastes of their father, came into the firm, in the end taking charge of the retail department and giving their father better opportunity to look after the growing end.

Last year the firm was incorporated, with the following officers: President, A. W. Smith; secretary and manager, A. W. Smith, Jr.; treasurer, W. Jarvis Smith. It was only last October that they moved into the large store in the Keenan building, with its over 9,000 square feet of floor space.

Progressive Ideas on Retailing.

The members of the Smith organization had several ideas which were unusual among florists a few years ago. One of these ideas was the necessity for system. Everything has been governed by system from the start, and they have so systematized every operation that business moves like clockwork. Another idea new at the time they began to put it into practice was that advertising is a potent and profitable influence for the retail florist who handles it the right way. Another idea was that the purchaser of small means should not be ignored, and they have always found a way to make it possible for a customer to get something pretty and good, and that he would not be ashamed to present to anyone, for a price he could afford to pay. Today, notwithstanding the large business that has been built up, A. W. Smith, Jr., will point out a sign in gold letters in one of their windows: "The Home of the Dollar Box."

They believed at the start that it pays to advertise, and now they know it, having kept at it consistently until the name is known in every home. The following is one of their advertisements now running in all street cars in the city:

"Travelers over both continents say no other flower store compares with this, not only in America but in all the world. Pittsburgers are profitably enjoying these unparalleled advantages. Have you seen our display today? You are always welcome."

BUILDING UP A RETAIL TRADE.

[A paper read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, January 4, 1910, by Edward A. Stroud.]

I will tell you a few of my experiences and some of the methods I have employed in conducting a retail business which I established some years ago in Overbrook.

It is possible for a florist in town to confine himself to a few departments of the business and make a success of it financially, but I do not think this is possible with a florist in the suburbs. To make his business a success he has to take up many different lines of work. He should be a landscape gardener, a grower of plants and flowers, a decorator, and, in fact, a general all-round man.

Versatility Needed in the Suburbs.

After a family has moved from the city, with its confined quarters, and few opportunities for the cultivation of their taste in the planting of their grounds, and, as a rule, with little or no knowledge in this direction, it is of vital importance that the suburban florist be well versed in this department, so that he may advise them wisely and correctly.

If the suburban florist is fortunate enough to have some ground in addition to his greenhouses, where he can show his customers results which may be obtained in the immediate vicinity, he could give them object lessons. This I believe would accomplish more good than any catalogue he could issue.

For example: The hardy border, with the best and up-to-date perennials; the rose garden; the spring show of bulbs, pansies, forget-me-nots, and English daisies. The peony bed, with its varieties neatly labeled. The summer garden filled with annuals and new cannas, the fall border with late asters and helianthus, followed by the hardy chrysanthemums. Some years ago there was not a May-flowering tulip in Overbrook; from the method described I sold this fall some 15,000 bulbs, and from a small bed of columbine last spring I sold 1,000 plants.

Now, of course, to carry on this business it is necessary to make desirable connections with the nurserymen, seedsmen and plantsmen, and also the wholesaler of cut flowers, acting as their agent. Let me give you an example: When Mr. A. comes along and admires a certain beautiful rose in bloom, and desires one, you take his order, go to the phone, order the same, and thus make a quick turnover with comparatively little labor.

Buying Stock Better Than Growing.

My idea of a retail business in a growing community is to use your glass principally for show houses, keeping them supplied from the large growers. It is foolish to try to compete with them in the growing line. An important factor is the sale of house plants. There is scarcely a home in which there is not a growing plant. Then, too, a great many people enclose their porches with glass in winter-time, making a temporary conservatory, to be filled with foliage and flowering plants, which of necessity must be replaced from time to time, making a profitable source of income.

The sale of Christmas and Easter plants is so universal that its importance need hardly be mentioned.

After spring comes the spring bedding, which probably, taking the whole season through, embraces the biggest volume of the work. Of late years this department has grown to such an extent that I depend entirely on the large growers of bedding plants, placing my orders early, so as to insure a good quality of stock. It seems to me there is a great deal more money made in buying geraniums at $18 per thousand out of 2½-inch pots in February, and selling them for $80 per thousand from 4-inch pots in May and June, than by growing them myself; besides, I can then confine myself to a few specialties which oftentimes I cannot buy.

Under the head of bedding plants comes the filling of porch-boxes. I have been trying to get away from the usual filled box, of geraniums, coleus, petunias, verbenas and cheap vines, using instead such decorative plants as crotons, pandanus, dracænas, ferns, etc. The cost of filling such a box as I have described is considerably more, instead of $2.50 to $3, running from $8 to $10, but wherever I have used them they have more than pleased and repaid the purchaser, the reason being that they give an immediate effect, combined with lasting qualities, if given proper attention. Also, at the approach of frost the boxes can be taken into the conservatory.

The Sale of Cut Flowers.

The sale of cut flowers is the next branch in importance. My experience has been that one cannot get, or expect to get, the same prices as the city florist receives, for the reason that in a growing community the florist caters almost exclusively to a family trade, people who want the flowers but not the frills, considering a fancy, ribbon-tied box unnecessary. I have found that people of wealth like to buy flowers frequently at moderate rates, say from $1 to $2 worth, but will not spend large amounts except on special occasions, when they will go the limit. Even so, I have found at Christmas time few among my customers who are willing to pay $3 per dozen for red carnations, or $25 per dozen for Beauties.

To meet this demand for moderate prices I have had to grow flowers which will satisfy the buyers and at the same time give me a profit. These flowers which I grow for this purpose cannot always be bought at the wholesalers'. The following varieties are some of them: Starting in the fall with the dahlias, cosmos, hardy chrysanthemums, Paper White narcissus; later on the stocks, wall-flowers, schizanthus, daisies and indoor bulbs, following with the spring flowers, peonies, sweet peas, Spanish iris, outdoor-grown bulbs, etc.

I have an arrangement by which I supply flowers once a week, on any day the customer desires, at $1 and upwards a week. This plan has met with fair success.

In decorations the public seems to have more confidence in the city florist, thinking that he is necessarily more up-to-date and more competent. It is only by showing the people that we are capable of the same work as the city florist that we are able to get them to trust us with their orders. Decorating and the use of flowers and plants is an art which cannot always be acquired. It is not merely the mechanical part, but the knowing how to blend colors and the proper arrangement to give the best effect. I have seen a bouquet spoiled where the mechanical work was excellent, but where the ribbon with which it was tied did not blend in color, and the trade of an artistic person was lost by this error.

Advertising is Neglected.

I feel we are in a transition stage in our business, when new methods and new ideas are needed. What was considered beautiful ten years ago is in many cases distasteful now. One point in which we are far behind other lines of business is in advertising. I would advocate the sending out with the monthly bills a small card, calling attention to some specialty which we have for sale during the next month. I am anxious to see our business put on a higher plane, to make it more of a profession, not mere labor. It is a shame to see the way the shrubbery is butchered in our suburbs, just because the work is entrusted to anyone who comes along. We are far behind our European neighbors horticulturally, and should do. As people are becoming more cultivated, the love of the beautiful is growing, and it is time for us to wake up. In many cases the public is far ahead of the florist, knowing far more about the business in general than he does.

I am afraid the desire to get money quickly has done more to put our business on a wrong basis than anything else. So many people have been advised incorrectly, and have got such poor results, after a large expenditure of money, that they have given up in despair.

In conclusion, I would not advise anyone starting a business in a suburban community, unless he is well trained and has sufficient capital to purchase enough ground to erect a store, office and greenhouse, in a prosperous locality. Even with this equipment it will require patience and probably a loss of money until one is thoroughly established, after which I see no reason why it should not be a profitable investment.

RENTING DECORATIVE PLANTS.

In all large cities there is a demand for plants for temporary decorations, and the average retailer is without conservatory space sufficient to permit him to carry this stock, so there is a field for someone to do a good business in the renting of palms and similar plants.

Appreciating the opening for this line of business in Chicago, Fred Wittbold proceeded to develop this branch for the George Wittbold Co. He has now been at it several years, and has so worked it up that last year the company received more than $18,000 for the rental of plants. The entire range of glass on the Clark street side of the city establishment is devoted to the storage of stock used exclusively by Fred Wittbold in conducting the renting department. The volume of business done hardly would be guessed at by one not familiar with the circumstances. Think of it! Eighteen thousand dollars for plants that were brought back, usually the next day!

Of course, there always is a demand for plants for wedding decorations, but Mr. Wittbold has encouraged the use of plants at funerals, and the undertakers are among his best customers. He gets $10 and up for a few hours' use of palms and ferns from hundreds of funerals each year.

Of course, the retail florists are the best customers of Mr. Wittbold's renting business. Comparatively few of the retailers undertake to carry stock of decorating sizes in sufficient quantity to keep them going; when they have weddings they simply order the plants of Wittbold. So general has the practice become that Fred Wittbold in the social season has thirty to forty wagonloads out most of the time.

The Wittbold plant-renting department, like all the other branches of the Wittbold business, has the coöperation of the Wittbold advertising department, which is in charge of Louis Wittbold, secretary of the corporation. Reproduced herewith is one of the daily newspaper advertisements for this end of the business, one that is reported to bring excellent results.

we can only attain to their high standard by teaching the people that their grounds, gardens and plants should be taken care of by a man who has been trained in all departments of the business.

There is great need for young men in this work. I would like to see a course in floriculture started in our colleges, on the same plane as the course in agriculture. For experimental purposes the public parks could be utilized. The school gardens are a step in the right direction. I do not know what our florists' clubs are doing to help along this work, but they

HOW TO KEEP GREENS.

Will you please tell me the best way to keep galax, magnolia leaves, leucothoe sprays, and hardy and dagger ferns?

E. O. E.

There are various ways of keeping such necessary greens as leucothoe, galax, fern leaves, magnolia, etc., for use in a retail store, and all are more or less satisfactory.

Galax leaves, leucothoe sprays, fancy and dagger ferns—in fact, all greens of this nature having stems—will retain their freshness best if kept in water and stood in a cool place. Do not immerse the leaves in water; the stem only should get into the water.

In the case of leucothoe or fern leaves, keep about two or three inches of water in the receptacles. Galvanized pails are best suited for this purpose. Avoid crowding too many leaves into one pail, as this will injure the leaves.

Magnolia leaves, Italian oak, etc., which have no stem to speak of, should be kept in the same baskets in which they are received, or in boxes. In either case the air should be excluded by a wrapping of heavy paper. A layer of damp—not wet—sphagnum moss should also be kept over the leaves to preserve their freshness. These cases should then be kept in a cool, not too dry place.

If you have not the room to keep ferns, etc., in pails of water, then they may be kept in the same manner as the magnolia.

After considerable experimenting, I have found the foregoing methods the best and most practical. H. S.

TAX ON GROWING STOCK.

Attempts have been made, at various times, in various parts of the United States and with various degrees of success, to levy a tax upon the growing stock of florists. At no other time or place, however, has the movement toward such taxation been so persistent and so systematic as the present movement in Massachusetts, which was described in the Review of December 23 and December 30. Since the situation in Massachusetts is causing so much agitation and discussion throughout the country, the REVIEW's readers will naturally be interested in the following communication from Christ. Winterich, of Defiance, O., narrating his experience:

"In the spring of 1909 the auditor here undertook, of his own accord, to try to tax the local florists. The board of review called me three times to the office and asked me to list my plants for taxation, to the amount of at least $1,500, but I tried to put them off. The prosecuting attorney also wanted me to pay a tax on my plants, but I refused, until another florist yielded to them and paid $50 as a tax on his stock. Then a member of the board of review advised me to pay a tax of $100, in order to avoid a law suit. I did so, and at the same time I asked the board not to increase my assessment for the next five years. This was promised, but it remains to be seen whether the promise will be kept."

FORCING HYDRANGEAS.

There is much to be learned by the grower of a general stock in regard to the hydrangea before he can turn out stock that in any way approaches that grown by expert handlers of this plant. Articles have frequently appeared in the REVIEW telling how the gardeners on private estates handle the superb specimens seen at Newport and other places, also articles in Seasonable Suggestions telling when to lift, etc., but I do not remember reading a general article giving the method of handling from the stock plants up to their flowering pots. The average small grower cares nothing for this plant for Easter forcing, but he thinks much of it for Memorial day trade, and I think if you could give us an article covering the whole ground—sand bed to spring sales—it would be appreciated by many.

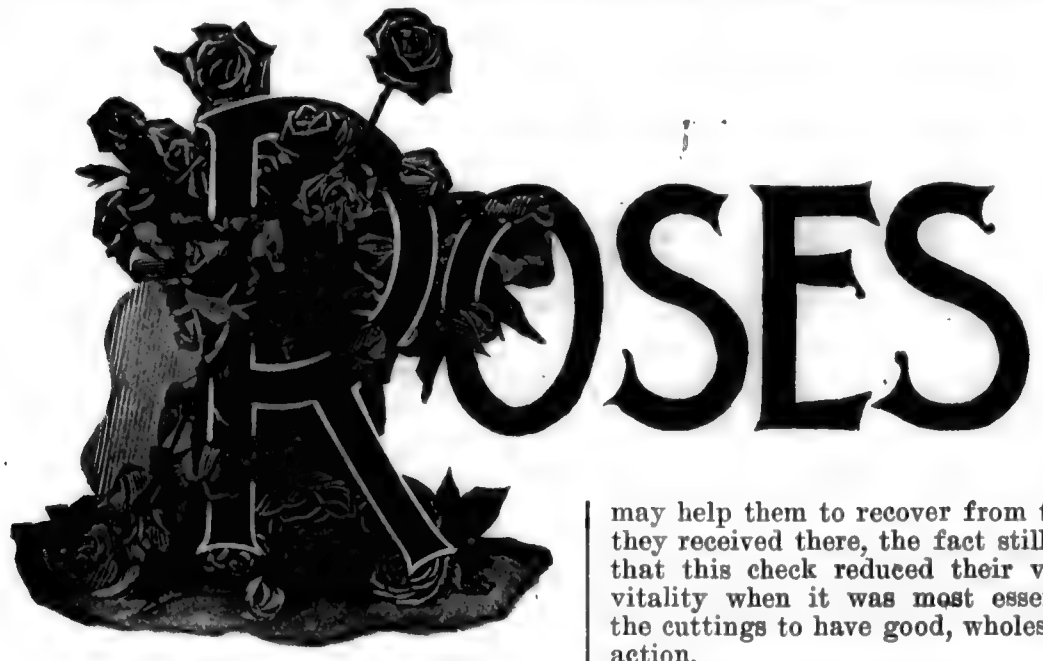
Some plants were brought past our place last spring on their way to the cemetery that bore heads of bloom larger than the pots they were growing in. How do the experts produce flowers on every shoot and we only on some? We had a batch of shapely, field-grown plants that were being held in a cool house, but a sudden drop in temperature has completely spoiled the large leaves, but not the terminal shoots in any case, which are plump and perfect. These are now in a carnation house. We want them for Memorial day. Will these make new leaves? A batch of June propagated stock that have been under glass all summer are about nine inches in height, with single stem. Will these bloom this spring? A pair of strong eyes push up through the surface of the soil at the base of the plants. Should these be rubbed off? G. F. B.

The culture of hydrangeas will be referred to from time to time in the cultural calendar of the REVIEW. As you state, these plants are more popular at Memorial day than at Easter with the average retail florist. They require considerable forcing to flower them for so early an Easter as we will have this year, and this early forced stock never approaches in quality such as are flowered later in the season. To give detailed culture of hydrangeas would require considerable space. I will boil it down for you.

Take cuttings of soft wood in January, February or March—the earlier in the season the better. These can be easily rooted in an ordinary propagating bench, such as carnations will root in. Pot off into 2½-inch or 3-inch pots when rooted. Grow along in a temperature of 48 to 50 degrees at night. If propagated early they may require a shift before they are planted outdoors, which should be when danger of frost has passed.

Choose a rich piece of ground. Apply water freely in dry weather. Early in October these plants can be lifted and placed in 7-inch and 8-inch pots. A few small ones may go in 6-inch pots. Keep outdoors for a while, but never let them get more than slight freezings. Place under glass (in a coldframe will answer) and keep drier at the root after the early part of November. The aim should be to ripen the wood to a nice brown color in full sun, with little frost. On the approach of colder weather store in a cellar or pit, which is frost-proof. They will need little water until started, but should be freely aired to prevent them from becoming moldy. Lifted plants which are wanted at Memorial day will not require any further potting, nor should they be pruned, unless it be to shorten some long shoot. If placed in heat early in March, starting with 50 degrees at night and advancing 5 to 10 degrees later in the season, they will flower when wanted. They can be advanced or retarded as wished. It is always well to open them in a lower temperature. They then have more substance and a better color. At all times while growing, hydrangeas require a lot of water and, once the pots are root-bound, liquid manure should be afforded twice a week. In this way only can big flower heads be secured. Plants should carry three to six flower heads each, any one of them of greater diameter than the pots they are growing in.

The other plan of growing hydrangeas is to keep them in pots all the time, giving them successive shifts from 4-inch to 6-inch and 6-inch to 8-inch pots and plunging them in a bed of ashes outdoors in a sunny spot, where they are within easy reach of the hose. From 6-inch pots grown thus I have had six large heads each and from 8-inch pots as many as eight to a dozen, but allowing three to six the plants will look well. Cuttings taken as late as June and carried over winter in 4-inch pots will give one mammoth head each if potted into 5-inch or 6-inch pots when started.



Well-ripened wood and plenty of water and feeding while growing are necessary for successful hydrangea culture. The time to prune the plants is after and not before flowering.

The loss of leaves on the field-grown plants will not harm them at all. If the buds are fresh and plump they are all right. Those in 4-inch pots may have a shift to 5-inch or 6-inch and will flower, probably giving one good head each. Leave the eyes at the base. They will send up some nice shoots, from which you can secure cuttings for another season's plants. C. W.

LEAFLESS ROSE PLANTS.

We are sending you by this mail one of our rose plants. We have a number that are affected this way, though not many are so bad as this one. What is the trouble with them and what is the cause and cure? We find a great many small, grayish white mites around the affected plants, and as we have sent the soil attached, you will find them. Have they anything to do with the trouble? The first sign of the disease is that the leaves begin to lose color and wilt up as though they were burnt, and then they drop off. J. W. R.

The sample did not reach me until some days after your letter. The insects had by that time made their escape. It is best to confine them in a corked bottle when sending them by mail, as they are certain to escape from a paper bag. I presume they are termites, popularly called white ants. They do not attack living tissue, but confine their depredations to dead and decaying matter.

To effect their destruction, get some bisulphide of carbon, make holes in the soil about a foot apart, pour in a few drops and then cover the holes. The fumes, being heavier than air, instead of rising will permeate the soil and kill the ants.

I could find no trace of disease in the specimen plant. The trouble seems to be poor culture. As the leaves were all gone when it reached me, I had no data to go by. The roots showed no sign of disease, but were poor for the size of the plant.

To help get the plants into good condition, give the soil a light sprinkling of wood ashes, stir the surface to the depth of one inch and water liberally. Do this at least once a week till they begin to recover, when they can have liquid food.

Keep the night temperature at 56 to 58 degrees, and the day temperature at 60 to 75 degrees, according to the sunshine. Use the syringe every bright day. Ribes.

THE PROPAGATING HOUSE.

The propagating house now requires a great deal of attention, because the quality of stock in this house leads to success or failure during the coming year, for any carelessness or neglect at this time will surely show its effects in the later condition of the plants. Many of the diseases which trouble the plants during the dark winter months are started while they are yet in the propagating bench, and though good future treatment may help them to recover from the check they received there, the fact still remains that this check reduced their vigor and vitality when it was most essential for the cuttings to have good, wholesome root action.

It takes constant attention to avoid sudden changes in temperature. Especially is this necessary when the span of the house is low and the benches are near the glass, as the cold air coming in may reach the cuttings before the temperature can be modified. It is easily seen that in a small house, with a bottom heat of from 62 to 65 degrees and a house temperature of 60 degrees, the temperature may quickly change, and it is these sudden fluctuations that cause a great deal of the trouble. So I say again, keep a constant watch on the thermometer.

The amount of moisture is also an important matter in rose propagation. The grower is required to be guided by weather conditions, but you may be on the safe side by having plenty of moisture in the air. If it is cloudy and the sand does not require water every day, put some on the walks frequently, and this will help to keep a moist atmosphere until the roots have progressed far enough to give the necessary supply.

If there has been a spell of dark weather, and then the sun comes out bright and hot, it is well to give them shade, for after a period of cloudy weather the leaves are soft and are liable to wilt if not attended to carefully.

When the cuttings are potted, the soil should be as nearly as possible of the same temperature as the sand, so as to prevent a sudden chill to the soft roots. It is practically impossible to keep the potting shed at an even temperature, for there is a constant changing of air, due to the opening and closing of doors, and therefore the young plants should not be in the shed any longer than necessary.

BAY TREES.

Please state a remedy for scale bugs on bay trees, also how to fix soil for bay trees to make them start, as I have two in bad shape. M. G. C.

I suppose the ordinary brown scale is the one troubling your bays. It is not easy to remove these from the foliage. You can syringe with water containing whale oil soap, kerosene emulsion or seal oil soap, also any of the special remedies used for San Jose scale. If you will lay your plants on their sides the day after applying it, use a hose to which a fine spray nozzle is attached and direct the pressure against the lower sides of the leaves, you will blow off many of the pests. Use the hose occasionally on your plants and scale will not trouble you much. In the winter the plants do not like fire heat, and should be kept in a cool pit. A little frost will not harm them in the least.

Bays in Belgium are grown in a black, peat-like soil. They succeed well in good fibrous loam to which is added some decayed cow dung and fine bone. Scratch away all the loose surface soil and give a liberal top-dressing if they do not need repotting or retubbing. C. W.

OUTDOOR SPRENGERI.

Can Asparagus Sprengeri be grown in the open field during the summer for the foliage, just as it is used from the greenhouse? If not, what would you suggest to grow outside for foliage to be used with cut flowers? H. H. G.

Asparagus Sprengeri grows splendidly planted out in rich soil in the field and, treated thus, will yield an abundance of greenery. Some of the thalictrums have nice foliage, which mixes in well with flowers. A row of these will provide you with quite a lot of useful foliage.

DISEASED BOSTONS.

In the Review of December 30, on page 11, I notice, under the heading, "Diseased Bostons," that C. S. desires information. I would like to suggest to C. S. that a probable cause of his trouble lies in the dusting with tobacco dust. Of course I have not seen the ferns and can only surmise as to the nature of the disease, but as W. H. T. states that the injuries appear local, and I have had plants of several kinds injured by a heavy dusting of tobacco dust left on the plants several days before being washed off, I think it is just possible that this may be the trouble with these Bostons. Fred C. Morris.

CULTURE OF FERN.

I send a specimen fern. Will you kindly inform me as to the culture of it?

M. E. H.

Grow the fern in good loam, containing a little well spent cow manure and some sand, in a shaded house where the night temperature will average 50 degrees. Ferns like a moist atmosphere. W. C.

HOW WE GROW CARNATIONS.

A Visit to the Lorch Establishment.

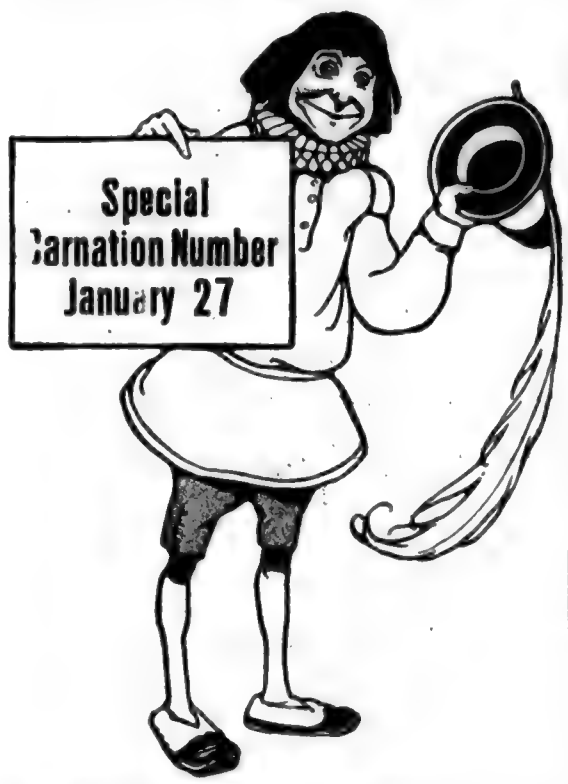
The "carnation belt" of Pittsburg runs between Sharpsburgh and Bakerstown. At least, carnations do splendidly out there and every florist in that section is making a specialty and a success of them. Oh, yes! Good carnations are also grown in other parts contiguous to the Smoky City, which you will see when you come here to the carnation convention this month.

One of the largest and most successful growers out there is Albert Lorch. The firm is A. T. Lorch & Co., of De Haven. His crop is in splendid form just now, and he is anxious that distant growers shall visit him convention week. Albert's father was a popular German minister in Pittsburg, but from his childhood the boy had a pronounced fondness for flowers and gardening, and in his early teens he set actively and practically to work in the business. He worked for me for several years, and right proud I am of him today, his application to the business, and the success he has made of it.

Among his neighbors are John L. Wyland, or "Uncle John," as we fondly know him; S. J. Hatch, another of my old workmen, and F. H. Westhoff. They all make a specialty of carnations and a success of them. As the soil and situations of all of them are much the same and the varieties they grow and methods of cultivation are about alike, I have asked Mr. Lorch to tell you how he handles his crop, and this will practically answer for all. He says:

"We have twenty-one acres of land at Allison Park, on the B. & O. railroad, ten miles from Pittsburg and fifteen minutes' walk from the depot. Or you can reach it by the Butler short line trolley cars from Pittsburg, stopping at Sample Station. We have seven greenhouses, and all are devoted to carnations. One house is 40x300, two are 22x300, one is 30x130, one 16x120, one 12x100 and a lean-to 10x40. Our heating plant consists of one 125 horse-power and one eighty horse-power boiler, and two return tilting steam traps. As fuel we use slack and coal, also natural gas.

"We grow about 30,000 plants, mostly Lawson, Winsor, Beacon, Perfection, Enchantress, White Enchantress and some Afterglow. The Lawsons do fine with us. We have dropped Sarah Hill and Lloyd. We also buy and try about 100 each of what appear to us the most promising new sorts each year.



"We begin propagating early in December, using an ordinary bench for this purpose. First, we clean the bench and scald it with hot lime, then place one inch of rough cinders on it, then one inch of fine cinders on top of this, then three inches of clean, sharp river or bank sand on top of all, tamping it firmly. I find the best cuttings are those from the flower stems, and the best time to take them when the flower buds are showing color. These we insert in the sand in rows two and one-half inches apart and one-half inch asunder in the rows. Don't let warm sunshine reach them. Temperature about 50 degrees. When rooted we pot them into 2¼-inch pots, and, later, shift from these into 3-inch pots. We prefer this method to planting at once into flats or benches.

"As soon after April 1 as weather conditions permit we plant out the young stock from the pots to the field; if properly hardened off before being set out, a slight frost won't hurt them in the least. We plant in rows twenty-eight inches apart and eleven inches asunder in the rows. This gives plenty of room for using a horse cultivator between the rows, a boy leading the horse, and we cultivate in this way once a week, and hoe between the plants once in two weeks.

"We prepare the soil in the field by giving it a heavy dressing of cow manure in the fall, plowing it in and letting it lie in the rough until spring, then replow, harrow, smoothen and line off for planting. For greenhouse use we prepare the soil in the same way in the fall, and repeat the manuring, plowing in spring, and bring indoors in June.

"We begin planting in the greenhouses July 5 and stay at it with all our strength until it is finished. We ventilate freely, for carnations like lots of fresh air. And as near as practicable our temperatures run from 50 to 56 degrees.

"In fumigating, for some years we have been using hydrocyanic acid gas exclusively, and find the C. P. grades are the only ones to use. We have used the commercial grade, but got poor results. For a house 22x300 we use one-half gallon earthen glazed crocks, which we space every twenty-five feet in both center walks. In these we place one and one-half inches of water and one and one-half ounces sulphuric acid C. P. The cyanide comes in crystal form, which we first pulverize, then place two ounces in a tissue paper poke, one for each crock, which two men take to the far end of the house. Then they start to return, each in his respective walk containing the crocks, and drop one in each crock as they pass it. In this way they get none of the deadly fumes, and can get out quickly. Of course it is understood that the house is tightly closed. The best time to do this work is in the evening of a calm day. Great care must be taken with the following varieties, which will burn readily if the fumes used are too strong: Beacon, Perfection and Afterglow." WM. FALCONER.

WITHERED LEAVES AND BLOOMS

I am mailing you a box containing specimens of carnation blossoms and foliage. Kindly inform me what the trouble is.

A great many of the blossoms wither in the bud or open only the outside petals. The trouble first showed itself by the ends of the leaves on the new shoots taking on a dried, dead appearance, like the enclosed samples. When the bud appeared it looked all right until the petals began to show; then they would begin to wither. The trouble was first noticed on the Red Lawson, but spread to all varieties, including White Perfection, Enchantress, etc. The plants looked fine when benched and sent up a fine crop of buds, and no trouble was apparent until about the middle or latter part of November. There is no sign of spot on the plants.

I have grown carnations for nine years and have never had any trouble from disease of any kind until last year, when the plants showed in the late fall this dying at the ends of the leaves, but they seemed to grow out of this and there was no withering of the buds. I gave them careful cultivation and was careful in the selection of cuttings for this year. Is this year's trouble a continuation of last year's by using cuttings from those plants, or is it some deficiency in the soil? My soil was made up in the fall of 1908, of garden loam, manure (mostly cow manure), ashes and lime in the usual proportions. Will it be safe to propagate from these plants for next year?

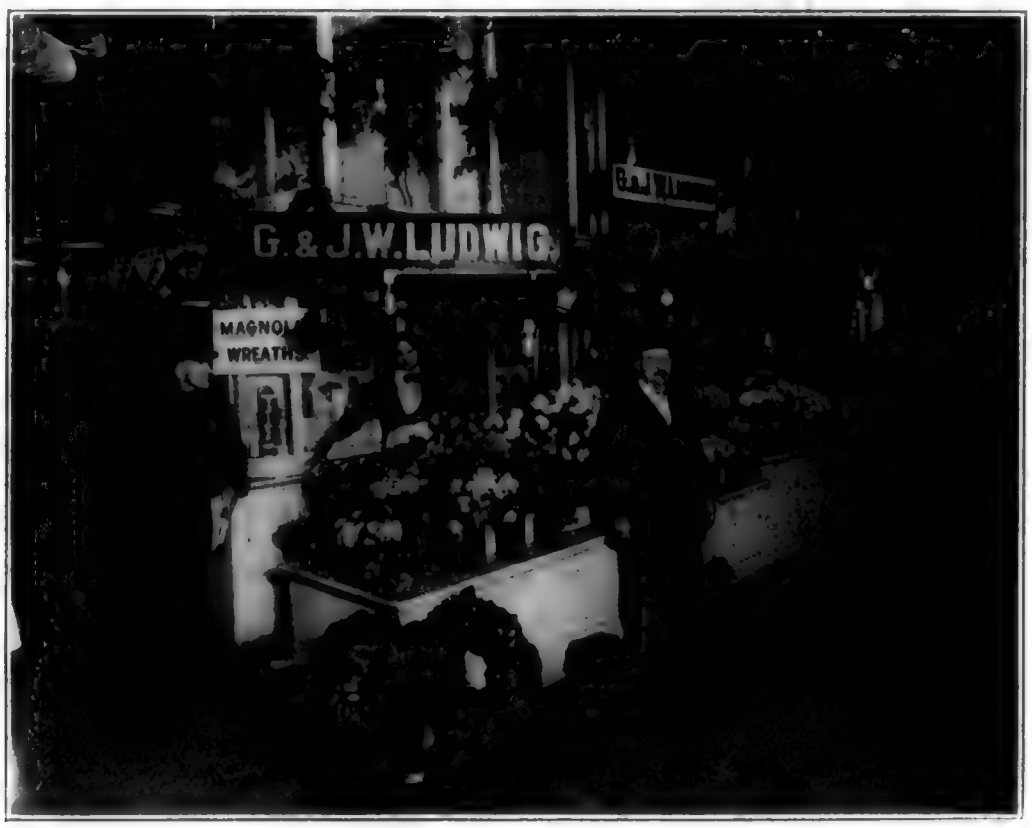
I. L.

The specimens forwarded were in such a frozen condition that they disclosed nothing from which one could form any opinion regarding your trouble. From your letter, however, I would judge your trouble to be fairy ring or a kindred disease. The dried ends of the petals of the blooms may be caused by thrips, but they would not cause the ends of the leaves to dry up as you describe.

For the thrips I would suggest spraying regularly with one of the nicotine extracts two or three times each week until you get the upper hand. After that, once each week will be enough to keep them in check.

For the other disease, you should spray with Bordeaux mixture about once each week until the trouble disappears. You can buy this mixture in gallon lots ready for use, from your supply house. It does not pay the average grower to bother with preparing his own, when he can get it so conveniently.

You need not hesitate to use cuttings from these plants for propagating, providing they do not show any sign of the disease. A. F. J. B.



I FIND the REVIEW a cheer-up when one has the blues.—GEORGE SCHUBERT, West Hoboken, N. J.

CROP COMES SLOWLY.

Will you kindly tell me why my carnations do not bloom? The variety is Daybreak. The temperature is kept as near 50 to 55 degrees as possible. The soil is fresh compost, composed of one-half rotted manure and one-half loamy sod, rotted. They are on raised benches without much bottom heat. I have fed with liquid manure, and at last have top-dressed with fine manure. The plants are all healthy in looks and loaded with big buds, showing color, but that is all. They seem to have stood still for about three weeks. I spray a little each morning, just to keep the soil moist. C. A. S.

Your carnations' failure to come along as rapidly as might be desired might possibly be attributed to a natural decrepitude resultant from old age. It is now just about nineteen years since Daybreak was disseminated, and we thought it had died a natural death some six or eight years ago. It is at least that long since it has passed out of the wholesale markets, to give way to Enchantress and a few other varieties of the same color.

But to the point. With your plants in the condition you describe, I can hardly suggest any method by which you might hurry them along, without danger of causing splitting, etc. It frequently happens that a grower becomes impatient for a crop to come on, especially when blooms are in big demand. At such times it does seem as though the plants stood still, although they may be developing quite naturally. Cloudy weather, after prolonged bright weather, will sometimes cause slow development until the plants adjust themselves to the weather conditions. If the soil happens to be dry at the bottom the same trouble will result. A. F. J. B.

SUPERPHOSPHATE OF LIME.

Kindly let me know the everyday name for superphosphate of lime and where I can purchase it. I understand it is good for sweet peas. R. G.

I do not know of any other name for superphosphate of lime, although it may have some local appellation.

This is the formula for its manufacture: One pound of bone dust, twelve ounces of sulphuric acid (oil of vitriol) and twelve ounces of water, if mixed and left to act upon each other for twenty-four hours, form superphosphate of lime. Applied as a top-dressing, mixed with half its weight of charcoal dust, it is quite beneficial to sweet peas. It should be applied at the rate of six pounds to the square rod. Superphosphate of lime should be procurable from dealers in agricultural and horticultural fertilizers.

RIBES.

BAD EFFECTS OF TAR FUMES.

We are having some serious trouble in a greenhouse which we built last summer. The house is 16x140. One side wall is seven feet high, with four feet of glass; the other is four feet high, with sixteen inches of glass. The house is benched and we used considerable coal tar on the boards, to prevent rotting. These boards were quite well dried before the house was closed in. The trouble is that the blooms fade on the plants as soon as they begin to open. The plants grown here are cyclamens, Primula obconica and Chinese primroses. Of these the worst affected are the obconicas, and next the Chinese primroses, while the cyclamens stand it best and a considerable percentage of them are unaffected. Recently we shifted a nice batch of geraniums into this house from a slightly higher temperature, and all the fine blooms faded at once.

Could you tell us the reason? We blame the fumes from the tar and are proceeding to give all the exposed tar a coat of whitewash, made of fresh lime. Do you think this advisable or could you suggest something else? We shall be grateful for any help in the matter. J. S. & S.

From the fact that coal tar was used upon the bench lumber, it is practically certain that this is the cause of all the trouble, especially as the behavior of the plants is similar to what has been observed in many houses where tar has been used.

I have never seen a house in which coal tar has been used to any extent, either upon the heating pipes or benches, in which it was possible to grow plants successfully, whatever pains might be taken to correct the difficulty. Scraping, painting and coating with cement and other materials seem to have little or no effect in getting rid of the trouble, and even when the effort has been kept up for years it has not been possible to grow plants that would be creditable.

The best thing to do is to take out everything about the house that has coal tar upon it. While tar can be burned off from iron, this remedy would not give satisfaction when upon wood.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SUCCESS WITH JONES MUMS.

Each year a class is provided for the Mrs. Jerome Jones chrysanthemum at the Boston exhibition, the interest from a special fund providing the prizes. Without saying anything deprecatory of the many fine white varieties introduced since the advent of Mrs. Jerome Jones over twenty years ago, it is safe to say that none of them are superior to and few the equal of that grand old variety when well done. A large vase of it at the last Boston show was more admired than any other. Having a rigid stem and magnificent foliage carried right up to the flower, its pure white, incurved blooms possess a beauty quite lacking in some of the newer introductions.

Thomas Howden, of Whitinsville, a successful mum grower, has particular success with this fine chrysanthemum, and has captured quite a number of premiums with both the white and yellow forms in Boston. He uses the same compost as for his other varieties. He believes the trouble most growers experience results from keeping it too cool. He has grown them in both boxes and pots, but got the finest flowers from the pots. After giving them their final shift he places them on an end bench in the rose house, where they do much better than when grown cool with other sorts in the chrysanthemum house.

Last season he grew some in 9-inch pots and others in boxes in a cool house all the season, but they were absolute failures. The best he ever had were in 7-inch pots, which were fed heavily. If propagated late, Mrs. Jerome Jones is not a success. James Nicol, of Quincy, makes a specialty of this chrysanthemum, and his flowers are an eye-opener to those who are under the delusion that because Mrs. Jerome Jones is old it is a back number. I believe when well grown it will give the commercial grower more money than any other variety, with the possible exception of Jeanne Nonin, which flowers a little later and realizes a good price at Thanksgiving.

NOT GOOD INDOOR STOCK.

Are the following chrysanthemums of good commercial quality as cut flowers: S. Grunerwald, Parisiana White, Goacher and Carrie? What date should the buds be taken? I live in the northeastern part of Oregon. F. C. P.

Oregon is a long distance from New Jersey and, though I will try to answer F. C. P.'s inquiry in good faith, my information may not help him much.

These varieties will not make long-stemmed commercial flowers, such as the American public has been accustomed to buying. They have much the same habit and style of growth as some varieties that I distributed last year, namely, the Mary Masse family, Louis Lemaire, Coronation, Goacher's Crimson, etc. These varieties are early flowering, but they are not amenable to the style of culture generally given a chrysanthemum with us. It is almost impossible to get them to break again after the bud has been pinched out, and to get them to run up, making long stems, three feet or more in length. Grown as pot plants, however, or planted out in the garden and allowed to grow pretty much as they choose after the first pinching, they will flower profusely and give good satisfaction.

I cannot see why F. C. P. cannot grow these varieties outdoors and have good success with them. I had splendid success with Goacher's Crimson, Horace Martin, White Quintus and Marie Masse, planted outside early in May and allowed to follow their own sweet will. They were a solid mass of flowers from the middle of September onward, and while the individual stems were short, the quantity of flowers produced was prodigious. I have tried Grunerwald and Carrie inside without success here in New Jersey, but, as I have suggested, I believe they would do well outside in such a climate as I imagine Oregon to have.

There is no question as to what date the buds should be taken, because they will be producing buds right along after the first part of May. The early buds will blast and will never develop, but the buds produced in August will nearly always come good. C. H. TOTTY.

BULBOUS STOCK FOR SPRING.

Can tulips, jonquils, narcissi and hyacinths that were planted in the open ground in the fall produce flowers of good enough quality for funeral work, etc., the following spring? I live in the northeastern part of Oregon. F. C. P.

Yes, flowers produced on any of the aforementioned bulbs will be of just as fine quality as are produced under glass. Flowers can be kept cleaner under glass, and retarded, which is not possible with those grown outdoors. Occasionally heavy wind and rain storms will damage the outdoor stock in some measure, but you can depend on their producing flowers of excellent quality. C. W.

THE ACORN.

"Great oaks from little acorns grow," and if there is any part of the country in which the flower business is increasing faster than in another it is in the great southwest, from whence comes the accompanying illustration of the residence, grounds and greenhouse of Mrs. L. E. Wheeler. Mrs. Wheeler is located at El Campo, Tex., and styles her place the Sunset Greenhouses. She did not find that the Christmas trade called for the fifty-dollar plant combinations the New York retail florists tell about, but she nevertheless had an excellent trade, and says the business is growing steadily. While cut flowers are not called for except for special occasions, the plant trade is growing steadily. The western country is rapidly filling up, and prosperity soon comes to most of the settlers. As soon as necessities are provided for, comforts come into demand, and the florist begins to feel the increase.

Occasionally heavy wind and rain storms will damage the outdoor stock in some measure, but you can depend on their producing flowers of excellent quality. C. W.

THE ACORN.

"Great oaks from little acorns grow," and if there is any part of the country in which the flower business is increasing faster than in another it is in the great southwest, from whence comes the accompanying illustration of the residence, grounds and greenhouse of Mrs. L. E. Wheeler. Mrs. Wheeler is located at El Campo, Tex., and styles her place the Sunset Greenhouses. She did not find that the Christmas trade called for the fifty-dollar plant combinations the New York retail florists tell about, but she nevertheless had an excellent trade, and says the business is growing steadily. While cut flowers are not called for except for special occasions, the plant trade is growing steadily. The western country is rapidly filling up, and prosperity soon comes to most of the settlers. As soon as necessities are provided for, comforts come into demand, and the florist begins to feel the increase.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Azaleas.

"When shall I start my azaleas so that they will flower for Easter?" That is the substance of many queries now. Everything depends upon the temperature which can be given them and the varieties being grown. Deutsche Perle, for instance, will flower in a cool house, and so will Hexe, Mme. Petrick, Apollo and Vervæneana. Six weeks from start to finish suffices to flower azaleas in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. Provided this heat is not at command, it will be better to start the plants by the first part of February. The varieties naturally late flowering should be placed in heat before the naturally early ones.

Acacia Armata.

Acacia armata, while not sold in anything like the quantities of azaleas, ramblers and some other plants, is always in fair demand at Easter. Provided the plants are being held cool, it would be well to place them where they can have some fire heat about January 20. Acacias will not stand forcing like azaleas, and a night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees is quite high enough. Grown thus, they will open slowly and possess far more substance than if forced. A. Riceana, A. heterophylla, A. Baileyana, the beautiful A. pubescens and other varieties all bloom naturally in February and March and will only require a cool, sunny house to be in their prime in late March.

Hydrangeas.

Already the earliest hydrangeas are making rapid growth and have required spacing more than once. Let them have an abundant water supply and see that green aphis is not allowed to lodge in the ends of the young growths. We do not like the temperature to exceed 50 to 52 degrees for the first few weeks, but as the flower heads show, 60 degrees or even 65 degrees at night can be given to hurry them along.

The number of hydrangeas flowered for Easter is trivial by comparison with those grown for Memorial day sales. Plants should be kept cool and somewhat dry for the latter holiday; just clear of freezings, and a dry atmosphere is what they want for some weeks yet.

Shamrocks.

There is only ten days between St. Patrick's day and Easter this year. While the extra demand for flowers on the former date is not yet very considerable, it increases each year and is well worth catering for. The sales of shamrock plants now number many thousands each season. From one or two specialists who had the field to themselves for a year or two, more and more are now dabbling in their culture. These clovers want a cool house. A temperature such as suits mignonette or violets is right for them. They sell best in small pots and pans and should be placed in these before the end of January. Use a light compost with considerable sand and some old hotbed or mushroom manure added to it.

Marguerites.

Discontinue all pinching where the marguerites are wanted for Easter trade. They should have their final potting about the end of January. Where well potbound, the water supply must be generous, and liquid manure or a scattering of a highly concentrated chemical fertilizer once a week will keep them toned up nicely. A temperature of 50 degrees at night should not be exceeded. This is a good time to take a batch of cuttings where nice, bushy plants in 6-inch pots are wanted for Memorial day or June sales.

Show Pelargoniums.

Growth on show pelargoniums becomes accelerated with the turn of the year and the plants will need spreading out once a week, and as the pots fill with roots rapidly any potting should be attended to from time to time. It will not pay to attempt flowering any of these for so early an Easter as the next will be. If wanted at Memorial day there is still time to pinch back the stronger shoots to keep the heads symmetrical, but for April flowering pinching must be discontinued. A cool, light and freely ventilated house is what these showy plants revel in.

Lilies.

The present winter is giving us some abnormally low temperatures. On many days the solar heat has been barely noticeable and, with much snow on the roofs, growth on the lilies has been rather slow. It will take considerable forcing to get the giganteum type of longiflorums in season. Provided these are now six inches or over in height, they are all right if given 60 degrees at night until buds show, and after that time 5 to 10 degrees more, according to the chances of securing them by March 27.

Be careful not to water lilies too freely in the early stages of growth. It is the fertile cause of much so-called disease. When once in active growth, with the pots filled with roots, they take an abundant water supply. Lilies are an erratic crop. Leaving disease out of the question, there is always the probability of the plants flowering two months apart, unless the tardy ones are forced and the earlier ones retarded. February will soon be here, and if buds are showing by the first part of that month they can easily be held for Easter. It should be possible to see buds not later than the middle of the month to be sure of their being in season.

Spiraeas.

It will be better to start spiræas at once to be sure of having them well open for Easter. Under a stage will answer all right for the first fortnight. Then give them a side stage in a house where 55 to 60 degrees at night is maintained. More heat can be given if they are likely to be backward. You cannot overwater these plants, and you should never fumigate them unless it be in mild doses, the foliage being somewhat tender.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The continued cold and disagreeable weather was undoubtedly the cause of the inactivity in local business since New Year's. While there was considerable funeral work, still, with a liberal supply of stock in all lines, it was not enough to cut much of a figure. Roses and violets were equal to demand. Carnations of the poorer grades were at times too plentiful. The stevia supply is diminishing, while bulbous stock is coming in more heavily. The shorter stemmed Beauties are more in demand than the longer ones. Sweet peas are not any too plentiful.

The continued dark weather in December is making its effects noticeable now, for it is stated that with most carnation growers fully one-third of the cut consists of splits.

Club Meeting.

Although the weather was extremely cold, quite a number attended the club meeting held January 6, and it was the most spirited one in some time. President Dallwig called the meeting to order, and, after the routine work was completed, he called on Fred Holton to act as master of ceremonies and install the officers for 1910. This he did in a most acceptable manner.

After N. Zweifel, president-elect, took the chair, a lengthy discussion regarding the 1910 flower show took place. After a lot of matters were adjusted to the satisfaction of all, the chair named a committee to look after the guarantee list, which this year will undoubtedly be signed by members of the club only.

It was also voted, lest they might forget, to send an invitation to the American Carnation Society, which meets in Pittsburg the latter part of this month, to convene in Milwaukee in 1911. President Zweifel, who is an ardent member of the society, urged everyone to attend who could possibly get away.

The following were appointed on the standing entertainment committee for 1910: G. Rusch, chairman; Fred Holton, Wm. Zimmermann and G. H. Hunkel.

In view of the fact that the club has a comparatively small number of members, it was voted, at an extra meeting the same night, that the club would pay the initiation fees of all members whose names would be taken up at the February meeting. So there is no reason why a whole lot of employees and others should not become members at that time.

Various Notes.

August Poehlmann, of Morton Grove, Ill., called on several growers on Thursday, January 6, and spent the evening with his mother, who lives in our city. He expressed himself as well satisfied with the stock he saw.

Alex. Klokner, of Wauwatosa, vice-president-elect of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, left January 5 for California. He intends to be gone about six weeks.

Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, is mourning the loss of a fine strip of trees, which up to a short time ago adorned and protected the north side of his property. This has been purchased by the Northwestern railroad, which is building a belt line to the west. With the disappearance of the woodland, which was not his property, Mr. Zweifel anticipates an increase in the coal bill from now on.

Word was received from Watertown, Wis., January 9 that the aged mother of the Loeffler brothers, who supply the local market with extra fine violets, had died. The funeral took place January 11, with interment at Watertown.

At the office of the C. C. Pollworth Co. they say that they do not risk sending many plants these days. The heavy snowfall early last week caused their own stock to come in three hours later than usual.

Visitors: Otto Sylvester, Oconomowoc, Wis.; Mrs. Hinchliffe, Racine, Wis.; R. Alberts, La Crosse, Wis.

While reports from all around us speak of prospective coal famines, the coal men in our city gave out the news that there is still plenty of coal in local yards.

DETROIT.

The Market.

If the first half of the first month in the year is any criterion, then 1910 will be a banner year. So far business has been most satisfactory.

Good stock is immediately taken off the hands of the commission men, and the prices received for it are satisfactory to all concerned.

Club Meeting.

Considering the importance of the subject for discussion, the meeting of the club on Monday evening, January 3, was poorly attended. There was a decided drop in the temperature during the afternoon, with a gale blowing from the north. This, no doubt, was what kept the growers at home, or rather at the greenhouses.

The subject of the evening was a discussion on having a fall flower show. After considerable debating, a motion was made by Robert Rahaley that we hold a show sometime next November and that committees be immediately appointed to go ahead with the arrangements. Some of the florists were in favor of laying the whole matter over until the next meeting night, but when the question was put the ayes won.

The committees appointed are as follows. Perhaps some changes may be made, should some of the members refuse to serve, but it is hardly possible that any will do so, as we have a list of willing workers:

Arrangement: William Dilger, chairman; E. A. Fetters, Albert Pochelon, Fred Breitmeyer, W. Taepke.
Premium: Michael Bloy, chairman; Herman Knope, W. B. Brown, Robert Klagge.
Finance: Albert Pochelon, chairman; J. F. Sullivan, Frank Danzer, August Von Boeselager.
Entertainment: E. A. Scribner, chairman; Robert Rahaley, Thomas Browne, J. K. Stock.
Publicity: Frank Danzer, chairman; J. F. Sullivan, Hugo Schroeter.

John P. Kahl was unanimously elected a member of the club.

Various Notes.

It is a question whether the fad of wearing the costly artificial flowers which were so popular in the early part of the winter cuts much figure with the sale of the fresh stock. In this city this fad has already received its death knell, at least among the better class of people. It was not long before the millinery stores started catering to this business, and all kinds of cheap imitations of flowers were seen on the streets. This naturally killed the sale of the really good artificial flowers. The writer is of the opinion that this fad has but served to increase the habit of wearing flowers, and now we florists are deriving the benefit.

B. Schroeter cut the first Formosa lilies January 2. Mr. Schroeter thinks pretty well of this lily for use as a cut flower. It is quite substantial, the petals being like leather. Coming along just when the cold storage lilies are through and before the giganteums, it fills this gap nicely.

Mrs. J. F. Sullivan is still on the sick list. She has been ailing for some time, and it is doubtful if she will be able to take her accustomed place in the store any more this season.

Neatly printed cards distributed throughout the potting sheds and offices of E. D. Smith & Co., in Adrian, bear the following words: "Work and play are both essential to mankind, but cannot be combined without impeding progress and marring pleasure; hence the old adage, 'Work while you work, play while you play.' Accuracy is the most important function of all work and is only attained by concentrated thought upon the object in view."

R. H. Ellis, of Leamington, Ont., has just installed a new eighty-five horsepower tubular steam boiler, to take care of the thirteen houses now in course of erection.

Honorable Philip Breitmeyer spent several days in New York the latter part of last week as the guest of the automobile men of that city.

Herman Klagge, son of Robert Klagge, is just recovering from a severe attack of scarlet fever.

A dancing party for the members of the Detroit Florists' Club and their friends is scheduled to take place at Harmonie hall this evening, January 13, and I think I am safe in prophesying that everyone will have a fine time. These parties are an annual affair with the club, and are looked forward to with great pleasure by the old members as well as the young.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The business done among local florists since the holidays has not been any too large. Besides funeral work there is little doing among the downtown florists, or those north and south. In the west end they say that a few weddings, balls, receptions and dinners have kept them fairly busy.

The wholesale market was well supplied last week, and one could get almost everything in season and as much of it as he wanted. Roses of all varieties are especially plentiful. Killarney, Beauty and Richmond are coming in fine. These are selling for about half what they were ten days ago. Violets are coming in more plentifully, and are down to 50 cents to 75 cents per hundred. The bright weather brought in heavy consignments from Kirkwood. Carnations, too, are more than the demand calls for, and are selling at cheap prices.

Bulbous stock is abundant. Lilies, however, are not overplentiful. Smilax and asparagus had a big call last week. Other greens also sell well.

Various Notes.

W. H. Kruse, at 2846 Arsenal street, had quite a loss by fire last week, it destroying the stable, delivery wagon and two storm buggies. The timely arrival of Mr. Kruse saved his three horses. His loss is nearly $800, partly covered by insurance. No damage was done to the greenhouses.

William H. Hill, of L. Baumann & Co., Chicago, spent a few days here last week.

The Kahrs Floral Co. has given up its store at Sixth and Locust streets. It is reported that they will reopen at the corner of Sarah and St. Louis avenues.

A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill., is consigning some extra fine Killarney and Richmond roses to this market.

The Academy of Science has elected Prof. William Trelease, director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, its president for the year of 1910.

Miss Matilda Meinhardt, president of the Ladies' Society of the S. A. F., called a meeting of all the local members of the society at the Washington hotel, Monday, January 10.

Charles Beyer did a fine decoration of plants at the opening of the large wholesale shoe house of Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Co., last week. There were more than fifty floral pieces sent by the many friends of the firm.

Walter Weber, who has charge of the greenhouses of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., is sending in an extra fine cut of carnations to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

There are quite a few applications for the office of park superintendent, left vacant by the death of George Ostertag.

The National Clock & Electric Mfg. Co. will show one of its differential temperature alarm clocks at the Florists' Club meeting this week and demonstrate its workings.

W. C. Young and his son, John, returned home Saturday, January 8, from their trip to New Orleans. They visited Florida on their return trip and report a splendid time.

Jabez Gadd, one of the old-timers, has returned to the city and is now in the employ of the Eggeling Floral Co.

C. Young & Sons Co. furnished the big Imperial ball at the St. Louis Club last week. The Ellison Floral Co. is furnishing the big, fashionable mask ball at the St. Louis Club this week, both the largest events in society this season.

The new officers of the Engelman Botanical Club are: President, H. P. Chandler; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Fullgraf. Their New Year's meeting took place January 10 in the botanical laboratory hall of the Central high school. Dr. R. R. Gates presented "The Structure of the Plant Cell," with lantern slides. The attendance was large and the first meeting in the New Year was an interesting one.

J. J. B.

WOBURN, MASS.—A storehouse attached to a greenhouse on the estate of Charles A. Sanborn, 309 Washington street, was destroyed by fire January 5.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—Burt & Coggan, who have greenhouses on South avenue and a store in the Arcade building, will open a store also at 11 West Main street, in this city. The new store will be one of the finest establishments in southern Michigan and will be used as the firm's headquarters, while the Arcade store will be continued as a branch. Their holiday trade was the largest in their experience, and the present outlook is most encouraging.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg, Pa.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

THE REVIEW brings results.

COLLECTIONS are said to be good.

DID you send each debtor a statement of account January 1?

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending the REVIEW $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE REVIEW frequently receives perfectly legitimate inquiries from those whose modesty prompts them to omit name, address or other mark by which they can be identified. Anonymous inquiries never are noticed. But one to hand this week contains 50 cents to pay for a reply, with no means of identifying the sender. If that party will supply name and address, the money will be returned.

COUNCIL OF HORTICULTURE.

There will be a meeting of the National Council of Horticulture at the Auditorium Annex, Chicago, January 17, 1910, at 10 o'clock a. m., to arrange details for next year's work. All interested in exploiting horticulture along broad lines, or in other matters properly belonging to the work of the Council, are invited to coöperate. It is earnestly hoped there will be a good attendance.

H. C. IRISH, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

H. McK. Twombly.

Hamilton McKown Twombly, capitalist and railroad man, died January 11 at his home in Madison, N. J., after a long illness. Mr. Twombly married Adele Vanderbilt, the daughter of William H. Vanderbilt, and for many years was an active figure in the direction of the Vanderbilt railroad interests. He was a director in forty railroad and other corporations.

Mr. Twombly was a patron of horticulture and was engaged, at the time of his death, in a large landscape undertaking at his estate in Madison, where Arthur Herrington is superintendent, and where a part of the glass operated by Charles H. Totty is located.

Mrs. Josephine Garland.

Mrs. Josephine Garland, wife of the late Solomon Garland, died Friday, January 7, at 715 Buckingham place, Chicago, the residence of her son-in-law, Fred Wittbold.

Mrs. Garland was 69 years of age, and was well known to the older generation of florists in and about Chicago. Solomon Garland was for years, in the early days of the industry, a leading grower for the Chicago market, and it was because of his establishment, and those of his sons, that Des Plaines became a well-known center in cut flower production. Mrs. Garland was the mother of Warren, Frank, George, Solomon, Jr., Mrs. Percy Jones and Mrs. Fred Wittbold, all the sons being growers except George, who is a greenhouse builder, and the daughters being the wives of florists, Mrs. Jones now conducting the wholesale commission business of her late husband.

The funeral was held at the old family home at Des Plaines, Ill., on the afternoon of January 10, and was largely attended, there being many flowers.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market was completely frozen up in the middle and latter part of last week and, in spite of moderating weather, there has been no great change this week, although conditions are slowly improving.

It is not often that business is as light in this market as it was during the below-zero days of last week. The cold was so severe and has been so long continued that nothing more than the necessary things were done by anyone, meaning an almost complete suspension of the flower business. Shipping fell away to a lighter volume than at any time this season, and the city trade was confined to a few good jobs for the retailers who cater to the social element, and to funeral work for the rank and file. About the only stock for which there was any real demand was white roses, and there was an accumulation in almost all other lines. The average prices made by carnations would hardly compare with those made in midsummer or during the time of the spring glut, and Beauties seldom have sold lower than they did last week.

The supply of stock was not large for the season, the accumulation being almost entirely due to the absence of demand. Hardly any of the flower stands about town have been operating, and these stands under favorable conditions sell an enormous quantity of stock. They are able to move large quantities at moderate prices, and they give a strength to the market which is not thoroughly appreciated until a time comes when this support is withdrawn. Then the necessity for these stands is brought out in sharp relief.

As the weather has become warmer there has been a little improvement in demand, but trade still is light and the supply in excess of the requirements. All the wholesalers feel, however, that as soon as the weather gets warm enough for people to get about in some comfort there will be a prompt increase in business and that the market will advance sharply to somewhere near seasonable values; all that is needed to tone the market up is a place to put the surplus, such as the Greek stands afford.

Beauties are in extremely large supply, of splendid quality and selling at as low prices as ever were recorded in January. Other roses are in comparatively light crop. The call for funeral work is making a good demand for short roses, and these sell relatively better than the longer grades. It is the long, fancy stock, especially of Killarney, that is moving slowly and failing to realize the price it should have. Carnations are not in specially large supply, but there are many more than the demand has required—in fact, carnations have been the wholesaler's principal problem, and some extremely low averages have been made. Violets also have suffered severely during the unusually cold weather. The demand is so largely for corsage wear that when people cannot go on the streets the sale is limited. Quality is excellent, and many retailers have been making funeral work

Fine Stock

A supply to warrant our pushing to secure new customers

Our supply is the largest and finest in the history of our house; we are doing a splendid business, but there still are buyers who might deal with us to their own profit, and the size of our supply warrants us in addressing these specially. We want your business, or a share of it. Give us part of your orders and compare our stock and our service with what you get elsewhere.

Killarney

We are especially strong on this best selling of all roses. Large cuts of a quality that leaves nothing to be desired. All lengths, but particularly heavy on select, the grade the average store uses in greatest quantity.

Beauties

Summer and winter, in season and out, year after year, we have the best Beauties in this market, and the steadiest supply.

Carnations

We want to hear from the buyers who use fancy Carnations in large lots; we can handle these orders as easily as smaller ones.

Violets

We are doing a splendid business on Violets because the buyers would rather have our Violets than any others.

Miscellaneous Stock

Sweet Peas in pink, white and lavender; excellent Jonquils; plenty of Easter Lilies, Callas, Stevia, Freesias, Paper Whites, Romans and Tulips, but the latter still are short in stem. Green goods of every kind; finest Fancy Ferns

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

We handle the "Chicago Market Brand" exclusively. Mr. Bruns is recognized as the leading commercial grower of Valley in the west. Many leading stores will use no other. We can supply any quantity.

of violets because they could buy stock so cheaply.

Callas are in lighter supply than usual at this date, but Easter lilies are again plentiful. Tulips still are limited to short Proserpine and a few yellow, and go slowly. Jonquils are selling fairly well. Now and then there is a flurry in Romans, the result of a run of funeral work. Freesia seems to sell well in limited quantity. Paper Whites are doing a little better than they did earlier in the season. Sweet peas are not yet much of a factor, but give promise of popularity as soon as the crop comes on. Valley sells steadily.

The greens market is quiet, but there are light supplies of asparagus strings and smilax. A little increase in the demand and these will prove short.

Benthey-Coatsworth Co. Retires.

The market was taken by surprise January 10 by the announcement of the retirement of the Benthey-Coatsworth Co., which has done a wholesale commission cut flower business in the Atlas block since 1898. It appears from the statement of L. Coatsworth, president of the company, that the matter has been in contemplation for some time, but it was not until January 5 that a determination was reached, and the store was closed January 9. Mr. Coatsworth states that the affairs of the company will be wound up and the charter surrendered.

The principal consignor of the Benthey-Coatsworth Co. was Frederick J. Benthey & Co., New Castle, Ind., who have the greenhouse establishment built and formerly conducted by L. Coatsworth. This consists of eleven houses, something over 100,000 feet of glass, practically all in roses, the varieties being Beauty, Killarney, Richmond, Maid and Bride, with a few greens and one or two other items. Beginning January 10, this stock was consigned to Kyle & Foerster, making an important addition to their supplies. F. F. Benthey also will be associated with Kyle & Foerster.

Payne in Bankruptcy.

Henry Payne, Hinsdale, Ill., filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States district court January 7. The same day he cut all the salable greens in his houses and let the fires go out. The liabilities scheduled total $10,400, the assets $10,100. All but about $3,090 of the liabilities are secured by mortgage on his real estate. The unsecured creditors are coal men, seedsmen,

An Aphine Test

On Sweet Peas and Double Violets

Violets and Sweet Peas a Specialty

JOHN H. SLOCOMBE
FLORIST
555 Townsend Ave.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Dec. 13, 1909.

GEORGE E. TALMADGE, INC, Madison, N. J.

GENTLEMEN:—We grow double violets and sweet peas and so cannot use cyanide after peas are up in November. We have not yet found an insecticide that would kill green and black fly and not give the violets spot—or as cyanide kills peas, and tobacco spots, we would like to know what tests you have made on double violets and sweet peas. If your goods fill the bill we can use a lot of it. Yours truly, J. H. SLOCOMBE.

OUR REPLY

Madison, N. J., Dec. 20.—Replying to your favor of the 13th inst., we are today sending you a sample of Aphine that you may try it on your plants to see whether it will do the work for you. This will be more satisfactory to you than any promises we may make as to what Aphine will do. We will appreciate it if you will advise us of the results of your test.

THE RESULTS

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 29, 1909.—Your sample of Aphine received and tested a few days ago. It looks to us like a good thing, so we are enclosing check for $2.50 for one gallon of same. Yours truly, J. H. SLOCOMBE.

Western Union New Haven, Conn., Jan. 4, 1910.—Ship immediately C. O. D., two gallons Aphine. J. H. SLOCOMBE.

Another Public Test of Aphine

Has been arranged to be held at the Boston Flower Market, Boston, Mass., on Saturday, January 22, 1910 :: ::

(Further particulars in next week's issue of this paper.)

If you are not familiar with the new insecticide discovery, Aphine, send for descriptive circular.

If your supply house does not yet handle it, write us for the names of our nearest selling agents.

$2.50 per gallon

Used at an average strength of 1 part Aphine to 15 to 40 parts water.

supply dealers, commission men who had made cash advances and Hinsdale merchants. Bassett & Washburn have a claim for coal loaned in the last several weeks with the neighborly idea of tiding Mr. Payne over his difficulties.

Club Meeting.

The interest now being taken in the affairs of the Chicago Florists' Club is shown by the fact that there were forty-one members present on the zero night of January 6, when L. H. Winterson was elected secretary. Of the eight candidates for trustee H. N. Bruns, John P. Degnan and Alex. Henderson had the highest number of votes and were declared elected, Mr. Bruns becoming chairman. These were the only contests. George Asmus was reëlected president and E. F. Winterson was reëlected treasurer. H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, was elected vice-president.

Edgar B. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, was elected to membership, and the following names were proposed: J. F. Dumke, 7047 Wentworth avenue; J. Fichter, 1965 Summerdale avenue; William Graff, 1332 Byron street. J. J. Shennele resigned.

The club voted to apply for membership in the Outdoor Improvement Association. T. E. Waters made a report for the committee on club badges. An auditing committee was appointed, consisting of T. C. Yarnall, H. N. Bruns and L. H. Winterson.

Over the refreshments there were interesting informal talks. Among those who spoke were W. J. Kiemel, J. C. Vaughan, H. R. Hughes, E. F. Winterson and Walter Scott, several of whom had more or less to say about wearing artificial flowers, but Victor Bergman sized this up by saying it is a passing fad, not much of a fad at that, and of no consequence to florists.

Various Notes.

The mother of the Garland family died January 7 at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Fred Wittbold. A more extended notice appears in the obituary column.

Milo Crozer, Cedar Rapids, Ia., is in town this week.

E. C. Amling reports the receipt of orders from Indianapolis by telepost, Bertermann Bros. Co. having adopted that method of communicating with this market. Some time ago, when the wireless was operating between Kansas City and Chicago, Sam Murray was in the habit of sending Mr. Amling orders by that method. These leading retailers are nothing if not up-to-date.

J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, was in Chicago twice last week, on his way to and from Cincinnati, where he attended the funeral of Mrs. Wilson's brother.

started on the road this week with E. H. Hunt's line of Easter supplies. A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., is consigning E. H. Hunt some fine stock of his new seedling carnation, Superba.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a large crop of Formosa lilies, some of them with stems four feet long.

Peter Reinberg is cutting his annual January crop of Beauties.

Winterson's Seed Store is at work getting stock in shape for the spring business in seeds.

The A. L. Randall Co. has closed its poultry annex on Lake street and disposed of the lease, the poultry supply business to hereafter be conducted in the main building on Randolph street, along wholesale lines.

Vaughan & Sperry say there is a good sale for jonquils.

George Reinberg is having some trouble with the fuel question. He is burning two to three cars of coal a day, and finds it impossible to accumulate any in the bins.

W. L. Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., is one of the trustees of the Independent Religious Society that has Sunday services in Orchestra hall.

Henry Van Gelder, manager of the Percy Jones business, says he thinks he made a record last week by selling a quarter of a million ferns, principally case lots, the largest sale being 20,000 to the Chicago Rose Co. He also says shipping trade is beginning to pick up again.

W. E. Lynch was on the sick list for two or three days last week.

E. E. Pieser says the only thing that has been the matter with the market is too much cold weather.

W. C. Florentine, who has been with Emil Buettner for three years, has bought eleven acres of land at Downers Grove and is preparing to build a range of greenhouses in the spring. He will begin with about 15,000 feet of glass, planting to carnations the first season, but also will grow outdoor stock.

August Poehlmann says that the Poehlmann force has been busy handling fuel and making cuttings. These zero days have made the coal fairly fly. Propagation is progressing at a rapid rate in anticipation of a large demand for young stock this season.

C. W. McKellar says the orchid market has tightened up again.

The John C. Moninger Co. has completed the addition to its factory, which increases its capacity about one-third. Work is going forward on a new catalogue of steam and hot water heating for florists only. It is understood that the Moninger Co. has concluded an arrangement with the Herendeen Mfg. Co., whereby the Chicago firm has the exclusive sale of Furman boilers in the greenhouse field.

The Market.

Business last week was rather slow. The weather conditions were such as to cause a slump in all lines of trade, except the coal business.

Various Notes.

Julius Ledig accepted $500 from the gas company in settlement for damage done his greenhouse stock by a leak in the main pipe in the street. His claim was for $1,000, but he thought $500 would do him more good now than to fight it out in the courts.

J. S. Wilson returned Saturday from a trip to Cincinnati, O.

The coal situation with all the greenhouse men here has been a serious problem, as most of us have been getting only enough coal to keep from freezing out. We hear that the Grosvenor Nursery Co., with greenhouses on the east side of the city, was frozen out last week.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The advance guard of spring flowers has added variety to the market earlier than usual. Tulips, freesia, daffodils and white lilac of a quality that scorns apology can be obtained in quantity this week. La Reine tulips with good stems appeared January 7, freesia of mid-season quality is now in sufficient quantity to be considered a factor, while daffodils and white lilac are coming in such numbers that the wholesalers no longer whisk them off to grace some exclusive social event, but show them with a smile pleasant to see that clearly says: "They are here when you want them."

Business is not brisk. There is not much going on socially. Production has been cut down by the cold. The market is gradually recovering from the burden of the crop that missed the holidays. Prices have fallen to a depressing point, carnations suffering especially, but the whites no longer drop below the colored sorts, for white at present figures can be used in cheap work. While the crop of good carnations is not especially heavy, it is ample for all demands. Violets, too, have dropped a point for the week ending January 12; there are more than enough for the indoor events and the outdoor demand is cut off by certain death from exposure.

Some idea of the volume of the sweet pea business can be obtained by the statement that an order for 1,000 lavender was filled by a wholesaler from a single shipment, for if you can get that number of lavender from a single grower, unaided by sunshine, a much larger number of white and more still of pink could be obtained. Sweet peas are selling, but not well.

Mignonette is in oversupply. The gardenia market is erratic. The growers have certainly solved the problem of midwinter production, for, while the demand is heavier than it ever has been, prices are falling to a point that takes the gardenia out of the diamond class. Cattleyas are a trifle easier. Bouvardia is nearly over. There is no especial demand for the excellent pansies now arriving.

The rose market is less overstocked than a week ago; Beauties have fallen to about their normal midwinter price, with the medium grades scarcer and in more active demand than the specials. White roses are a strong feature of the market. The best Brides command twice as much as the best Maids, easily bringing more than Killarney. The production of white roses is necessarily much smaller than pink, the proportion in everyday use being something like one to six. Mrs. Jardine continues to lead the pink class. Richmond has fallen back, bringing no more than Killarney, which is easily the favorite rose of the day, to judge by the quantity consumed. The demand for adiantum has been heavy, choice fronds commanding excellent prices. Shipping is brisk.

Valley in Nineteen Ten.

The Philadelphia market has for years enjoyed a reputation for fancy lily of the valley that its supporters claim was superior to anything obtainable elsewhere. This reputation was largely built up by the late Aldrich J. Pennock, known as the valley king, whose business sagacity and cultural ability placed him in the front rank of our valley forcers. Mr. Pennock's untimely death caused a crisis in the flower market, known only to a few, though none the less real. How was the demand for choice valley to be filled in nineteen ten? There were many retailers who depended on this market for their stock. Were they to be offered an inferior article or told to go elsewhere? Not at all! Philadelphia rose to the occasion. A few conferences, a little figuring, and it was all settled before anyone knew what was doing. Briefly stated, the mantle of the valley king has been divided, Walter P. Stokes has assumed one-half, while the other, with its added honors and responsibilities, will be worn by the firm of Casper & George L. Pennock. The quality of the new crop valley, which is now overlapping the old, shows that no anxiety need be felt regarding valley for the coming season.

It is with satisfaction we find our growers in splendid shape to care for the extra demand at this time.

Various Notes.

Leo Niessen says that the burning question of the day is coal.

Stephen Ager spoke on "The Cultivation of Bulbs in Pots" before the Germantown Horticultural Society in the lecture room of Association hall, Monday evening, January 10.

Tomatoes grown in our greatest greenhouse made their appearance in the Philadelphia market January 6. They came from the Florex Gardens, at North Wales, and were distributed by Eugene Bernheimer, who is adding the rosy red of the tomato to the rose red of the Beauty for the time being at least.

The Floracroft Greenhouses of Walter P. Stokes were first in the market, so far as known, with La Reine tulips, January 7. They had stems, as well as flowers, and were welcome.

W. E. McKissick & Bros. have just cause to be proud of their freesia, large, pure white flowers with foliage, something like twenty-four inches of it. You know the flowers that bloom in the spring generally look as though they wish they hadn't in midwinter, to judge by the stem at least. Not so here.

Theodore Edwards, of Bridgeton, N. J., was, if I mistake not, first in the market with Trumpet Major at Christmas, a fact that should have been credited to William J. Baker.

Israel Rosnosky has just returned from a busy trip down east. He promises to be at the Fort Pitt hotel, Pitsburg, Jan-

NEW YORK.

The Market.

We had a week of old-fashioned winter weather, including a sleet storm on Wednesday that coated the entire city with ice. Business was stagnant. Many shipments were frozen, especially violets, and all through the week the night arrivals from Rhinebeck did not reach the market until after 8 o'clock in the evening, too late for the retailers' needs, and this was one of the reasons for the drop in prices. Violets have lost more than half their value since Christmas, and 60 cents per hundred Saturday and Monday would buy the best of them. Fortunately for the market, the supplies have lessened, and this holds it steady at about last week's quotations. This condition is likely to hold during the present week, as apart from the automobile show no event of importance calls for any extra quantities.

Beauties are plentiful and prices have receded to the November standard. There is an overabundance of Killarney. There have been too many carnations for daily digestion, and values are below normal. Orchids hold their own fairly well, as do gardenias, and the supply is not now excessive. Narcissi are hard to move at any price. Bulbous stock is fast increasing in quantity. Lilies and valley are sufficient for all possible demands.

Club Meeting.

An attendance of over 100 January 10 indicated the growing interest of the members in the progress of the Florists' Club. J. K. Allen moved that the elections of all the new officers be made unanimous. President Turner welcomed his successor and C. H. Totty escorted A. L. Miller to the rostrum, where he thanked his fellow members for the honor of the position and promised his best efforts to make the club's year successful. C. B. Weathered escorted Vice-president Manda to the platform and Mr. Manda gave a pithy and interesting address, referring to his twenty years of membership, his appreciation of the honor and his belief that 1910 would be a banner year for the club. Secretary Young and Treasurer Rickards, both reëlected, reaffirmed their loyalty and their appreciation of renewed confidence. Harry Bunyard, the new trustee, said the Florists' Club was known in the United States and throughout the world, both of which countries he had visited, and that the awards made by it were considered of the highest value everywhere. F. R. Pierson, as trustee, promised an active attention to the club's welfare, and Phil Kessler followed in a similar strain. C. H. Totty responded for William Duckham in his absence.

The special plant committee reported progress. Resolutions on the death of John Seligman were read and a copy of same ordered sent to his family. C. H. Totty, for the committee appointed to entertain the American Rose Society, reported progress and promised a full report at the February meeting. J. H. Pepper reported for the transportation committee, announcing a rate of 2 cents per mile via the Pennsylvania railroad to the Pittsburg carnation convention, providing ten are in the party, making the cost $8.40 each way, and $2.50 for Pullman accommodations. The rear of the Pullman was guaranteed cool and at the disposal of the carnationists who desired to take their exhibits along. The secretary was instructed to send a notification to each member of the club. A goodly number have already signified their intention of attending. Those desiring to go are requested to send word at once to Mr. Pepper.

C. H. Totty, for the awards committee, reported a visit to the Cottage Gardens, Queens, L. I., December 16, to see the carnation, Mrs. C. W. Ward. The committee gave it eighty-eight points and confirmed the granting of the preliminary certificate.

Messrs. Kessler, De Forest, McKnight and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., were elected to membership and after a public introduction each one then present addressed the club and promised his best efforts on its behalf. Charles McTaggert, W. H. Kuebler, S. Masur and H. H. Halse, treasurer of the Wilson-Hoyt Co., were proposed. The resignation of George Sykes, of the Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago, was accepted with regret.

W. F. Sheridan moved for a committee to arrange for the annual dinner on the same lines that made the last one such a success. The following committees were appointed:

Legislative: Patrick O'Mara, C. B. Weathered, F. R. Pierson.
Essay: W. F. Sheridan, J. H. Pepper, John Young.
Awards: C. H. Totty, Harry Turner, William Duckham, I. S. Hendrickson, F. H. Traendly, Robert Simpson, Chas. Weber, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr.
Exhibition: A. J. Manda, W. E. Marshall, R. E. Berry, Jas. Scott, J. Roehrs, Jr.
House and entertainment: J. B. Nugent, R. M. Schultz, Robert Koehne.
Outing: Harry Bunyard, Andrew Wilson, W. G. Badgley, J. K. Allen, Henry Weston, Philip Kessler, Jos. Manda, John Rassbach, Robert Wilson, Charles Schenck, John Birnie.
Dinner: W. F. Sheridan, J. B. Nugent, Charles Schenck, C. H. Totty.

Invitations to the annual smoker of the Morris County Gardeners' Society, Wednesday evening, January 12, were acknowledged with the thanks of the club. The Greek-American Florists' Association also sent an invitation to the club for its annual ball January 17.

W. C. Rickards and gave great satisfaction, showing a balance of $3,863.35 in the treasury.

After the intermission Edwin Pierson and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., were introduced and made interesting addresses. The new address of the club's secretary was announced as Room 806 of the Childs building, 110 West Thirty-fourth street. Touching resolutions on the death of the New York Florists' Bowling Club were read by Captain Berry. Tributes and criticisms were made by Messrs. Nugent, Weathered and Faulkner.

An abundance of liquids and turkey constituted the promised "blow-out" of the new president and Mr. Nugent presided at the carving. Thanks were given the outgoing officers on a rising vote and to Mr. Miller for, as Robert Berry expressed it, his magnanimity and generosity.

A vase of handsome pink carnations was exhibited by E. N. Engren, of Aqueduct, L. I., and eighty-five points and a preliminary certificate rewarded his enterprise.

Various Notes.

The plantsmen did a good New Year's trade, and everything was cleaned up to their satisfaction. With Easter a little over ten weeks away, they are already setting their houses in order. The outlook is for a grand supply of everything in flowering plants, and the earliness of Easter this year makes a careful planning necessary. The movement to make the date of Easter permanent meets with their hearty approval.

Harry Jacobs, of S. Jacobs & Sons, Brooklyn, has been suffering from an attack of pneumonia, G. E. Bradshaw from la grippe, and A. J. Guttman from another of Job's comforters.

Much sympathy is expressed for Oscar Boehler, of West Hoboken, because of the serious damage done his greenhouse plant by fire last week.

President Pierson, of the S. A. F., has honored the New York Florists' Club by appointing two of its officials, its president and vice-president, as state vice-presidents of the national society.

The Pittsburg carnation convention will draw a goodly deputation from New York, including President Pierson and ex-President Traendly, of the S. A. F., and several of our carnation enthusiasts and specialists. The club members can correspond with Secretary Young at his office in the Childs building, West Thirty-fourth street, and arrange for transportation, etc.

The Greek-American Florists' Association will celebrate Monday evening, January 17, by holding its third annual ball at Terrace garden, Fifty-eighth street and Lexington avenue. The larger hall was made necessary by the great success of last year. The committee is an excellent one, and the old war horses, Messrs. Nicholas, Cotsonas, Lecakes and Christatos, will keep the reputation of the society bright. A great crowd is assured and an excellent entertainment.

L. W. Wheeler, of California, formerly treasurer of the New York Florists' Club, will be in the city this week.

The seedsmen's catalogues are going out in a mighty flood daily, and all the houses have spread themselves this year in artistic covers and increased size and fine engraving, anticipating the increased demand of the coming prosperous season.

J. C. Spencer, of Utica, is visiting his daughter at Mount Vernon, and attended the club meeting Monday evening.

Mayor Breitmeyer, of Detroit, was in New York last week, attending the auto show, and while in the city was intro-

Inquire of Joseph Ziska, 56 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—A bargain for someone who is a florist or greenhouse truck man; I'm not one; first-class greenhouses, built in summer of 1908, about 6000 feet of double strength glass, 16x24 in., roofs 12x16, single in sides; hot water heat; six rows two-inch pipe under each table; we sleep all night; stocked with 700 Easter lilies, 2500 flowering carnations, 400 roses, flowering, and lot of potted plants; possession at once or later; I am sick of paying for my daughter's mistakes, for whom I built these houses, she never was or will be a florist, you can guess the rest; the only greenhouses in this county seat of Arapahoe county, Colorado, a fruit farming and manufacturing, rapidly growing community; the town has 2000 inhabitants, is 10 miles from the heart of Denver, where you can unload all you cannot sell here; street cars run in and out to Denver, car-fare 10c, and four railroads also; nearest depot, express, freight, etc., are two blocks from greenhouses; the houses have deep cement foundations, good cement boiler and coal house; I paid net cash for everything, cost me about $3400.00 cash; the lots these houses are on, are in the center of the town, are cheap at $600 cash; I will take $3000 for all stock, houses and lots, $500 cash and the balance one to five years' time at 7 per cent interest; all free from debt, abstract down to date; if I can't sell by March 1, 1910, I'll rent it for $40.00 a month, as my daughter is weakly and I have rheumatism and enough to live on without this damp business. The lots of these fine greenhouses are 41x87½ feet, total outside measurement, all houses stand on, is 50x125 feet; these houses run north and south, and the lowest place under any gutter is six feet; height from ground to ridge of roofs is little over twelve feet; ten beds in house 6½ by about 38 feet long; rose house, the center house, is double glassed on sides and north end; globe valves on each table; sun shines over houses 300 days out of the year; located one and a half blocks from post-office, in heart of town, good for retail location; twenty tons good coal, $1.75 to $3.75 per ton, is in bins; all tools, hose, etc., required, go with above price; seven ventilators in each house, 2x4 feet, opened by patent openers; on a 50x125 ft. lot, next to greenhouses, south, is a 5-room, new, frame, modern, well-finished cottage, priced $1650, $500 down, balance long time; house stands near street, plenty room to double up and expand; best land in rich bottom of Platte river three-quarters of a mile from greenhouses, can be rented for $15 an acre, with irrigating water; can buy for $300 acre; city water, pure artesian, good force for watering houses, 25c per 100 cubic feet up to 1600, then 22½c; cubic foot is seven and one-half gallons; my residence cost $10,000.00 and stands in center of 250 feet of land north of greenhouses, leaving you space on which to expand, and at the same time a good retail spot; if you mean business, come or address the owner, Gulp's Greenhouses, Box 116, Littleton, Colo.; phone, Littleton 451.

FOR SALE—Greenhouse, two years old, and one acre of best Michigan land in town of 1000, near town of 50,000, at junction of two good railroads; house stocked, and equipped with good water supply and new Spencer boiler; plenty radiation; fine market; must sell now; cheap; good reasons for selling; if interested write at once. Address No. 124, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

FOR SALE—Fine farm and greenhouse establishment consisting of 60 acres of land and 13,000 feet of glass, located in thrifty city in central northern state; farm fully stocked with milch cows, horses, machinery of all kinds, grains, hay, etc.; new barn and fine 12-room residence, all lighted by electricity; greenhouses in fine condition and fully stocked, doing a good business; no greenhouse within 25 miles; cannot grow enough to supply; never-failing deep well, pumps operated with dynamo and windmill; greenhouses, boiler-rooms, etc., lighted by electricity; boiler capacity for twice amount of glass; good heating system with steam trap, regulating valve, etc.; all located together and on main highway up to city limits; fine lawns, driveways; orchards, etc.; ideal location for nursery; reason for selling, wish to retire; price, $16,000. Address No. 84, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

The Market.

Business was only moderately good last week. Weather conditions had much to do with this. With a severe cold wave one day, sleet and rain the next, then another cold snap, cut flower production was materially reduced, but there were plenty of flowers to go around and some to spare. Roses are less abundant, and while down in price have cleaned up well, with the exception of Bride and Maid, which are hard to move. Killarney and White Killarney are now of extra fine quality, and Richmond are seen with splendid stems. Carnations are not much changed in price; a few fancies bring $5 to $6, but the general run sell at $2 to $4 per hundred.

Violets have taken a drop, and more are now sold below the dollar mark than for some time. The increased use of artificial flowers for corsages is affecting the sale of these and other flowers. Sweet peas are coming of good quality. Trumpet Majors and tulips are more plentiful and inclined to drag. Paper Whites, Romans and stevia are all abundant. Easter lilies and callas are ample for all demands. Cattleyas are selling better than ever before in Boston. Cypripediums are in oversupply. Gardenias are in fair supply, as is valley. Green stock meets with a steady sale. The present week opens with somewhat improved business, and the outlook is more encouraging.

E. H. Wilson speak on "Plant Collecting in the Heart of China." The stereopticon slides were remarkably fine, those showing the original type of Primula Sinensis flowering in the crannies of the rocks being particularly fine. Meconopsis integrifolia, Aconitum Wilsoni, Cypripedium Thibeticum and a host of trees and shrubs were shown. The remarkable wealth of rhododendrons, primulas and other plants was commented upon. The lecturer stated that so vast a region still remained unexplored that many years must elapse before we know anything of the floral treasures China contains.

Alexander Montgomery, Jr., will shortly start in business as a rose grower at Hadley, Mass. A large tract of land containing ideal soil has been secured, and several large, up-to-date houses will be erected.

At the coming meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club January 18, E. H. Wilson will give a stereopticon lecture on his experiences as a plant collector for James Veitch & Sons and the Arnold Arboretum, in China. Ladies are invited to this lecture, which will bring out an extra large attendance. The new officers will be installed and are expected to make appropriate addresses.

December proved an unusually cold month here, and the snowfall of December 25 and 26 will be long remembered as the most disastrous on trees and shrubs within living memory. Charles Sander says he does not believe $10,000 would make good the damage to fine spec-

E. L. Pierce, vice-president of the A. H. Hews Co., left January 10 to spend a part of the winter in Florida.

The Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J., has arranged for a public demonstration of its insecticide at the Boston Flower Market, Park street, Saturday, January 22. The demonstration will be along the lines of one recently held in New York, and the concern invites growers to bring plants which are infested with insects for testing purposes.

At Horticultural hall, January 8, William C. Rust showed two well-flowered plants of red cineraria, Matador. Martin Sullivan had some splendid specimen plants of Primula Sinensis and obconica.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CROP shortages do not affect the congressional seed shop. The annual distribution has begun.

FIRE at Chicago January 9 destroyed an onion set warehouse of H. H. Chester, together with some 30,000 bushels of sets.

ONCE more the cry goes up that the available supply of capable assistants is not equal to handling the increase in the seed business.

IF advance prices for the 1910 pack of peas are any indication, the canners have all the seed required, for they are no higher than last year.

THE granddaughter of Robert Buist, Philadelphia, who left home December 29, was found at Chicago January 10 and has been returned to her relatives.

W. H. BARRETT, Adrian, Mich., has bought a vacant factory building 60x320 and two stories high, and says he will use it exclusively for handling tomato seeds.

R. V. CRINE, seedsman, nurseryman and florist at Morganville, N. J., makes a specialty of corn, pepper and tomato seeds, the latter being his principal specialty and grown in a large way.

W. W. RAWSON & Co., Boston, have issued a new pamphlet on sweet pea culture in which they reverse their former advice to use nitrate of soda, which they now say causes the buds to drop and blight.

POLITICS are seething at Washington, and other matters must be of large importance to receive consideration, but it looks as though this session of congress might result in some progress in the perennial fight against the free seeds.

"PEAS are scarcer than has ever been known before," say W. Atlee Burpee & Co., in their Annual. "From our intimate acquaintance and personal inspections of stocks grown in England (although the crops there were also distressingly short), we have succeeded in making up most of our normal requirements. The prices paid, in most cases, have been double the usual cost of production, so that even with the higher prices quoted this season our margin of profit is less than half what is usually considered necessary and fair."

Bismarck Summer-flowering Stocks

(GILLYFLOWER)

Golden Ball—Canary Yellow

NOVELTY 1910

For the Gardener interested in Cut Flowers, this is just the right thing. The Best Novelty in the World. The Bismarck Summer-flowering Stock makes cone-shaped bushes, about 3 feet high, with wonderfully large, canary yellow clusters. It blooms throughout the entire summer season and even into the late fall. This Bismarck Summer Stock produces about 80% double flowers and is indispensable for the artistic work of the modern florist. When placed on the market in the form of a pot plant, it has no equal. This Season's Best Novelty. 1 packet, 15c; 10 packets, $1.25; 100 packets, $11.00.

Bismarck Stocks Snowball, Snow White Novelty of 1909

This new kind has the same good qualities as the above mentioned novelty. The flowers are very large, snow white and are splendid as cut flowers and for sale on the market. 1 packet, 15c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ¼ oz., $1.50; 1 oz., $5.00.

Giant Summer Stocks Gloria, Bright Blood Red—Excelsior Class.

Produces panicles of great length, bright and blood red; the flowers are gigantic. Great novelty. Fine for cut flowers. 1 packet, 15c; 1000 seeds, 65c.

Summer Stocks Himmelsauge (Eye of the Sky).

Belonging to the dwarf class; novelty; wonderful light blue color; the best for pot culture; produces from 80% to 85% double flowers. 1000 seeds, 30c; ¼ oz., 90c.

Dresden Summer Stocks, with large Blossoms and Everblooming.

Best for cut flowers. 1, apple blossom; 2, dark blue; 3, light blue; 4 flesh colored; 5, dark blood red; 6, chamois; 7, soft rose; 8, purple carmine; 9, red brown; 10, crimson; 11, canary yellow; 12, snow white.

Each color separate, 1000 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., 60c; 1 oz., $2.00. All colors mixed, 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 50c; 1 oz., $1.60.

Erfurt Summer Stocks, with Large Blossoms; Best for Groups.

1, brilliant rose; 2, carmine; 3, crimson; 4, dark violet; 5, dark blood red; 6, flesh colored; 7, canary yellow; 8, light blue; 9, aurora colored; 10, pure white.

Each color separate, 1000 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., 60c; 1 oz., $2.00. All colors mixed, 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 50c; 1 oz., $1.60

WILL ENFORCE SEED LAW.

Believing the pure seed law now on the statute books of Tennessee has been in force a sufficient length of time for the dealers of the state to become thoroughly familiar with the provisions thereof, Commissioner of Agriculture John Thompson purposes to strictly enforce this statute. He is sending letters to all the seedsmen of Tennessee, inclosing copies of the seed law, and calling special attention to Sections 1-6 and 11-12. The commissioner then adds this suggestion:

"This law has been in force for a sufficient length of time for everyone to be familiar with it, and we wish to urge you, and all seed dealers in the state of Tennessee, to comply with the new law in every respect."

The sections to which the commissioner calls special attention define commercial agricultural seeds, and set forth the penalties for violations of the law.

PROFITS IN ASTER SEED.

A Portland newspaper gives the following account of the results obtained by G. S. Crego, aster seed grower, who not long since removed from a Chicago suburb to the vicinity of Portland:

"The success of the experiment of a local gardener in growing aster seed commercially the past season was proven when the crop was threshed this week, and the gross profits were reckoned at $2,150 from one acre of land devoted to the flower garden. G. S. Crego, formerly of Chicago, the originator of the Crego aster, had the seed grown here under contract. Mr. Crego was here at the threshing, and carried away with him seed, which, at the current price, would yield the sum of $1,500. Seed of another variety of aster is estimated to be worth $500 more.

"Besides this there were cut flowers sold from the acre of asters to the value of $150 during the summer, which, with the heavy thinning of the plants, lessened the production of seeds. Mr. Crego, while visiting the Lewis and Clark Exposition in 1905, was attracted by the magnificent Crego asters sent there by a McMinnville florist. He has since became a resident of the state, and chose the soil there as the kind best suited to the production of the seed of the strain of flowers that bear his name, the local florist sharing in the glory of assisting to produce the first crop."

ture, and whom we have to thank for the splendid Hohenzollern aster now obtainable in many tints, has developed from it the novel variety Hercules. The latter is an excellent plant for furnishing cut blooms, and because of its uniform growth it makes a good subject for groups in the open. Like the Hohenzollern, it is a true autumn-flowering aster, and must be sown early and pricked out in order to flower at its best and ripen its seeds fully. A white variety will shortly be put on the market. Hercules is said by the German gardening press to be the largest-flowered aster yet known.

ORIGIN OF SPENCER PEAS.

In a paper read before the National Sweet Pea Society in London, England, December 10, Wm. Cuthbertson, of Dobbie & Co., of Mark's Tey and Edinburgh, said in part:

"Some people argue that sweet peas are pollinated by wind-borne or insect-borne pollen, and that accounts for the variations we get in so many stocks of Spencer sweet peas. I have never been able to subscribe to this theory, because I think I have had as large an experience as most, and have not observed it happen in practice. The plan we adopt at Mark's Tey is to grow the different varieties in lines 100 feet long. There may be four lines of The Marquis, followed closely by four lines of Countess Spencer, then four lines of Helen Lewis, and so on. If the wind or insect theory of cross fertilization held good we should not get pure seed, but as a matter of fact we do. Then again, it is suggested that in America there must be insects, unknown in this country, at work there to give us the fine variations we so frequently get! I should like to have Mr. Burpee's or Mr. Morse's opinion on this point."

Under date of January 5 Mr. Burpee wrote:

"Replying to Mr. Cuthbertson's inquiry, would say that, in common with most growers and observers of Spencer sweet peas, I hold firmly to the opinion that the great majority of new varieties of this type are entirely what might be called accidental sports. No special climatic conditions or 'insect theory' seems to apply to California more than to England. It is noteworthy that sports of similar character and in several cases identically the same have been found in both countries.

"While most of the varieties so far introduced have been accidental sports, it is only fair to say that now there are quite a number of new seedlings, the result of cross-fertilization, both in California and England.

"Most of the work on the Spencer

Forcing Gladiolus

Many florists plant these in boxes, or among their carnations, in the winter. They are excellent for decorative purposes and realize good prices, either wholesale or retail. Gladioli are a good catch crop and take up but little room. The following are the best for this purpose.

Gladiolus Gandavensis Hybrids

America. The flowers, which are of immense size, are of the most beautiful flesh-pink color. $3.25 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

"NOT HOW CHEAP— BUT HOW GOOD"

Horseshoe Brand Products

The reason why Horseshoe Brand Japan Bulbs are of superior quality is chiefly because of the fact that the seed bulb from which the matured lily bulb is grown, is taken from only the healthiest plants produced. This is particularly true in Giganteum and we recommend our Giganteum to the most critical bulb buyers. Horseshoe Brand Gigs are positively selected from the very best nature produces. The prices are reasonable and the results will afford the most profit.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

The cry every year is for seasonable weather. Well, that is what we are having—plenty of snow and the thermometer courting zero right along. This, however, does not seem to be helping the cut flower business to any great extent, as the retailers are all complaining, especially about the general store trade. There have been some large decorations, but it takes the general store trade, with this, to keep up the average daily sales.

There has been a shortage of home roses, but they are gradually picking up again, and carnations are quite plentiful. Violets, which are more plentiful, are moving more slowly.

The wholesale houses do not complain. As a rule, they are not getting so much stock, and the demand just about cleans it up; so they are easy.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday night, January 4, in the Dutch room at the Fort Pitt hotel, with a large and enthusiastic attendance. The coming carnation convention seems to have put a good deal of enthusiasm into the club.

There were a few good exhibits. The display of R. &. J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass., contained a fine collection of cyclamen plants grown from the strain of seed which they are offering for sale, and Mr. Farquhar read an interesting paper containing full instructions for growing them.

ROSES

J. W. YOUNG

vase of his new rose, Defiance, which aroused considerable attention and favorable comment. It has the appearance of being a good, strong grower, with a fine, large bud of a deep Bridesmaid color, which is quite pleasing, and in the opinion of many it will lead to the death and burial of Maids, if it is all it seems to be. A certificate of merit was granted by the club committee.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. had a couple of vases of roses, Killarney and White Killarney, My Maryland, Maids, Brides and Richmonds, which were particularly fine.

Randolph & McClements showed an old plant, Begonia incarnata, which was known by many, and they handled it like an old friend.

It was the night for the nomination of officers, and as the old ones are the only names placed in nomination, there will be no changes this year.

There was much carnation convention talk, and the meeting adjourned late, with a special meeting of all committees called for next Tuesday evening at Fort Pitt hotel, to complete arrangements, which seem to be well in hand.

Various Notes.

Randolph & McClements had the decoration of the Fort Pitt hotel Saturday night, January 8, for the banquet of the Carnegie Steel Co., which was an elaborate affair. It is understood it was to cost $100 per plate. A number of those expected were absent, yet seventy-seven persons sat down. The scene was in the room which the carnation convention will use for its exhibition, and the decorations were in the nature of a southern garden, with fruit trees in bud and fruit. There was a large lake in the room, in which water lilies and other aquatic plants were blooming naturally. The affair was so exclusive that no outsider could get a look in on any pretext, the company looking after that themselves.

Hoo-Hoo.

WELLSVILLE, O.—B. A. Mick has opened a new store in the room formerly occupied by T. W. Brooks at Main and Sixth streets.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O.—T. B. Stroup reports that his holiday trade showed an increase of about twenty-five per cent over that of last year. Advance orders for Christmas were light, but on Thursday, December 23, business came with a rush, which lasted until noon on Saturday. There was a good supply of both cut flowers and blooming plants and all were sold out clean. There was also a good demand for ferns, especially for Whitmani at $2 and $3.

PROPAGATING HOLLY.

Will you please let me know the best and cheapest way to get a start in growing holly? I want to get the kind that has berries on it. If they can be started from slips, when is the best time and what is the best way? If they can be started from seed, when and how should the seed be planted? I am located in Oregon. G. E. C.

This query can be answered in several ways, and a good deal depends on what quantity of plants G. E. C. wishes to grow. If he only desires a few large plants and does not want to wait several years before he can cut a crop of berries, the best way would be to import some strong, well-berried plants from Europe. These can be landed in Oregon for a couple of dollars apiece, and the plants will be large enough for immediate sale.

If, on the other hand, he wishes to grow a large quantity of stock and is not in any immediate hurry for returns from them, our advice would be as follows: Early next fall, order from some responsible European firm as many young holly seedlings as it is desired to plant. Three-year-old stock is the best to import, and a reasonable allowance should be made for plants that will not grow; in other words, if it is desired to grow 2,000 hollies, order 3,000 seedlings. These plants will arrive late in the fall, and as soon as possible they should be planted out in nursery rows. Do not plant the seedlings closer than one foot apart. About May 1 they will be ready for budding, as the stems will by that time be large enough for this purpose. Select buds from well-fruiting trees, and do not use any wood that is too soft. The method is the same as that pursued with all kinds of deciduous stock. Hollies are easily propagated in this way, and the buds start out quickly. Topping should be done about the first of September, as by this time the shoots from the bud have commenced to show themselves. Do not cut back stocks the eyes from which have not grown. Rather give them another chance and bud over again. In cutting off the wild stock above the bud after the eye has started, it is a good plan to leave a couple of inches of the hardy stem above the eye. Early the following spring the wild top can be cut down to within half an inch of the top of the bud. By this time, if the stock has been kept growing in a good, healthy condition, the young shoots should be at least a foot in length, and the following season all should show berries.

It takes several years, however, to get a good-sized plant, but the way we have described is the most satisfactory if the grower is not in too much of a hurry and wants to raise a quantity of berries. The wild stock can be purchased in Europe at a few dollars per thousand, and scions from fruiting plants can be purchased from any responsible grower on the Pacific coast. It is not practicable to grow from cuttings, and seedlings which are only fit to be used to graft or bud on can be purchased cheap in Europe. Although it takes several years to grow a supply of holly for market, the demand is and has been much greater than the supply. G.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Being now in the first week of the new year, we have had ample time to take a long survey of the surroundings and give a fair summary of the holiday trade. From reports from a majority of the growers, it seems that Christmas business was quite up to that of last year, though the sales were more divided than is usual. New Year's trade was at least twenty-five per cent heavier than that of one year ago, which makes a highly satisfactory starting for 1910. At the present writing we are being treated to quite a spell of cold weather, and as a result everything in the flower line is much less plentiful than it usually is at this time. Carnations and roses, especially of the lighter colors, are scarce, and if the present cold snap continues we shall be heavily pressed for flowers.

In violets the supply is even less plentiful, and the price has risen somewhat, so that the retailers are now paying $1 per dozen bunches, and they are being put up in small packages, even at that price. Daffodils and narcissi have made their appearance; the former are entirely hothouse grown, while the latter are being sent into town from the interior, and are outside stock. Valley is scarce and not of extra good quality. Chrysanthemums are really past their prime, but the Chinese growers continue to make quite large pickings of them, and, owing to the general scarcity of stock, they move well.

Maidenhair fern, asparagus and smilax are scarce again, and show the results of the close cutting for the holidays. Orchids are being sent into town in about sufficient quantities to supply the market. All kinds of outside stuff, except that already mentioned, are completely out of season, and everyone is wishing for an abatement of the cold snap, so that flowers may resume their normal condition.

Various Notes.

Several of the retail stores refused to accept consignments of outside grown poinsettias from the south, on the ground that the flowers and foliage were not of sufficiently good quality to be handled over the counter.

Dr. Parker, the Santa Cruz orchid grower, is in town interviewing the local dealers.

Frank Shibeley, of the Shibeley-Mann Co., reports an extra heavy shipping trade for the month of December.

E. W. McLellan & Co., of Burlingame, are sending some extra fine Killarney roses to the local growers. J. W. Gilmore has charge of the growing at this establishment.

Fred S. Higgins has severed his connection with the firm of Clarke Bros., of Oakland, Cal. G.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Business has been good since Christmas. Many receptions, parties and balls used up quantities of flowers. New Year's week saw all kinds of weather—rain, frost, hail and sunshine. The snow on the mountains extends far down the sides and gives a decidedly cool feeling to the atmosphere, even when the sun is shining.

Flowers are back to normal prices, first-class carnations selling for $1 a dozen. Valley and orchids are plentiful, with a good call for both. There has been a good shipping trade.

Various Notes.

On account of the rain, which fell heavily for thirty-six hours previously and until 8 o'clock New Year's morning, the rose tournament at Pasadena was not as much of a success as usual, a good many entries being withdrawn, but what there was was fine. This was the twenty-first annual event of the kind, and in all these years there have been only two rainy New Year's days before this. All of the entries were elaborately decorated with fresh flowers, poinsettias, bougainvilleas, roses, carnations, marguerites, marigolds, etc. Not an artificial flower was allowed. All of the schools had beautiful allegorical floats.

The night of January 5 was the coldest of the season, many oranges and lemons suffering at Riverside, Redlands and elsewhere in the "frostless belt." For the first time in sixteen years frost was felt at Catalina Island.

Many of the stores in Los Angeles were busy on Monday, January 3, with designs for the funeral of a prominent citizen. Violets were used in profusion in nearly all cases. At The Angelus two particularly handsome pieces were seen—a 5-foot standing wreath of Enchantress carnations, white roses and maidenhair, and a pillow about the same size, of carnations, roses and orchids. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
Officers for 1909-10: Pres., F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; Vice-Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-fifth annual meeting, Denver, June, 1910.

W. M. FRINK, a nurseryman, has been appointed city forester at Cleveland, O.

D. C. BLISS, for twenty-five years in the nursery business at Minden, Neb., is selling out and retiring.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, was reëlected a director of the State Bank of Chicago at the annual stockholders' meeting January 11.

THE Tennessee Nurserymen's Association will hold its annual winter meeting at Nashville, January 31, in connection with the meeting of the State Horticultural Society.

F. W. KELSEY, whose withdrawal from the American Nursery Co., New York, was announced December 28, will hereafter do business as the F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., 150 Broadway, New York.

THE Kenmar Orchard Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $20,000. The incorporators are W. R. Johnston, of Pittsburg; W. F. Gwin, of Baltimore, Md., and Edward L. Worthington, of Charlestown, W. Va.

THE fruit tree business on the Pacific coast is enjoying a boom. In the north the apple orchardists, and in the south the orange growers, are enjoying such good crops and finding such good markets that stock is wanted for much new acreage.

THE Western New York Horticultural Society will hold its fifty-fifth annual meeting at Rochester, January 26 and 27. Wm. C. Barry is president and the secretary is John Hall, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen. Many nurserymen will attend, and several have places on the program.

SALT IN WHITEWASH.

Is it proper to add salt to whitewash in using same to whitewash trunks of deciduous trees; the object being to keep rain from washing it off? A. N.

There is no harm in adding some salt to the whitewash for tree trunks and it certainly seems to make the wash hold somewhat better. C.

NECESSITIES THE MOTHER.

A few years ago one of the large and successful rose growers, who did a flourishing mail order business, found he was having so many complaints from customers because of the ruined condition of the plants sent through the mail that he felt he was compelled to change the style of his package so as to overcome the crushing in the mail sack. After repeated experiments the tube shape package was tried, and gave the best results. Since then the tube has undergone changes and improvements till now it is conceded to be the most efficient mailing package for plants known to the trade.

The manufacturers of these tubes have recently obtained from the classification committee of the railroads of the United States a special freight rate on nested tubes which cuts down the rate of freight one-third.

The strength and lightness of the tube, together with the fact that it is split open from end to end, so that the wrapped plant can be laid in carefully and when the destination is reached can be lifted carefully out without pushing or disturbing it in any way, seems to leave nothing more to be desired in the way of efficiency.

"Relative to the results we are receiving from our advertisement in the Review, it gives us pleasure to state these have been most satisfactory. The advertisement had its first insertion December 9, and over 200 inquiries, for literature, etc., on our Thermostatic Instruments for Greenhouses, have already come to us, from Florists located in 31 states in the Union. The result was, indeed, an agreeable surprise to us, as we would have been satisfied with receiving half this number of inquiries.

CELERY IN UNHEATED HOUSE.

Can celery seed be sown in a solid bed in an unheated greenhouse during March in the northeastern part of Oregon, and be grown successfully there until large enough to transplant to a coldframe in April? F. C. P.

That would depend upon the temperature of the house, but I am afraid you would not be very successful. You could make a hotbed in the unheated house, to set your boxes on, and start the seed much more quickly. Celery is slow, anyhow, and although it does not mind cool weather, it would surely be slow in a cold, unheated house. Not knowing much of your climate, I can give no positive answer, but it would be little trouble to put in some fresh manure to set the boxes on, and keep them warmed up well. H. G.

ROOT ROT IN BRASSICAS.

Can you tell me why my cabbage and cauliflower plants, when small, have the root-rot or some similar disease? They turn black between the root and the seed leaf. Some of them survive by forming a sort of lump and striking out from there again. C. J. J.

The rotting of the stems of the tiny cabbage and cauliflower plants is caused by a fungus and can be avoided by selecting fresh, clean, new soil to plant the seeds in, and by planting the seed not too thickly. It is also important that they have good care, with just enough moisture to keep the soil damp, and a good, bright place to start them in. They should also be transplanted as soon as possible, as that will help them greatly. It is best to sow the seed at different times, so they will not all be up and need to be transplanted at once, or some will be neglected. Fresh air is one of the best remedies for all fungous diseases. H. G.

MAGGOTS IN TURNIPS.

Please give me a remedy for turnip maggots. I can never use my late crop of turnips, as they are honey-combed with these maggots. C. J. J.

I have never had any trouble with maggots in turnips, but have had crops of red radishes ruined and made unsalable by them. The particular variety which worked on them is known to entomologists as the sciara, or fickle midge, and is referred to in the trade as the manure gnat. The maggots are the larvæ of these gnats, which swarm around fresh stable manure, and the eggs were in the manure used on the soil. They seem to make the most trouble about five or six weeks after starting the garden. I now avoid them by putting my root crops on soil that has been manured heavily the year before, using no manure on it just before the crop is planted.

It may be a different maggot, however, that is attacking your turnips. In that case it would be well to send a sample to your state agricultural college experiment station, or to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. All the insect enemies of vegetation are known to the authorities, and much valuable information in regard to the control of the pests is gladly given. The Department of Agriculture is for the benefit of horticultural and agricultural interests, and they welcome inquiries from the growers. H. G.

SCARLET GLOW. (New) an extra good bright scarlet, a large flower and exceptional keeping qualities. It is in perfect health, and has that early and free flowering habit that characterizes a paying commercial variety. $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

PINK DELIGHT. Clear waxy shell pink. The variety that won over Enchantress at the A. C. S. meeting, Indianapolis, January, 1909. It has all the good points to make it the leader and with its unequaled substance, the best keeping and shipping carnation in the light pink class.

In 1909 we had no surplus stock to offer. With our large stock this season we are in a position to take care of all orders. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

We have large stocks of White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Enchantress, Winona, Enchantress, Aristocrat, Beacon.

Selected, healthy, well rooted cuttings, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Recovering from one of the worst storms, with snow and zero temperatures, experienced here since 1898, the florists were hard pushed last week by the extra demands made upon them. This was occasioned by the unusually large number of funerals, in addition to the annual inaugurations of state and city officials. At the inauguration of the officers in this city alone, more than 140 designs and bouquets were counted, the estimated cost of which was approximately $750. At the four other cities in the state there were equally large displays, and at the state house another grand display of flowers was shown. This work was well distributed.

There has been a slight scarcity of cut flowers on account of the weather conditions, but an improvement was seen on Saturday. Several of the greenhouse men sustained some loss by the storm, in the way of broken glass and strained sashes.

Various Notes.

The annual banquet of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will be held at Brucker's January 17.

William E. Chappell had the decorations for the annual banquet of the Past Masters' Association of Masons at the Masonic Temple January 6.

Nels G. Pierson, of Norwood, has been elected a delegate to the state convention of volunteer firemen from the volunteer fire company of his village.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Simon Colitz, of Woonsocket. Mr. Colitz is the proprietor of the Rustic Flower Store, in that city.

William B. Hazard has secured a retail store at 178 Mathewson street, and he opened for business January 10.

Walter Nichols, of Hampden Meadows, is cutting some fine Beacon and Enchantress carnations for the Boston market.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Snow storms and the decidedly cold weather shortened the supply of cut flowers in the first part of last week, and consequently stock of all kinds was scarce, but toward the end of the week stock became more plentiful. This is especially true of American Beauties; they dropped down to $4 per dozen for the best. Tea roses of all kinds are of exceptionally good quality, and realize good returns. Carnations have been moving fairly well at $3 for best grades, some going as low as $1.50 per hundred in job lots.

Callas and Harrisii are not plentiful, and there has been a good demand for them for funeral work; $1.50 per dozen is the ruling price. The demand for lily of the valley is good. Violets are scarce. Green goods are plentiful, with the exception of Asparagus plumosus.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held on Saturday, January 8, at the club rooms, with a good number present. Much routine business was transacted and, owing to the absence of the committee on by-laws, it was decided to hold a special meeting soon.

J. A. Peterson showed a specimen of his new begonia, Gloire de Cincinnati, at the club meeting, and everyone present acknowledged it far superior to its parent, Lorraine.

The newly organized bowling club will meet on Monday, January 17.

Herbert Greensmith was appointed superintendent of parks by the park commissioners, and will take charge February 1. We are glad that the commission saw fit to appoint a man of merit, regardless of politics. Mr. Greensmith is well informed in horticulture, and will fill the position creditably.

Ernst Mack, of Price Hill, has been especially successful with Lilium giganteum this winter, and he says it has been the best paying stock on the place. He always finds a ready sale for it.

H. SCHWARZ.

GLADIOLUS INDEPENDENCE

This is without exception the best light red Gladiolus in the market. Fine bright foliage; stem always straight; spike perfect with good number of flowers open at once. Flower of great substance, shipping ell, of good size, well opened, color bright cherry, fine by artificial light.

All sizes and cormels. Write for prices.

Alma Ward

This beautiful Carnation is pure white except during dark weather, when it shows delicate splashings of pink similar to the Cattleya Orchid, increasing its popularity.

Alma Ward is the largest and most fragrant Carnation ever grown, producing perfect flowers 3½ to 4½ inches in diameter on strong, erect stems, 36 to 42 inches in length.

Awards

The Lawson silver medal, Toronto, 1907 (no gold medal having been awarded); the Lawson gold medal, Washington, 1908; The Society of American Florists, silver medal, Washington, 1908.

Price, Rooted Cuttings—$3.00 per 12; $5.00 per 25; $9.00 per 50; $15.00 per 100; $35.00 per 250; $65.00 per 500; $120.00 per 1000.

Delivery Feb. 1. January cuttings all sold.

These varieties bring from $2.00 to $4.00 per 100 more than any other Carnation sold in the New York market.

ADMIRATION

This carnation we offer to the trade as being one of the finest Carnations of any color that we know of up to date. Being a beautiful shade of pink, somewhat lighter than Winona, having that beautiful satin finish, always showing up well either in natural or artificial light. Plants benched in August are now coming into full crop, carrying from 10 to 20 buds. We have been cutting since September 10th. As a money maker you will find no equal.

The size of the flower is 3 to 3½ inches, excellent form, well built up in the center, with the petals so arranged as to make it stand the general requirements of a good fancy commercial variety. A grand keeper and shipper.

The habit is ideal, upright with no surplus grass and every shoot going into flower. Its freedom and earliness make it nearly the ideal carnation. The calyx is very tough and seldom bursts. Can be handled with great success either from the field or grown inside all summer. No one has to be an expert to handle this variety. It scored 86 points at the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis, January 27 to 28, 1909.

Price, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.
250 at 1000 rate.

CARNATION DOROTHY GORDON

You are looking for the variety that will show the most profit, plus the greatest satisfaction to your customers.

Very well, this Carnation will do both. Dorothy Gordon is vigorous and disease-free, with flowers of uniform color—a shade darker than Pink Enchantress.

It produces at least a third more carnations than does Enchantress, and much larger—average flowers of Dorothy Gordon measure 3 inches or more in diameter. It has a stiff stem and is a long keeper.

It has regularly brought us double the profits of the leading commercial sorts—Enchantress, for instance. Let us illustrate:

Enchantress sells at wholesale in the Philadelphia markets at $6.00 per 100; Dorothy Gordon has REGULARLY brought us $9.00 per 100. In addition, Dorothy Gordon produces easily one-third more flowers, or an additional $3.00—giving a return of $12.00 from the same greenhouse space that would be required to grow $6.00 worth of Enchantress.

We are selling strong, rooted cuttings at $10.00 per 100, or $75.00 per 1000.

We are ready to demonstrate to you that you can grow Dorothy Gordon with greater profit than any other commercial carnation. We invite you to come to Wyncote and see it growing in our houses; if you cannot do this, write for full particulars—we'll furnish some carnation facts that will interest you.

The Market.

Business since the holidays has been heavy, especially in funeral work. There have been several funerals lately that called for quantities of flowers, both designs and sprays. Roses are of fine quality, but they are cleaned up from day to day and there has been no surplus up to this time. Carnations are fine and coming in quantities, but the demand for them is heavy and they are cleaned up right along. Enchantress seems to be more in evidence than any other variety and they are doing fine. Most of the growers can grow this variety a little more successfully than some of the others. Victory and White Perfection are doing excellently. Beacon, while not grown in quantities, is showing up in good form. The stems are longer than last year and much heavier, and it promises well to be grown in quantities next season.

Violets are in good demand and there is seldom any surplus. Paper Whites are coming in large quantities and the demand for them is heavy. Valley moves nicely at this time, as there has been quite a number of weddings. Pot plants have been selling well since the holidays and cylamen, azaleas and ferns seem to be the leaders.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club is figuring on giving a masquerade ball about Valentine's day and no doubt there will be some seedy looking florists in evidence that night. The club held a meeting Tuesday night, January 11, and the reports of the dances have been satisfactory to the club.

G. Drobisch reports business as being good, with quite a lot of funeral work.

The Franklin Park Floral Co. says business is satisfactory.

Will Graff reports a heavy business.

The Munk Floral Co. says stock goes out just as fast as cut and there is no surplus of anything.

J. R. Hellenthal reports a satisfactory business during the holidays and trade good since then. J. M.

RAYMOND, N. H.—Irvin Folsom says a ten days' blockade with snow made business decidedly dull while it lasted.

Sangamo

Brilliant, glistening pink. Winner wherever shown: Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee. The greatest bloomer and fastest grower of any. Flowers perfect, stems long and stiff.

Why you should grow Sangamo: 1st.—It will give you more blooms in a season than any other variety. The fastest grower we have ever seen. 2nd.—It is the best color of anything in this class, Winsor, Rose-pink Enchantress or any other. 3rd.—The blooms are well formed, nicely rounded out in the center, and do not fade. 4th.—The flower stands well above the calyx, making it impossible to split. 5th.—It comes early with long stems that are always stiff, holding the flower gracefully. 6th—The entire stock is clean and healthy. The cuttings root easily and the plants lift from the field and establish themselves without a setback. 7th.—Not only an exhibition variety, but the best bread and butter Carnation for any florist to grow. Let us pay your coal bill for you.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

We have had, these last few days, weather cold enough to kill the tender plants in our gardens, and from that we can anticipate a good demand for plants when the season opens. It was not so low as many florists wished, but the worst has not come yet. The month of February is usually the coldest month in New Orleans. Cut flowers are much in demand, outside stock having disappeared altogether.

Various Notes.

At the Metairie Ridge Nurseries everything looks well. H. Papworth, the manager, has a gang of men digging up a large lot of nursery stock to be planted towards the lake shore for the Land Improving Company. He also has other big jobs outside of town which will keep them quite busy for a long time. The outdoor plants have been a little bruised by the late cold spell, but no great damage has been done so far. The greenhouse roses look better than ever. They are cutting enough buds to supply their own trade. The W. R. Smith rose is coming to the front as one of the best. American Beauty, My Maryland and other varieties occupy many benches. In the line of new varieties he expects much of Chateau Clos Vougeot, an extra double red rose of French origin. One which is also superior to many, adapting itself to any kind of soil and a good outside grower, producing quality and quantity of flowers, is R. B. Cant. It could be called a double Papa Gontier; it is of English origin. Looking all the time for something new, Mr. Papworth has been importing from France a lot of shrubs grown in the southern part of France. As the climate of southern Louisiana is about the same as in the southern part of France, some good acquisitions will certainly be obtained. The acacia family is largely represented. Cucumbers have succeeded the chrysanthemums in some of the houses and they look fine. In the line of chrysanthemums he will propagate Elsie Papworth, a newly introduced sort. He is the only grower having the right to distribute it on this side of the Dixie line. It will be a great improvement over Mrs. Robinson, opening better. The place is certainly improving all the time. The city waterworks has been installed from a long distance, but Mr. Papworth thinks it will be a paying investment, having better water and more pressure.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta

Another New Fern Originating with us Introduced fall 1909

Of all the valuable introductions in ferns that we have sent out, beginning with the Pierson (Nephrolepis Piersoni), we consider the Elegantissima compacta the most valuable of all, particularly from a commercial standpoint.

While this resembles Elegantissima in a general way, it is far superior to that variety, on account of its perfect habit. Yet it can hardly be compared with Elegantissima in a general way, because it occupies a place by itself and is as distinct from Elegantissima as that variety is from Piersoni—in fact, it bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. Elegantissima compacta has an ideal habit. The fronds are considerably shorter than those of Elegantissima, and it is a more compact plant. It throws a great many more crowns naturally, making a very bushy, dwarf, compact plant. The difference between the two varieties may be seen at a glance.

Fine, strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100; 4-in. pots, $7.50 per doz., $50.00 per 100; 6-in. pans, $1.50 each; 8-in. pans, $3.00 each.

We make a specialty of all kinds of Nephrolepis, carrying a large stock of all sizes at all times—Piersoni, Elegantissima, Superbissima, Bostoniensis, Scottii, Whitmani, Amerpohlii, etc.

FLORIST PETUNIAS

Every florist having a design trade has felt the difficulty of getting suitable flowers for the work during hot weather, when roses and carnations are barely presentable. After years of selection we have found three varieties of Double Petunias, No. 1, Pure White; No. 2, Clear Shining Pink; No. 3, Pure Lavender, which have made us more money for the labor expended than anything we have ever handled. The flowers are large, 4¼ to 6 inches in diameter, and as a keeper during hot weather beats anything we have ever tried, while the enormous quantity of blooms they produce makes the cost practically nothing. We find indoor culture suits them best. Price, 2-inch pot plants, $1.50 per doz.; one dozen of each of the three varieties for $4.00.

HEAT FOR TOMATO HOUSE.

I have built a greenhouse, 14x40, with side walls four feet high. It is built tightly and substantially, of good lumber. I have placed four 2-inch lines of piping on each side of the house, and my plumber claimed that the circulation could be supplied by putting a coil in an upright stove, but the plan failed. Will a six horse-power boiler do the work, at 10 degrees below freezing? I expect to use the house for growing tomato plants and various kinds of vegetables. I am located in Ohio. P. A.

For growing tomato plants it is desirable to have a house in which a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees can be maintained, and it would not be an easy matter to secure much more than 50 degrees in zero weather in a house fourteen feet wide, with eight 2-inch pipes. Two more pipes should be added, therefore, if tomato plants are to be started before March 1.

It will be best to have a boiler rated to heat 300 square feet of radiation, and a six horse-power boiler should be sufficient for the purpose, but care should be taken to provide one 2½-inch opening, or two 2-inch openings, for the flow pipes and the same for the returns.

A PARTITIONED HOUSE.

I am planning to build one house, 25x100 feet and twelve feet high to the ridge. The back wall will be six feet high and the front wall four feet high, with one foot of glass. The house will be fully exposed to severe winds. There will be an office at the west end and a boiler-room at the east end, and I wish to heat the office from the boiler. Can I heat at this distance economically with hot water, or would it be advisable to make the house only eighty feet long?

I wish to use half of the house for roses and the other half for carnations, with a partition through the center. How shall I arrange the piping so as to get the extra heat for the roses, which will be at the east end, nearest the boiler? How many and what size of pipes will be required? The temperature in this part of North Dakota may go to 40 degrees below zero. What size of Kroeschell boiler will be needed to heat this house and another one, 25x76, running east from the boiler? In other words, the boiler will be in the center of the two houses. M. B.

There will be no difficulty about heating a house 100 feet long with hot water, provided 2½-inch flows and 2-inch or 2½-inch returns are used.

As I understand the inquiry, there will be a rose house 25x50 feet at the boiler end of the house; next will come a carnation house of the same size and beyond this will be the office, of which the dimensions are not given, but which it is desired to heat.

Various plans can be used to heat the different parts and secure the temperatures desired. One way would be to run a 2½-inch flow pipe overhead through the rose and carnation houses to the office, provided it will not require more than 400 square feet of radiating surface. A good way to compute this is to use one square foot of radiating surface for each foot of exposed glass in the office (supposing that there are no very large windows); also one foot for each ten feet of exposed wall surface other than glass, and one foot for every 100

A Catalogue Worth Having

Our new Boiler Catalogue is a valuable book to any florist, large or small, and everybody who has a greenhouse ought to have one of them by all means. This catalogue tells you all you want to know about greenhouse heating and tells it in a simple manner, so that everything is easily understood.

Metallic Thermometer "A"

SIZE—8 inches high, 4 inches wide, 2 inches deep. Case made of cast aluminum, highly finished.

This little instrument is an accurate, fully tested thermometer showing the correct temperature at all times, and combines a device which will ring a bell at your bedside when the greenhouse gets either too hot or too cold.

The florist needs protection against the overheating of his greenhouses as well as a protection against cold, for which we can highly recommend our type "A." This device serves both purposes, and at the same time indicates, as previously stated, the actual temperature in his greenhouse.

We guarantee that actual results will at all times be obtained. This device has been subjected to the severest tests in our laboratory, for over two years, and at the same time has given entire satisfaction, under all conditions, to many users in the trade.

All you have to do is to set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures you want, and the thermometer will do the rest. It will ring a good, loud bell when either point is reached.

This device saves all worry over trouble from sudden temperature changes.

Investigate it today.

The "National" Differential Temperature Alarm

SIZE—4 inches in diameter, 1½ inch deep. Casing made of Sheet Aluminum.

A sudden cold snap, or a rapid thaw, may mean hundreds of dollars' loss because your greenhouse gets too hot or too cold before you realize the sudden change that has occurred.

Protect yourself from such danger

Our Differential Temperature Alarm is specially designed for florists' use and is guaranteed to give absolute protection from the dangers before stated. Set the pointers at the highest and lowest temperatures desired and this device will positively ring a bell at your bedside when either point is reached.

Over 2,000 of these instruments are now giving complete satisfaction to florists throughout the country.

It is constructed of the very best material available for the purpose, and contains no complicated mechanism; hence serves its purpose a lifetime.

The pointers on face of instrument can be set so as to allow a difference between a possible increase or decrease of temperature of only two degrees. All that is necessary is to change position of pointers by loosening set screw in center so as to set the pointers or hands on face of dial; then tighten said set screw.

We also manufacture separate instruments; No. 1, to ring a bell when the house gets too hot; No. 2, to ring a bell when the house gets too cold. Of course, the most useful is the instrument illustrated above, which is a combination of both No. 1 and No. 2.

Let us send you our catalogue of styles and prices. A postal will bring it cubic feet in the room. Also carry two 2½-inch flow pipes through the rose house, along the side walls to the farther end of the carnation house, and also two flow pipes of the same size to the farther end of the rose house, to supply the coils there. In each of these houses place a coil of six 2-inch pipes on each wall. The return pipes should be of the same number and size as the flows.

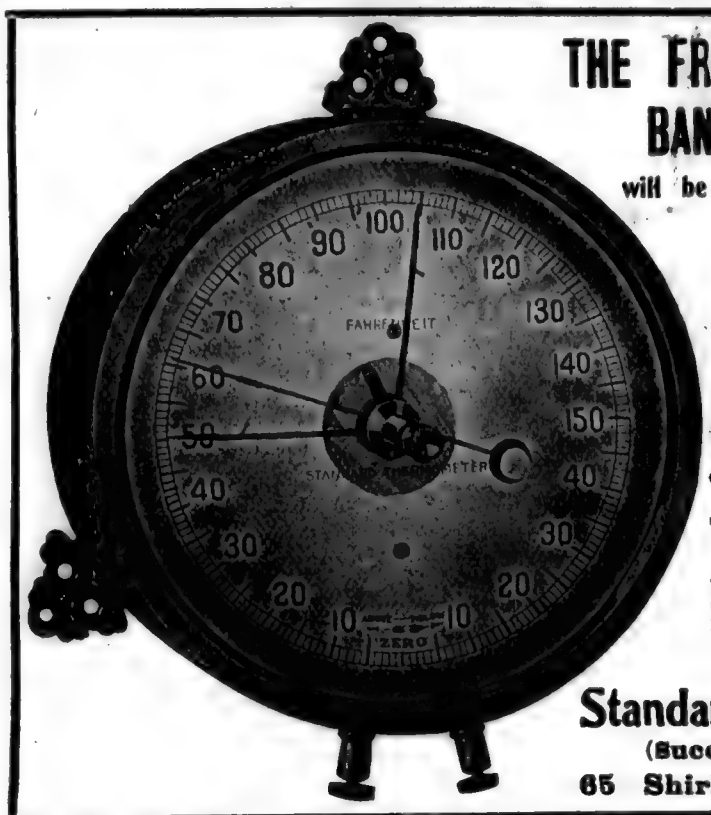
Without knowing the size of the office, it is not possible to give a close estimate of the size of boiler that will be required, but with 400 feet of radiation in the office, and the amount suggested for the rose and carnation rooms, it will be advisable to have a boiler rated for 2,000 square feet of radiation.

THE FUEL FAMINE.



The fuel famine in the middle west this season has been something entirely without precedent, and it has kept a great many growers on the anxious seat for over a month. One result of the famine will be that next summer a whole lot of growers will take in a great deal more fuel than they ever did before. A large part of the trouble has come through the inability of the railroads to move freight. It is true that the stocks of fuel were not large when the cold weather descended so suddenly early in December, but it has been more the troubles on the rail than in the mine that have made coal scarce. The man in charge of the operation of a railroad does not have the softest of snaps when zero lasts for weeks at a time. A locomotive is usually looked upon as an irresistible power, but many an engine has been frozen up these last few weeks. The railroads have been making special effort to move perishable freight and coal. The yards and sidings all through the Mississippi valley are filled with loaded cars of miscellaneous merchandise.

Just as an instance of how slowly fuel has come forward, last summer the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, built a big reinforced concrete shed for the storage of some 500 tons of coal. It was late in the autumn before the shed was finished, and they never yet have succeeded in getting enough coal at one time to completely cover the floor, to say nothing of filling the shed. J. S. Wilson, in the same town, says that he has gone to bed many a night with so little fuel on hand that if he did not get more next day his fires would go out.

Such conditions are not conducive to peace of mind; they tend rather toward gray hairs.

MARIETTA, O.—An accident to J. W. Smith's boiler, on the night of December 14, caused the ruin of his entire stock of plants and flowers for the holidays. This involves a loss of his whole year's work, besides the shrinkage in the business which he has built up during the last two years. His finances are thus so severely strained that he will have great difficulty in restocking his place as promptly as is desirable.

EATON, O.—S. J. Galloway sends this report, under date of December 29: "Ten degrees below zero. Pretty hard on both the fireman and the coal pile."

The Market.

Trade last week was good here. Carnations are now coming in quite plentifully, but the demand about takes care of them. They retail at 60 cents per dozen. Roses retail at $1.50 and $2 per dozen, violets at $1.50 per hundred blooms and sweet peas at $1 per hundred blooms. Paper White narcissi sell at 50 cents per dozen, retail. Stevia is about all done for this season.

Funeral work is good at present, using lots of short stock.

There is a good supply of Paper Whites coming into this market just now.

Lilies for Easter here are looking well in general, with good prospects of getting them in on time. Plant sales are fair just at present.

The weather continues cold, with an occasional snow flurry.

Various Notes.

William Livesey is sending some nice carnations to E. H. Chamberlain.

Wm. P. Peirce is still putting out those famous big violets, from A. E. Briggs, of Dighton, Mass.

J. H. Cleary has some nice trimmed baskets in his store window on Pleasant street.

S. S. Peckham is now back again at the head of his place in Fairhaven, Mass. Peter Davis, who was running it, has given it up. W. L.

TIFFIN, OHIO.

Edmund J. Ullrich, who has been general manager of the Ullrich greenhouses since the death of his father, has now purchased the entire stock from his mother, Mrs. Minnie Ullrich. Mr. Ullrich also leased the grounds and the buildings indefinitely. He states that he will make no changes in the force at the greenhouses, and will conduct the business in the same up-to-date manner as has been done heretofore. H. Rautenberg, of Lockport, N. Y., a practical grower, has been engaged to take charge of the growing department.

DAYTON, OHIO.

The Market.

Business in the last week has been largely governed by the weather, which has been the coldest that Dayton has experienced in some time. There has been but little sunshine, with plenty of dull days, which have so checked crops that it will take several nice, warm days to get them straightened out again. Consequently stock is scarce and the demand is much greater than the supply. There seem to be plenty of buds, which, with a little coaxing and sunshine, would bring an abundance of roses and carnations.

Though business, since the holiday rush, has dropped back to its normal standing again, prices are still holding up remarkably well, and stock, though scarce, is of excellent quality. There have been a few weddings and occasional funeral orders to help things along. Bulbous stock, such as hyacinths and Paper Whites, is quite plentiful and comes in nicely on funeral orders.

Various Notes.

The regular monthly meeting of the Dayton Florists' Club was held at the establishment of J. F. Young, 37 East Fifth street, January 10.

This week will be a big one at the offices of the National Cash Register Co., as all of its salesmen from all over the world will be here to attend the annual banquet. The Miami Floral Co. is furnishing the decorations for the occasion.

The Heiss Co. reports that stock is scarce with them, but they find business in general to be most satisfactory.

H. H. Ritter says that last week's business was just like a holiday week with him, with plenty doing throughout the entire week. R. A. B.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

NOXALL FLORISTS' HOSE

Furnished in any length up to 500 feet, without seam, joint or connection, ½ and ¾-in. sizes. An exceptionally high grade greenhouse hose, manufactured with a double woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover. The double woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking. Noxall Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 lbs. per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this. Noxall Hose is made by the latest and most improved methods and its construction is the most important improvement made in the manufacture of rubber hose since Goodyear discovered the process of vulcanizing rubber 75 years ago. No hose made will give equal service for greenhouse use.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Below zero seems to be the only place that mercury will rest here, and with continued cloudy weather the grower has to depend on steam to produce the blooms. The usual lull after the holidays is with us. Stock is plentiful, but the demand light. Bulbous stock is on the market in full sway, including tulips, daffodils, valley, narcissi, hyacinths and a good supply of speciosum and Harrisii lilies. Greens are scarce, particularly smilax. Prices keep up on stock in general. Blooming plants are selling well for this time of the year. Everywhere preparations are being made for Easter.

Various Notes.

WASHINGTON.

All the affairs of the recent flower show have been wound up, and the event has gone down into history as the most successful ever held in Washington. At a meeting of the Florists' Club January 4 it was announced a profit of more than $200 had been realized, which surpasses all records.

In celebration of the successful outcome of the show, that meeting of the club was christened "Whole Dam Family Night." Each member was made to smoke a pipe which was marked "Whole Dam Family." Refreshments were served from flower pots. The next session of the club will be "Ladies' Night."

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE BRIDE'S BOUQUET.

There is nothing in the line of flower arrangements which is so severe a tax on the average florist's abilities as the making of the bride's bouquet. In the big city stores there is enough of this work so that the maker-up, who is an expert to begin with, gets enough practice to "keep his hand in" all the time, but with the florist in the provincial city wedding bunches are not made every day, and when an order comes along it calls for the exercise of the florist's best efforts, and is the cause of much perturbation.

Too often the unpracticed designer makes the wedding bouquet of valley too closely set, so that it has a bunchy effect. It should be wired so that it can be made up loosely, as in the accompanying illustration, which shows a bride's bouquet of valley and adiantum made by Mrs. N. Updyke, manager of the Galveston Floral Co., Galveston, Tex.

RETAIL DESIGN CATALOGUES.

A retail florist writes the REVIEW: "After using for a number of years the regular stock catalogue which most florists use, our business has grown to the point where we believe it will be more expedient and profitable to publish a book of designs and floral arrangements which are more adapted to our particular territory as regards prices listed and also nearer our own ideals of style and quality. We intend to make up a book from photographs of our own work and put in just such printed matter as is adapted to our trade, and in the manner we would like.

"The book will be quite expensive, but we believe in time it will pay out. What we want is the advice of some of our brother florists who have been there before, in regard to some of the small points in making up a catalogue of this character. It would be better to know in advance than to find out too late.

"Any information or points, no matter how small, will be appreciated."

The REVIEW will be glad to publish, for the benefit of all who may be similarly situated, any suggestions its readers may care to offer.

SHARING THE PROFITS.

A retail florist in a prosperous Ohio city sends the REVIEW the following:

"I note with interest the suggestion in the REVIEW of January 13 that February 12 be made Rose day in honor of Abraham Lincoln, and write to ask: What is the use? The retailer spends his time and money trying to create a demand for certain flowers and, just as soon as he calls upon his wholesaler or grower for a slightly larger order than usual, he finds the price advanced from fifty to 100 per cent. High-grade Lawson carnations are offered me at $3 per hundred this week, but in ten days the price on this same grade of stock will be $5 per hundred, just because of the slightly larger demand created by the half-hearted observation of McKinley's birthday. If carnations could be retailed at 5 cents each January 29 the custom would have become extremely popular, of wearing a carnation in honor of McKinley, but I have seen literally hundreds of men refuse to pay more for a flower for their buttonhole.

"I for one shall spend no money trying to popularize a custom which only advances the price I have to pay for stock."

The REVIEW agrees with the correspondent in so far as it deprecates any attempt to advance prices because of an as yet undeveloped demand. But the REVIEW does not agree with the policy of any retailer who would quit pushing for trade simply because somebody else shares in the profit. The law of supply and demand still is supreme in the wholesale cut flower markets. Stock brings, not what the grower or wholesaler thinks it is worth, but what the buyers will pay for it. Naturally, the wholesaler tries to get all he consistently can—and so does the retailer, for that matter—but in the flower business the retailer must have an outlet for stock before the wholesaler has an outlet; in other words, the prosperity of the wholesale branch of the business follows the prosperity in the retail branch. The retailer gets his first, every time, or thinks he is going to, which amounts to the same thing.

The Bride's Bouquet.

THEY LIKED IT.

In common with a good many others, a certain florist of the old school was reluctant to "dun" his customers; he was afraid he would give offense and so lose trade. As a result, his efforts at collection went no farther than sending an annual statement.

At length the estimable gentleman fell ill and a younger man had to assume the cares of the financial end of the business. He found plenty of money on the books, but little in the bank. Arguing that they would be little worse off without patronage than they would be with patronage that didn't pay, he set about getting the money in.

The statement bringing in only a few, a polite note was sent, followed by personal calls, several of them where necessary, always pleasant, but unmistakably for the purpose of getting the check or information as to when it would be ready. Progress was steady, but got slower after a while. Finally a notorious delinquent was selected and suit was brought. It got into the local paper. Then for a time collections were easier. But in the end some score or more accounts were turned over to a justice of the peace, among them claims against some of the best known people in the town.

"And do you think they stopped buying? Not a bit of it," says the florist. "They actually seemed to like it. Business is better than ever and there is cash enough on hand to swing it."

TROUBLESOME PROBLEMS.

Covering an Unsightly Wall.

From time to time little annoyances and problems occur and recur, to puzzle and often to annoy and embarrass, and they are not settled by reason of lack of time or means. These unfinished and avoided things make us uncomfortable and dissatisfied, while, if attacked one by one in a determined manner, they could be dispatched for good and all.

In an otherwise tasteful store some one unsightly corner is enough to spoil it all. One thing often seen in stores is a blank wall. Quite often it is a wooden partition, a thing which has been made of matched boards and painted white in some remote age, and to call it gray would now be a scandal to the color. This is never an inviting background for decorations, yet the sensible impulse is to cover it if possible. To secure a reasonably good background, cover the wall with burlap in some neutral color to blend with the other coloring of the room, and have it planned by a good interior decorator.

A Series of Decorations.

Having thus got fairly well started, plan a series of decorations according to the season of the year and the material at hand for local occasions. Show customers how you propose to do it for them in your best style, without damaging the wall with tacks and nail holes. Have an object lesson in decorating always in sight. After Thanksgiving begin a Christmas series of garlanding, wreathing and various combinations and designs, Christmas tree decorations, etc. Soon afterward will come ideas for Valentine's day and Washington's birthday, with their several opportunities of educating the public to your highest standard.

You can often see such a place beautified by a set of mirrors placed permanently in the wall, but it seems to be the most profitable to reserve the space for actual demonstrations, to be changed frequently. Such a wall space has been decorated beautifully as a solid bark panel, with irregular projections, such as shelves for plants, baskets and other rustic receptacles for flowers. Wall cases can be made attractive on such a space, but it seems that actual demonstrations are the best.

Unused and Neglected Materials.

Here is another hydra-headed problem, bobbing up serenely—not. We grow fond of using some one or more accessory materials with flowers or plants, and often need to renew the stock, while some other material, which has never happened to be our fad, lies neglected, and some day we wake up to the fact that we ought to get our money out of this material, at least, to say nothing of using it in a self-respecting manner. For example, I may develop a fondness for chiffons and ribbons, and neglect to find a use for a large stock of cords. Here is the proposition—to use that stock of cords sensibly and even artistically. Why don't I make a pillow sometime and edge it with the heavy white, lavender or pink cord, knotting it at one corner like the finish I have seen many times on a cushion? Or why don't I tie a full cluster of chiffon with a cord on the stem of a casket bouquet? Or why don't I, when there is a surplus of green, have a drapery background for a window or in the front of the store and use my cord in that? Then, again, I might tie a spray on a solid pillow or wreath with a cord or cluster of cords, or use the finer ones for a shower bouquet, as a change from ribbons? Or I might do a dozen or so other things, just so I do not go cord crazy.

The Sentimental Customer.

There are still a few sentimental people left in this cold, materialistic world, and they occasionally are found searching for a flower to express what their command of English fails to do, and your salesman will be requested confidentially to select a flower which shall express certain tender feelings. Nine times out of ten the busy man does not know, but if he understands his flowers he will advise his customer to look over the stock of roses or other flowers, and will point out the various characters represented among them. One flower, it will be noticed, is modest; another holds its head proudly; another is coquettish or inquisitive or wistful. There is some expression about each one of them, even in the weary droop of a limp stem in cloudy weather.

Many men—and women, too—must admit to themselves that their knowledge of color is limited, and their natural sense of color is not sufficiently strong to insure them against blunders which their more critical customers will be apt to detect. The answer is one which cannot be avoided: Become as little children and take lessons.

Color Combinations.

Learn to mix paints and to analyze color in any flower which comes to hand, for no flower is purely one color, but composed of a combination of few or many. Find traces of the tints which tell what kind of a white flower you are looking at. Every so-called white flower has a tint of some color in it; it may be yellow, which is commonly called cream; it may be a trace of red, which, when diluted as here in the white flower, is called pink; it may be an admixture of violet, which, when reduced to a weak strain, is called lavender. Now, whatever tint that is, it will give a clue as to what other color that particular white will combine with best, which will be its own original color or its opposite color in the primal order of the color circle. For instance, how restful and pleasing is a dark violet with a delicately tinted lavender-white sweet pea! How soft and perfect is the combination of a deep orange marigold with a creamy white one! And so on with an innumerable host of examples which we can search out for ourselves.

Example of Dignified Advertising by a Retail Florist.

RETAILERS' ADVERTISING.

In most of the principal cities the leading retailers are finding by experience that newspaper advertising is as great a power for the increase of the flower business as it is in other lines of merchandising. Indeed, it is the stores which employ the highest art in their work that find advertising of the greatest benefit. The day has gone by when a florist aspiring to do a large business can get along without the use of the daily newspaper.

The accompanying illustration shows the style of advertising which is being employed effectively by Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C. This firm caters to the best trade at the national capital. The old idea was that newspaper advertising cheapened the reputation of the first-class retail florist who employed it, and this might be true if the offers were always along the lines of the special sales at department store prices, but where the advertising is dignified in character it is found that it increases the prestige of the florist. In other words, purchasers would rather send flowers bearing the name made familiar by high class advertising than to send flowers carrying the name of a little known florist, no matter how good his work might be.

TROUBLE WITH SWEET PEAS.

What is the matter with my sweet peas, a sample of which I enclose? They grow all right to this size, then begin to die at the roots. They are grown on a raised bench in seven inches of good, rich soil, with six feet of head-room. They get plenty of water. The temperature of the house is from 40 to 50 degrees at night and 60 to 70 degrees in the daytime.

H. G. S.

Judging from the appearance of the vine received, I should say that your seeds have been sown too thickly. The majority of growers use a pound of seed where an ounce would have sufficed. You have a good depth of soil and a fair amount of head-room, but not sufficient for vigorous vines. Either sow your seeds in flats and transplant singly four inches apart, or, if you want to sow in drills, thin out to that distance apart. It is impossible to prevent this drying out among overcrowded seedlings. Either plant thinly, the best plan, or thin severely. Your temperatures should suit sweet peas well; 45 to 48 degrees at night in the early stages and 48 to 50 degrees when in flower are about right.

Geraniums

WINTER FLOWERING GERANIUM

Geraniums Never Unseasonable.

In spite of the striking advance made in cannas and other flowering bedding plants, there has been no lessening in the popularity of geraniums, which could be less easily spared than any other plant for summer bedding. It is seldom that specialists in geraniums have much of a surplus at the end of the season, and the person who grows a selection of reliable and up-to-date varieties in quantity can more readily dispose of them than any other plants. Looking back even a couple of decades, a notable advance in the zonal section is apparent. Some of the old-timers still remain and will be hard to displace, but each year the new European introductions of Lemoine, Cannell, Bruant, Rozain-Boucharlat and other specialists give us some glorious varieties. All may not be adaptable for bedding purposes, but for pot culture what can be finer?

It would almost seem as if the culture of geraniums for winter flowering was something of a lost art, as so few of them are seen of late years. Signs of an awakened interest are manifesting themselves and they are destined to become as popular during midwinter as they now are in May.

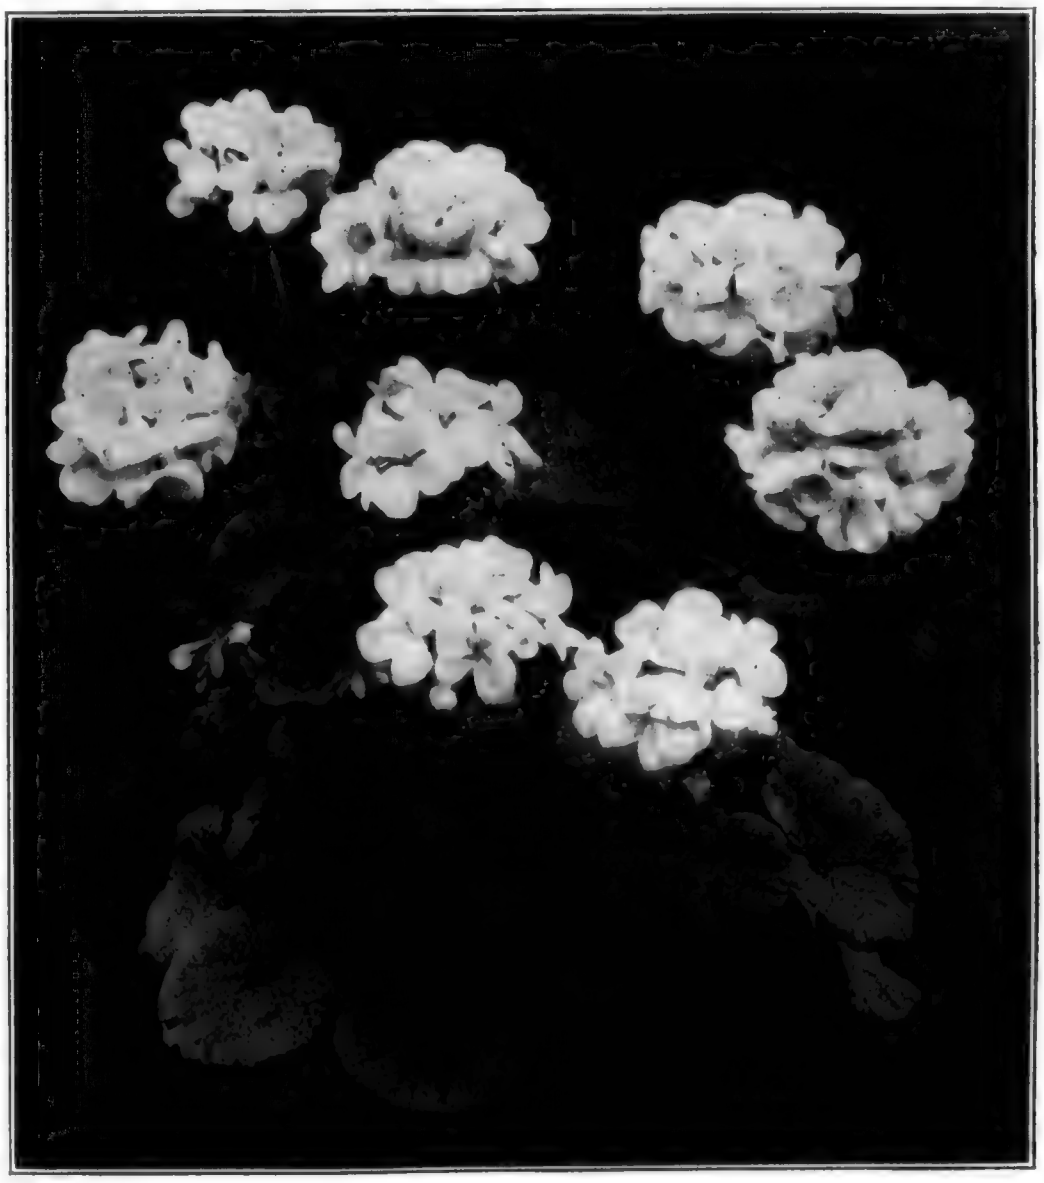
A well flowered 6-inch pot of Jacquerie, Paul Crampel, Emile Zola or Maxime Kovalevski will take the average purchaser's eye quicker than the omnipresent azaleas, poinsettias, Lorraine begonias or cyclamens for Christmas. With the passing of this holiday, poinsettias and Lorraines rather pall upon us, but geraniums are never unseasonable, being as serviceable in the hottest as in the coldest months, and with a reasonable amount of care will give as lasting pleasure as any other flowering plant and more than most. For the country florist doing considerable retail trade, there is a splendid chance to grow and dispose of many of these in winter as well as in early summer. I have noted that where well flowered plants were placed on sale alongside of other winter blooming subjects, the geraniums have always been eagerly snapped up, for who is there who does not like these plants when well grown and flowered?

Starting the Winter Stock.

For any who may wish to try their luck with them another season, cuttings should be taken in late January or early February. Use a 2-inch pot for each. This is far more satisfactory than the cutting bench. Instead of clear sand, use loam lightened with a dash of leaf-mold and sufficient sharp sand to make it porous. If the pots can be stood on a bench over heating pipes to give them a little bottom heat, they will root all the more speedily. They want no shade. After the initial watering, they should be allowed to dry out well before being soaked again. Not over five per cent of the cuttings should fail to root.

Shift along into 3-inch, 4-inch and 6-inch pots as required, cutting out the leaf-mold and using good fibrous loam, to which some spent mushroom manure or old cow manure, with a little fine bone, is added. As a rule, 6-inch pots are the best size to flower the plants in. They bloom better when well matted with roots. During the summer months they can be stood outside if desired, but I find they do more satisfactorily if kept under glass all the time. Pinching to keep the plants shapely will be necessary. If wanted for Christmas blooming, this must be discontinued at the end of September. All flower trusses should be removed until six or eight weeks before they are wanted in full bloom. Some varieties of a naturally stocky habit, such as Scaramouche, Emile Zola, Reformator and Ian Maclaren, will not require much pinching, while, on the other hand, such varieties as The Sirdar, Jacquerie, Maxime Kovalevski, Pamela and J. M. Barrie will require considerable.

Feeding and Watering.



When the flowering pots are well filled with roots, feeding should commence and continue right up to the end of the flowering season. Liquid animal manures promote too soft and flabby a growth and are not conducive to floriferousness. The safest and best fertilizers are Bon Arbor No. 1 and Clay's fertilizer. The latter is an old, reliable sort, which gives splendid results. A common error, and one often responsible for geraniums blooming poorly while growing strongly, is keeping them too constantly moist at the root. Even while in flower it is best to allow them to dry out well between the waterings. This hardens the wood and promotes floriferousness, while when constantly damp they make a rank, soft growth and flower unsatisfactorily.

A cool, sunny house, with abundant ventilation, is best for the plants in summer. While flowering, a rather dry atmosphere and a night temperature of 50 degrees suits them well. A light shade may be necessary when the plants are in flower, more especially in the southern states.

As a general thing, the single flowering sorts are much to be preferred to the doubles for winter flowering. They bloom much more profusely and visitors in nearly every case select them in preference to the best doubles. If to be shipped considerable distances, doubles may be more desirable, but not otherwise.

Some Suitable Varieties.

The following varieties are all strictly first-class and make excellent pot plants: Lucile Hill, light salmon rose, big trusses, carried on long stems, flowers closely packed in the trusses; Louis Renault, a good Lemoine variety, dwarf habit, orange-scarlet trusses of large size; Marcellin Berthelot, bright scarlet, nice dwarf habit, should make an ideal bedder; Jeanne Gazin, beautiful clear rose color, vigorous, its heavy trusses carried on long, stiff stems well above the foliage, should make a superb bedding variety when better known; Scaramouche, makes an ideal pot plant, dwarf and compact, color a glorious rich salmon shaded with copper, a color everyone admires, one of the best of the new varieties; Sydney, one of Cannell's English round-flowered varieties, the largest florets of any, soft pink of perfect symmetry; Lucania, another Cannell's variety, immense trusses of large flowers, cerise shaded orange with light eye; Pamela, also sent out by Cannell, extremely vigorous and needs a lot of pinching, color crimson lake with white eye, big trusses carried on strong stems; Juste Oliver, the big trusses have a peculiar mixture of colors, purplish carmine with upper petals light red, fine under sunlight; Jacquerie, still hard to beat either for bedding or as a pot plant, its rich crimson scarlet trusses rivet anyone's attention; Richmond Beauty, an old reliable sort, scarlet with a white eye, very floriferous; Maxime Kovalevski, splendid trusses of brilliant orange red flowers, makes a superb pot plant; J. M. Barrie, salmon rose, large perfect flowers of the English round-flowered type; Duke of Bedford, makes a fine pot plant, huge trusses of crimson scarlet flowers with white eyes, the individual florets are two and one-half to three inches in diameter; Cannell's Crimson Bedder, immense heads of crimson scarlet flowers; Reformator, dwarf and floriferous, color bright scarlet, an ideal habit for a bedding variety; L'Aube, pure white, one of the best of its color; Paul Crampel, equally fine for pots or bedding, its dazzling scarlet color makes it fine for Christmas, it is easily possible to have plants in 6-inch pots carrying a dozen flower heads at a time; Prince Olaf, a splendid rosy pink, large trusses; Emile Zola, Lemoine's finest introduction, rich salmon pink, makes a superb pot plant, big trusses which hardly seem to shake out at all, if restricted to one variety for winter blooming it would be Zola; Ian Maclaren, same habit as Zola, trusses similar in form, color salmon pink in center of florets, fading out to delicate peach pink at outer edges of petals; The Sirdar, strong grower, brilliant scarlet with white eye; Mrs. Brown Potter, grand, clear rosy pink.

Geranium L'Aube.

Geranium Emile Zola.

If restricted to six of the foregoing varieties, my choice would be Emile Zola, Paul Crampel, Ian Maclaren, Jacquerie, Scaramouche and Maxime Kovalevski.

The plants illustrated were in 6-inch pots and photographed during Christmas week, 1909. The double variety, included by way of contrast, is Queenswood, a pleasing shade of delicate salmon mottled with white. W. N. Craig.

ASTERS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

Permit me to offer some words of encouragement to P. G. C., who wishes to grow asters for Memorial day, and whose inquiry on the subject appeared in a recent issue of the Review. Don't be discouraged. You can have beautiful asters for Memorial day if you will avail yourself of the suggestions given by G. J. Benedict in the Review of January 28, 1909, page 80. Mr. Benedict says:

"For the benefit of my brother florists, I wish to offer a bit of information regarding an early variety of aster which I tried last season, called Dawn of Day. I found the variety catalogued by W. W. Rawson & Co., of Boston, Mass., who claimed for it the earliest record given to any variety of aster—that it would bloom by June 15. So I thought I would see what could be done with it. I sowed my seed by February 15 and flatted the plants as soon as possible. I also potted a few, which proved still earlier in blooming. I had elegant blooms to cut by early May, and, according to my records, I had cut asters to tie up for funeral work by May 9, 1908. At Decoration day, 1908, I had elegant asters to cut, which sold well.

"By planting this strain out in a good coldframe as early as the frame can be prepared, one could have a bed full for Decoration day that would bring in many long sought dollars. The blooms are about the size of Boston Market and perfect in shape, with stems eighteen to twenty inches long. With good treatment and plenty of feed, the Dawn of Day aster is a prize which never in my experience has been equaled or even heard of. I shall grow more of them this season, as they come in when it is hard to get blooms of anything except roses and carnations.

"The Dawn of Day needs to be grown quite near the glass in its young stage, as its early habit of growth causes it to want to go into a single flower stem if left on too low a bench.

"Anyone trying this strain of aster will never regret it. The flowers are pure white and the plants keep blooming a long time. I hope anyone who wants early asters will try this variety.''

Geranium Queenswood.

Now, ''the proof of the pudding is in the eating of it.'' I followed Mr. Benedict's instructions and was well repaid for doing so. As Decoration day drew near I found that I was short on white geraniums, but my asters were coming finely. For the geraniums, therefore, I substituted beautiful, snow-white asters and these were all sold quickly except a few that were in bud. Each stalk produced from four to six flowers. I planted them at intervals and had Dawn of Day asters all the season. I would advise, however, that the seed be planted one week earlier than Mr. Benedict directs. Keep the young plants near the glass, as Mr. Benedict says.

In regard to the REVIEW, I do not know how we could get along without it. Our plan is to file all the papers in the order of their publication, marking any special subject with a book-mark, and thus we always have a ready instructor at hand. A. O. NYSEWANDER.

THAT TAX ON GROWING STOCK.

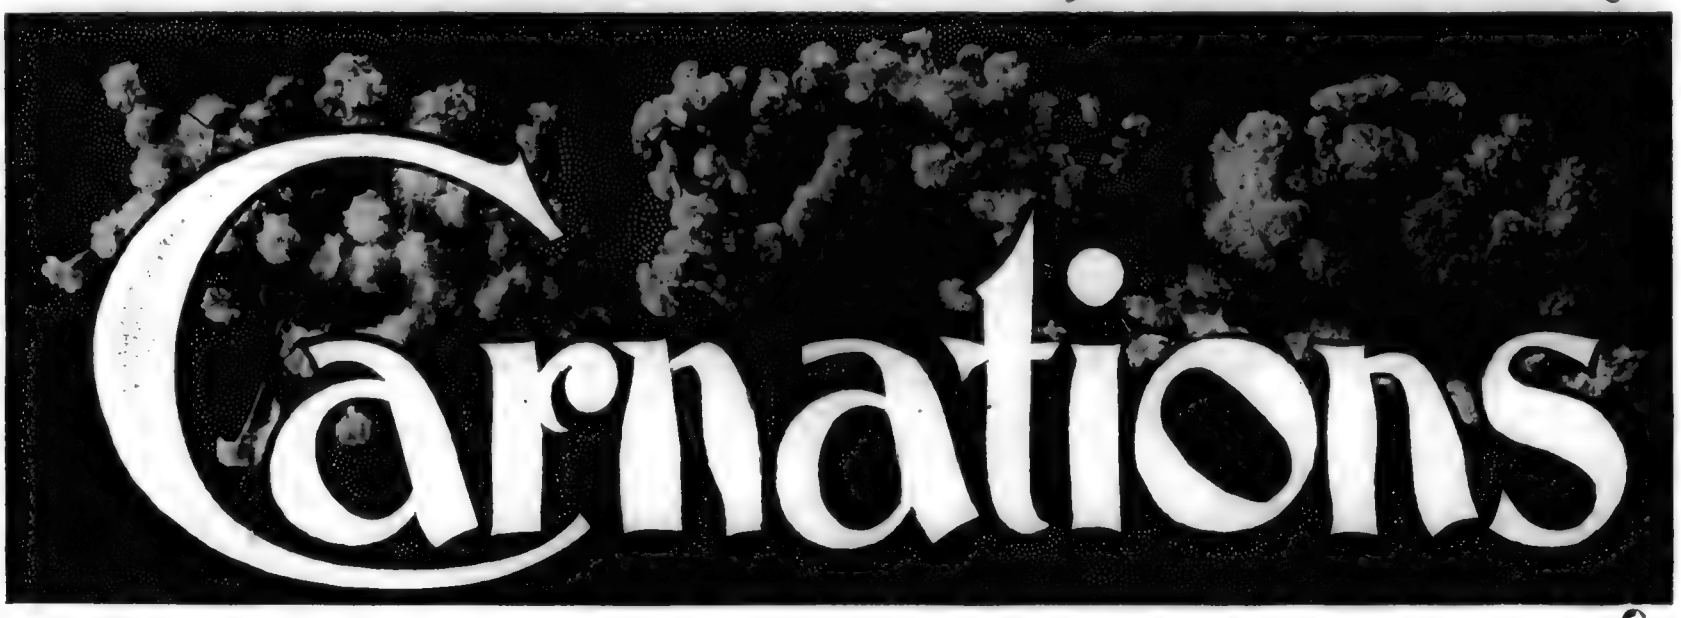
A local newspaper at Natick, Mass., has the following to say of the attempt now being made in that state to tax the growing stock in greenhouse benches:

''The tax commissioners have issued orders to tax the florists for growing plants. This seriously affects Natick flower growers. This week tax bills have been sent to the several growers and naturally enough they are indignant and declare they will not pay the same. We sympathize with them and would fight the cause in the legislature before we would pay it. It appears unjust and unwarranted. The florists today pay their full quota of taxes one way or another. On May 1 each grower is assessed at the rate of the town tax or $22.40 on the $1,000. Here his long rows of glass houses, their heating apparatus, benches and land are all assessed to the limit, the same as any farmer's houses, cattle and land are assessed, and at the same rate. Now comes an extra tax, an unwarranted tax, a hardship tax, so to speak, in the month of December, making two tax levies a year. At this rate or by this method of doing business by the state, the assessors should visit every farm in Natick during the spring of the year and tax every field of cabbage, every hill of potatoes and corn; in fact, in order to be consistent with the flower growers' tax they should tax every green thing the land produces, even to grass from which hay is made and sold. There is just as much justice in this idea as in the method now adopted by the tax commissioners. The Natick assessors should not be censured for this new tax levy, they are carrying out the law. We can see, however, that they can have no knowledge of the value of the newly assessed material or substance, since there is really no value in it until it is producing. The whole idea is wrong and singles a certain industry for double taxation which is already, as we stated above, taxed the limit. There is a strong organization of flower growers who will no doubt have this matter handled ably before the legislature and the tax commission and we have no doubt the injustice of the affair will be straightened out satisfactorily.''

PLANTS FOR SMALL HOUSE.

I can grow more than I want for my own trade. Could you tell me what would be the most profitable flowers for me to grow under glass in a house 10x28 for summer or winter? I have quite a piece of ground that I can put to flowers during the spring. What would be the best kind to set out that would be good bloomers and for cutting? I can sell quite a number of flowers in the summer.

S. B.



Violets in winter and bedding plants to follow them would be the best use you could make of your house. It is too small for carnations or roses, but could be devoted entirely to bedding plants, such as geraniums, if you have sufficient local call for them. As profitable outdoor flowers, which ship well and are popular, the leaders are sweet peas, asters and gladioli. To these might be added white candytuft, Gypsophila paniculata, hardy phloxes, montbretias, Spanish and German iris, Pyrethrum roseum, Anemone Japonica alba and quite a variety of other perennials and annuals. The first three flowers named, sweet peas, gladioli and asters, are, however, the best if you want to restrict yourself to a few sorts.

CARNATION NOTES.—EAST.

Care of New Arrivals.

Whether introductions of this year or of standard varieties, cuttings received from distant sources require somewhat closer attention than those rooted on one's own place. The handling which they must necessarily receive in packing and unpacking, and the fluctuations in temperature which they are obliged to undergo while in transit, are attended with more or less risk of injury. Then it must be remembered that different soil, water, air and houses constitute a complete change of conditions and environment. The care bestowed on a new arrival, therefore, in many cases determines its success or failure in a locality.

It is our practice, when possible, to purchase cuttings unrooted, by this means eliminating the chances of injury to delicate roots. Besides, it is our experience that a variety becomes acclimatized sooner under home propagation. This is not at all surprising when we consider the fact, known to all growers, that plants propagated and grown in one's own establishment almost invariably give the best results.

Rooted cuttings boxed and sent on a journey lasting from two to five days are apt to be a little soft and, when potted, are more inclined to wilt than those taken from the sand and potted at once. This inclination is, of course, partly due to the necessary handling already alluded to.

Potting the Cuttings.

We must be particular to have the potting soil in ideal condition as regards moisture. If too dry, the cuttings' supply of sap is quickly depleted; if too wet, the operation of potting transforms the soil into a pasty mass, in which the delicate roots cannot thrive. Let the first watering be scant rather than liberal, and by all means provide clean drainage material on which to stand the pots.

Having, as stated, a tendency to wilt quickly, these young plants will need careful shading and ample protection from drafts.

In a shipment of rooted cuttings we sometimes find a number which were either behind the others in emitting roots, or the roots have been torn off. These are set aside when potting and are allowed to stand on the sand in the propagating bench for a week, where the gentle bottom heat generally brings them along to keep pace with the rest.

Wilting is not always to be remedied by applying water to the soil or spraying overhead. Many times a light covering with paper is all that is needed.

Now, it must not be inferred from the foregoing that cuttings of our own propagation will prosper under careless attention. On the contrary, the treatment here recommended will apply in any case, though we have a little more latitude in dealing with home-rooted stock.

One cannot expect much from a variety the first year it is grown. We feel repaid if we succeed in propagating a healthy lot of cuttings for the year following.

THRIPS.

Will you please tell us what is the matter with the enclosed plumosus, and also with the carnation bloom? We notice these spots only on our reds.

M. & J.

The carnation bloom shows the effects of thrips. Nicotine is the most deadly enemy yet found for thrips and you can apply it in various ways. Our favorite way is to spray on the liquid regularly to keep them down, and to apply a few extra doses in case they seem to get too obstreperous. These little pests seem to be everywhere and it seems almost impossible to get rid of them permanently, so you must simply keep them under by a constant warfare against them.

Dusting with tobacco powder, and fumigating with fumes from burning tobacco powder or the prepared nicotine papers, are other methods of extermination in use.

The plumosus was too dried up to reveal anything as to the cause of the trouble.

FAIRY RING.

I am sending under separate cover a diseased sample of one of our M. A. Patten carnation plants. Will you please state what the trouble is? The plants were set in raised benches in the last part of August, in a light loam, with a small amount of well rotted horse manure. They were given a light dressing of bone meal about the middle of November and a dressing of wood ashes nearly three weeks later. The night temperature was kept at 50 degrees.

There are a few plants similarly affected in one of our other houses, but this particular bed is nearly all affected. However, five other beds in the same house are comparatively free from the trouble. Would you think it was caused by overfeeding?

H. E. M.

The specimen forwarded had considerable fairy ring on it, and you will have to get busy with your preventives to keep it from spreading during the cloudy weather which seems to prevail all over the country. This disease, like all the spot diseases, is usually brought on by too much humidity in the atmosphere. In combating it you must strive to maintain just the opposite conditions from those which brought it on.

Stop the feeding and try to get your plants hardened off, even if you check the development of the blooms somewhat. The quality will not likely suffer, but you will cut less.

Run your house cool—about 50 degrees—by giving plenty of air and firing at the same time. Water carefully, though not too scantily, at the roots, and eliminate all syringing unless you see red spider about. To destroy red spider, use salt water and wash it off, but only on bright days. Dust the plants with Grape

ROOTING CARNATIONS IN SOIL.

Will carnations root in soil the same as they will in sand, providing they have the same care? F. W. S.

The best medium for rooting carnation cuttings is clean, sharp sand. You would have your troubles in trying to root them in soil. Carnation cuttings must be kept moist to prevent wilting and they would be sure to damp off in soil. We have occasionally seen a young shoot, stuck into the soil in a sheltered position, take root, but such occurrences are exceptional. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS GETTING LARGER.

Several years ago Wm. L. Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., devised a measure for use on carnation blooms, a handy affair that has since become known to practically all growers, for thousands have been distributed free to whosoever applied. At that time this measure was four inches in diameter, and there was a carnation that would entirely cover it. When asked why the measure was made so large, Mr. Kroeschell said he "wanted to set a mark for the growers to work to," and that he was "sure that many will make the effort which will result in finally covering the disc." That his prediction came true was shown in an issue of the REVIEW last spring, in which a photographic reproduction of a carnation completely covered the carnation measure. The grower of the new sort was Charles Knopf, Richmond, Ind., and Mr. Kroeschell sent his congratulations. Now Mr. Kroeschell has set a new mark by enlarging his measure to five inches. "While this may seem to be asking a great deal," he says, "yet we feel that the growers are moving forward steadily and surely and that with this new mark continuously before them, some growers will in time put even this five-inch carnation measure out of business."

To help the work along, Kroeschell Bros. Co. has offered a prize of $25 in gold or a beautiful gold medal of equal value, to the grower who exhibits the best dozen carnations at either of the following shows, covering the new carnation measure of five inches in diameter: National carnation show, Pittsburg, 1910; Chicago flower show, 1910; National Flower Show, Boston, 1911.

ON TO PITTSBURG.

The Pittsburg Florists' and Gardeners' Club has made unusual preparation for the entertainment of the American Carnation Society next week. The club holds its regular meetings at the new Fort Pitt hotel and has been so well pleased with the hospitality extended it there that the hotel has been selected as the headquarters for the convention.

The arrangement promises to be the most pleasant and satisfactory in the history of the Carnation Society. The exhibition and meetings will be held in the hotel, and the Pittsburg Florists' Club will banquet the visitors there on Thursday evening, January 27. Thus everything will be under one roof, and there will not be the scattering of members which is the case where the main hall is at a distance from the hotels.

The Fort Pitt is one of the most modern of hotels. The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph of what is known as the English room. It is in this room that the exhibition will be staged and later that the banquet will be given. The size of the room is 38x107 feet.

CARNATION NOTES.—EAST.

Care of New Arrivals.

Whether introductions of this year or of standard varieties, cuttings received from distant sources require somewhat closer attention than those rooted on one's own place. The handling which they must necessarily receive in packing and unpacking, and the fluctuations in temperature which they are obliged to undergo while in transit, are attended with more or less risk of injury. Then it must be remembered that different soil, water, air and houses constitute a complete change of conditions and environment. The care bestowed on a new arrival, therefore, in many cases determines its success or failure in a locality.

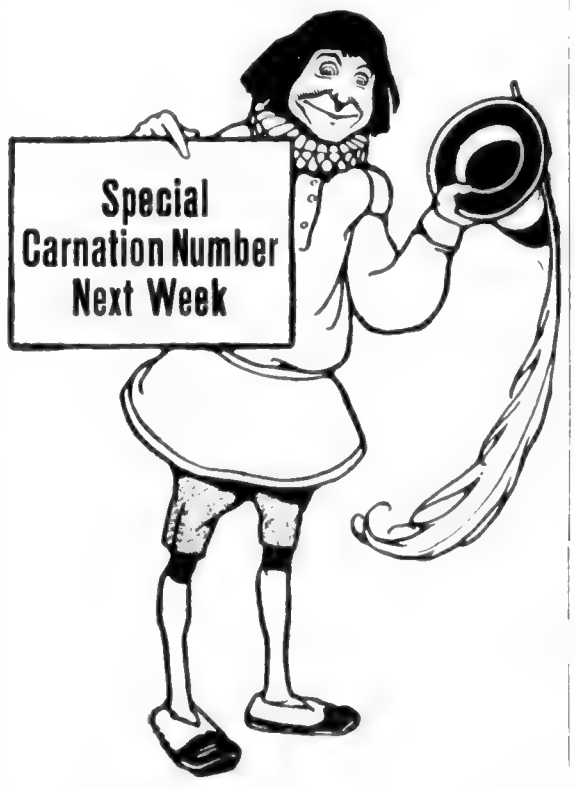
It is our practice, when possible, to purchase cuttings unrooted, by this means eliminating the chances of injury to delicate roots. Besides, it is our experience that a variety becomes acclimatized sooner under home propagation. This is not at all surprising when we consider the fact, known to all growers, that plants propagated and grown in one's own establishment almost invariably give the best results.

Rooted cuttings boxed and sent on a journey lasting from two to five days are apt to be a little soft and, when potted, are more inclined to wilt than those taken from the sand and potted at once. This inclination is, of course, partly due to the necessary handling already alluded to.

Potting the Cuttings.

We must be particular to have the potting soil in ideal condition as regards moisture. If too dry, the cuttings' supply of sap is quickly depleted; if too wet, the operation of potting transforms the soil into a pasty mass, in which the delicate roots cannot thrive. Let the first watering be scant rather than liberal, and by all means provide clean drainage material on which to stand the pots.

Having, as stated, a tendency to wilt quickly, these young plants will need careful shading and ample protection from drafts.



In a shipment of rooted cuttings we sometimes find a number which were either behind the others in emitting roots, or the roots have been torn off. These are set aside when potting and are allowed to stand on the sand in the propagating bench for a week, where the gentle bottom heat generally brings them along to keep pace with the rest.

Wilting is not always to be remedied by applying water to the soil or spraying overhead. Many times a light covering with paper is all that is needed.

Now, it must not be inferred from the foregoing that cuttings of our own propagation will prosper under careless attention. On the contrary, the treatment here recommended will apply in any case, though we have a little more latitude in dealing with home-rooted stock.

One cannot expect much from a variety the first year it is grown. We feel repaid if we succeed in propagating a healthy lot of cuttings for the year following.

THRIPS.

Will you please tell us what is the matter with the enclosed plumosus, and also with the carnation bloom? We notice these spots only on our reds.

M. & J.

The carnation bloom shows the effects of thrips. Nicotine is the most deadly enemy yet found for thrips and you can apply it in various ways. Our favorite way is to spray on the liquid regularly to keep them down, and to apply a few extra doses in case they seem to get too obstreperous. These little pests seem to be everywhere and it seems almost impossible to get rid of them permanently, so you must simply keep them under by a constant warfare against them.

Dusting with tobacco powder, and fumigating with fumes from burning tobacco powder or the prepared nicotine papers, are other methods of extermination in use.

The plumosus was too dried up to reveal anything as to the cause of the trouble. A. F. J. B.

WHITE KILLARNEY.

We can all see that the White Killarney rose is a growing favorite. It has had an excellent demand so far, and undoubtedly the demand will increase as the rose becomes more widely known. We think it superior to the Bride in most respects. It is much more prolific of salable flowers. The stems on the Bride, during dark weather, are very weak and make the blooms unsalable, while the White Killarney may go through a great deal of dark weather and still have good, stiff stems. It also saves a great deal of time and labor, as it needs little tying and it is not so subject to mildew. During the hot days of May and June the flowers on the Bride are inclined to get small, but on the Killarney it is just the other way, as the flowers seem to increase in size. In fact, it is an ideal rose for the entire year.

Here at our establishment we have only one house of White Killarney, but they have done so well that we intend to have several houses next year. At the time the houses were planted, which was early in July, the plants were all growing vigorously in 4-inch pots. Near the middle of August, as I remember, we gave them a light mulch of shredded cattle manure and then again about the middle of September. During the months of October and November they received a liquid dressing once a week. On December 1, the plants were given another mulch. We do not believe that a liquid dressing is good for the plants during dark weather, as it is too strong and there is danger of overfeeding. A good heavy mulch applied about December 1 will keep them well fed during the dark weather and there is little danger of their being overfed.

We have in this house one solid tile bottom bench and a raised bench and at all times the plants on the raised bench have shown more vigor. So it is easily seen that this rose wants bottom heat. The house is carried at a temperature of 60 to 62 degrees at night.

It is always a serious problem with the growers to know whether they are going to have their crops in for Christmas and Easter. I can safely say that this is a rose that we do not need to worry about, for by pinching it at the right time it can be brought into bloom just before Christmas. By pinching I do not mean to just nip the bud off, for with this rose, in order to get a clean break, it is necessary to cut off the stem down to the first leaf showing five subdivisions; and even then the shoots will spring up from the eyes below, so in order to obtain a clean stem it is necessary to take all these shoots off.

We find that the average flowering stem, before it is pinched, grows to about twenty inches. After it is pinched the new shoot grows to about the same length. So, by this method of pinching, you can get a stem thirty-six to forty inches for the holidays. By pinching from October 20 to 25, you will have no trouble at all in having your crops in for Christmas. W. J. VESEY, JR.

TEMPERATURE FOR KAISERIN.

Will you please tell me what temperature is best for Kaiserin roses that have just been potted from the sand bed? E. J. S.

Kaiserin cuttings from the sand should, after being potted, be put in a house with a night temperature of 56 to 58 degrees and should be shaded for a few days from bright sunshine, until the roots begin to work. RIBES.

TIME TO FLOWER BULBS.

Can you tell me at what time Lilium Harrisii will come into flower if brought in at once, and also hyacinths, tulips and Paper Whites? They were potted and put outdoors the latter part of October. I set them on a bed of ashes about six inches deep and covered them with ashes about four inches deep, with a top mulch of leaves and branches. I have a house that is kept about 45 to 50 degrees and one that I can keep at about 60 to 70 degrees without forcing. W. G. B.

Lilium Harrisii, if just showing through the pots, will flower in about twelve weeks in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. It would be too late for Easter, unless at least six inches high now, in which case it should have your warmest house.

Hyacinths and tulips should be housed when they have growths at least two inches long. They are better kept dark for a few days at this season, to draw them up a little, but after February 10 can go into full light at once. Allow them each four weeks in a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees, or six weeks in your cooler house. A month later this time can be reduced a week or ten days.

The Paper Whites should not have been treated the same as the Dutch bulbs. They should be placed under a greenhouse bench or on a cellar floor after being planted, and do not need any covering at any stage of their growth. Three weeks in a warm house and four weeks in your cooler house will suffice for flowering them. C.

AN ALL-THE-YEAR-ROUND CROP

Would you kindly give me a few hints on lily of the valley? I have never grown it before until this winter. I put 1,000 cold storage pips, for which I paid a fancy price, in a bench that I erected with slate bottoms, containing sand four inches deep, which I held at 65 to 70 degrees. They grew twelve to fourteen inches high and had plenty of foliage, but the flowers were so far apart on the stem that they did not bring much of a price. The first week I kept them dark, the next a little lighter. After that I took the shade off, except on sunny days. What could be wrong? The next 1,000 I put in about five weeks ago. It was new valley, kept frozen until then. My treatment was the same, only I kept them a little warmer, 70 to 75 degrees. It took them a good bit longer to start. They have a good flowering stem, but the flowers are still too far apart and they have little foliage. There must be also something wrong here. I would like you to help me out in this, as I do not want to give it up as a bad job. I would like to be able to cut 1,000 every week, as there is a good market for them here, but the valley must be good. What treatment would you give through the summer? Kindly give me details in growing it the year around, if it does not take too much space. M. B. S.

Your valley will come along quicker in winter if you give it a bottom heat as near 85 degrees as possible; 55 to 60 degrees is sufficient for top heat. I would prefer sand six inches deep, as it holds the heat longer and more steadily. One good watering each day suffices. Moisture must be afforded carefully after the flower buds appear. The more light is admitted the better the foliage will be. Some growers grow the small offsets purposely for foliage. With forced valley the flowers are usually somewhat wider apart on the flower stalks than when more naturally grown, viz., in full light under glass or outdoors.

Your treatment, apart from a deficiency in bottom heat, has been pretty nearly correct. It takes some time to master the exact requirements of valley, but you are evidently on the right track and will undoubtedly succeed. There is little use in attempting to force new crop pips until the middle of January. They start slowly and more erratically than cold storage stock.

Later in the season the bottom heat can be materially reduced and in summer, of course, it is not needed at all. Fine valley can be grown in coldframes in spring and early summer; it comes with splendid foliage. During the warm months, unless you have convenient cold storage facilities—a temperature of 30 degrees is about right—it will be better to have supplies come at regular intervals, a case or two at a time, from some reliable firm specializing in cold storage valley.

The largest growers keep up a constant supply the year around and use the same house for this purpose. It should have the glass well shaded, except during winter. For foliage during the winter months, it will pay to grow a few pips in the light, or if you have any ordinary outdoor valley, put a clump in a brisk heat and full light every few days, and it will give you what foliage you require. If grown in full light when the weather is warmer, you will get abundant foliage, shorter stems and the flowers more close together. As a general thing, this is preferable to the pale and drawn stalks usually seen. C. W.

REMEDY FOR TAR FUMES.

In the REVIEW of January 13, page 12, under the head of "Bad Effects of Tar Fumes," J. S. & S. tell of the trouble that they have experienced on account of using tar on their bench lumber. If they will thoroughly paint all the tarred parts with a thick solution of clay and lime wash, I feel sure that the trouble will be greatly decreased. This was our experience twenty years ago. I shall be glad if this hint will afford any help to a fellow florist. CHARLES BLACK.

PETERSON'S NEWEST BEGONIAS.

J. A. Peterson, who long ago established a reputation by his success with Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, has chosen the name of his home city for a new variety which he now is growing in considerable quantity. Gloire de Cincinnati, or, to give it the English form of the name, Glory of Cincinnati, is a seedling from Begonia Socotrana. The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of a house of it made just before Christmas. Mr. Peterson thinks he has a winner in this variety and that in the course of time it will largely displace Gloire de Lorraine. The picture would indicate that it is fully as free flowering as Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, and the individual flowers are much larger. It is of a somewhat deeper shade of soft, satiny pink and the flowers are carried well above the foliage. It makes an extremely handsome plant in small pots, as well as in larger sizes. But what Mr. Peterson says is its strongest point is that it lasts longer in bloom under the average living-room conditions than any other begonia he ever has tried, and he has tested them all.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Coreopsis Grandiflora.

Where a number of Coreopsis grandiflora were potted in the fall and have been kept in a cool pit until now, it is time to place a batch in heat for spring flowering. Do not coddle them; nothing warmer than the cool end of a carnation house should be given them. A florist who grew a number of these for Memorial day last year found them profitable. His procedure was to carry over plants in 6-inch pots, planting them in a bench about March 1. The quantity of flowers produced to a single plant is surprising, and as they have long stems they work in fine for bouquet work. Try a few plants another season and note how useful they will be.

Rhododendrons.

Rhododendrons have sold well at Easter during the last few years, choice new varieties like Pink Pearl especially so. It is still somewhat early to subject them to forcing—in fact, they are much better if not forced at all. Let them have 50 degrees at night, commencing eight weeks before Easter, and they will be in prime condition. Rhododendrons can be forced, but much of their beauty is destroyed by so doing. Grown and flowered comparatively cool, the trusses will last much better and the flowers will be of a decidedly brighter hue than where forced.

Lorraine Begonias.

The bulk of the Lorraine begonias will probably have been disposed of before this time. A sufficient stock should have been reserved for propagating purposes, and the present is an opportune time to take a good-sized batch of leaf cuttings. Plants from which the flowers were removed after Christmas, and which have been kept a little on the dry side since then, are the best to take leaves from. Always insert a portion of the leaf stalk in the bench and allow the leaf to just touch the sand. If the sand is not sufficiently porous, it can be improved by the addition of some finely broken up charcoal. This also helps to keep it sweet. A brisk bottom heat, say 75 to 80 degrees, and 60 degrees overhead are suitable temperatures, and with protection from the sun, careful watering and the avoidance of drafts, few leaves should fail to root. From these early cuttings big, handsome plants can be grown for next Christmas.

There remain, of course, some months in which propagating can be done. By trimming off all flowers and cutting the plants back fairly well, then keeping them tolerably dry for a time and later starting them up again, a fine crop of young cuttings can be had. Nice little plants can be grown from stock placed in the cutting bench as late as the end of July.

Campanula Medium.

Easter comes so early this year that few Canterbury bells are likely to be seen in flower. They are, however, a salable plant if nicely grown at any time during the spring months. If not yet started, some of the plants potted late last fall should now be introduced to heat. They cannot tolerate hard forcing and the night temperature should not exceed 50 degrees. As the pots become filled with active roots, feed them liberally and they will well repay for any extra labor bestowed upon them. White and pink are the best selling colors and single varieties are decidedly preferable to double ones.

Dutch Bulbous Stock.

A batch of Golden Spur and other narcissi, also as many flats or pans of the various tulips as demand exists for, should be housed from time to time. The tulips will be better for some drawing up in the dark, but the various narcissi should not now require it. Examine the general lot of bulbous plants for forcing. Most of them probably appear moist, but if shaken out are dry. Given good drainage, there is far more danger from underwatering than from overwatering. For Easter sales, hyacinths, tulips and narcissi must be kept as cool as possible. They will not require starting before March 1. Do not subject tulips to bottom heat, or you will spoil them. They will stand hard forcing, but not at the root.

Erica Melanthera.

Cuttings of Erica melanthera root readily in an ordinary cutting bench, such as may be used for carnations or geraniums. Rub the cuttings off with a heel, as these root more quickly than those cut directly through with a knife at the bottom. Keep them well watered and few will fail to strike root. Place in 2-inch pots when ready and plant outdoors early in May, in an open, sunny spot where they can be watered and syringed during the summer months.

Lobelias.

The drooping lobelias, such as are used for window boxes or vases, are easily grown from seed sown early in February. Where a few old plants were lifted in the fall, of the compact growing sorts, like Emperor William, adaptable for edgings or carpetings, the present is a good time to take a good batch of cuttings, which will have been freely produced of late. Many of these can be taken off with roots attached, and a few weeks in the propagating bench will see them all fit for small pots or flats. If an extra large stock is desired, they can be pinched and the tops rooted, while the old stock plants will yield another crop a month hence.

Petunias.

Petunias make such rapid growth from seed that it is still a little early to start them, except in the case of the so-called double varieties. Only a small fraction of these will come double, no matter how expensive seed may be bought, but in every case the weakest ones are likely to be what we want. A common practice is to discard weak seedlings. In the case of petunias this policy will not pay, as but few doubles will appear. The best way to secure a good lot of doubles is from cuttings. If some old plants were carried over, they should now give plenty of cuttings and those rooted right away will grow into nice 4-inch pot plants for May sales.

Cleaning Foliage Plants.

January and February are months when there is usually more time to devote to general greenhouse work than at any other season in the year. Advantage should be taken of long spells of severe weather, when general work is well caught up, to overhaul and clean palms, crotons, dracænas and other foliage plants. In most cases clear water will be all that is needed. Where scale infests the foliage, use some whale oil soap in the water, or weak kerosene emulsion. It is always better, after sponging with any of these insecticides, to give the plants a thorough hosing with clear water. This helps to prevent any burning which may result from using too strong insecticides.

Seed Supplies.

Many seed catalogues are already to hand. The seedsmen always appreciate early orders, and growers who want to be sure of securing stocks before they are exhausted, as many are likely to be this year long before the selling season ends, should sit down and write out their list now. Try one or two novelties; not half of those offered will probably be any better than the older varieties, but one good new thing is a rich reward for the trial of many. Never buy the cheap mixtures. The best seed always pays for itself in the end. It may be quite a while before you want to sow some of the seeds, but you can get them speedily and with the vexatious delays of the spring season cut out, who would not take time by the forelock and do his seed ordering now?

Painting.

While winter is not the time when the woodwork is as dry as could be wished, there are few days when it is not dry enough to paint. Midwinter is a good time to go over houses or some portions of them which are in need of painting. It is not possible to do this work in structures where there are growing crops in benches, but in houses carrying a general line of pot plants, or between crops, it is possible to get over a good deal of indoor painting before the spring rush comes along. It pays to paint; not only does it preserve the wood, but it keeps the house free from drip, makes it neater and, best of all, lighter. There may be a quantity of hotbed sashes not now in use, and which are crying for a coat of white lead and oil. Get these under cover and, as time permits, paint them over.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Another blizzard reached us January 14 and, with a foot of additional snow, accompanied by a howling northeaster, business suffered temporarily. Fortunately, the snow was lighter than we had December 25, and damage was less. Now we are dug out once more, and business moves along quite serenely. On the whole, trade is quite good and shipments are cleaned up nicely, funeral orders calling for large quantities of flowers.

In roses some fine American Beauties are coming in; the best now bring $6 per dozen. Bride and Maid are the poorest sellers, and are likely to be dropped entirely here another year. Richmond sells well, as do both Killarney and White Killarney. Some good My Maryland are seen. It seems to be well liked, but as it needs a higher temperature than other roses in winter, is less profitable than others.

Carnations are none too abundant. Their quality leaves nothing to be desired. The various Enchantress shades, Beacon, Fenn, Melody, Winsor, Fair Maid, Queen, Helen Goddard and White Perfection are mostly in evidence, Pink Delight and May Day being the more popular novelties. Violets do not open fast and hold their price well. Some fine mignonette is seen, also extra good freesias. Rather more tulips are appearing, and Golden Spur narcissi are becoming more plentiful and sell well. Campernelles and Trumpet Majors are slower sellers. Paper Whites and Romans are still abundant, as is stevia. Some good wallflowers, pansies, sweet peas and snapdragons are coming in. Lilies and lily of the valley sell well.

In choicer flowers, Cattleya Trianæ is now in good supply and sells well. Cypripedium insigne is plentiful. A few dendrobiums of the Wardianum and nobile types are appearing. Gardenias of good quality are arriving, and are quite popular. Green stock of all kinds meets with a satisfactory sale.

Club Meeting.

The January meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club always draws out the largest attendance of the year and the meeting January 18 proved no exception to this rule, many ladies being included in the audience. The newly elected officers were installed, all but the worthy treasurer, Edward Hatch, being in attendance. Each made brief and optimistic addresses. The lecturer of the evening was E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum. Mr. Wilson's international fame attracted members from long distances and all were well repaid for attending. For about one and a half hours he kept them interested with a graphic description of his several Chinese trips. The vast mountain ranges, some of the peaks 21,000 feet high, with others not yet on the maps, but believed in some cases to equal the highest of the Himalayas; the difficulties and dangers to be encountered by the collector, and last, but not least, the marvelous vegetation of this wonderful region, as yet to a large extent unexplored, were each brought out realistically by means of numerous splendid lantern slides. After answering many questions, a rising and enthusiastic vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer.

There were, as usual, some good exhibits and the membership roll received a good addition. It was announced that February 15 would be carnation night; S. J. Goddard has promised to open the discussion and many exhibits had already been promised. Tickets for the annual banquet January 27 were in good demand and indications are that the attendance at this annual function will far surpass that of a year ago. The sale of tickets will positively close January 25. The annual financial report of the treasurer showed receipts of the year to have been $820.35, with a substantial balance in the treasury. The secretary's report stated that the average attendance at the meetings for the year had been 162, the largest attendance being in January, 323. There were forty-six new members added during the year. The exhibits committee had made ninety awards, one report of highest merit, one report of superior merit, eleven reports of merit, nine honorable mentions and sixty-nine votes of thanks.

The president appointed a new committee on exhibits and entertainment, and refreshments were served as usual during the evening.

Various Notes.

Owing to the raging snow storm January 15, at Horticultural hall, there was a much smaller audience than usual to hear the lecture on the use of water in commercial gardening. January 22 Albert Taylor, of Ithaca, N. Y., will be heard on "A Study of Continental Landscape Gardening," with stereopticon illustrations.

E. J. Rogean, at Park Street Market No. 1, is agent for A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and is handling some of that firm's high grade roses.

D. S. Horrigan, of Foxboro, is as usual in the forefront of those bringing in marguerites, both yellow and white, of splendid quality.

William Nicholson has still the finest mignonette to be found in the local market, the spikes being simply immense.

After an exciting and stormy session, the New England Dahlia Society, Incorporated, elected these officers at Lorimer hall, Boston, January 12: President, H. W. Kendall, Newton; vice-president, E. B. Gill, Medford; secretary, L. M. Bates, West Bridgewater; treasurer, W. D. Moon, Lynn; executive committee, C. N. Bacon, East Boston; J. H. Flint, Salem; G. A. Rawson, Newton; N. Allen Lindsay, Marblehead, and T. H. Tyndale, Boston. The members of the rival organization, the New England Dahlia Society, were unable to elect any of its members, or the auditing committee. A motion to strike the name of H. F. Burt from the membership roll started a hot debate, and it was finally left to the executive committee for adjustment.

F. E. Palmer is a candidate for selectman for the town of Brookline, with an excellent chance of election.

The S. A. F. committee held a meeting at Horticultural hall January 15, the chief business being the schedule for the 1911 show.

The Park Street Flower Market will not hold any trade exhibition this season, but will reserve all its energies for the national show in March, 1911.

Sweet peas from W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, carrying 15-inch stems, are among the finest coming into the market at present. W. N. CRAIG.

BEAUMONT, TEX.—E. & J. Stedman are preparing to erect a greenhouse on their strawberry farm.

DETROIT.

The Market.

There was a good demand for white flowers last week at the commission houses, which is a sure sign that someone is doing considerable funeral work. With some of the stores business has been none too brisk, while others have been pretty well rushed all week.

We are having some exceedingly cold weather, followed by the heaviest snowfall in years, keeping many people indoors who otherwise might be buying flowers or plants.

Roses remain pretty well cleaned up. Carnations began to gather toward the latter part of last week, especially in the deeper colors. In order to relieve this situation many were disposed of as low as $10 per thousand to fakers and stores advertising special sales.

Spring flowers are popping up on all sides, and the people seem to welcome them with open arms. For a while it has been roses and carnations, but the people are getting tired of them. It is the same old story year in and year out. When the mum season opens up it is a pleasure to handle them, but as the season draws to a close, how we commence to wish they were over with! So it is with the bulbous flowers, with violets, with sweet peas and all flowers which have their seasons. Is it any wonder then that we, or our customers, should tire of roses and carnations, which we have at all times?

Various Notes.

President F. R. Pierson, of the S. A. F., is to be congratulated on his selection of Michael Bloy, of this city, for vice-president of eastern Michigan. Mr. Bloy is a hard worker, and when he takes hold of anything, it is with a will.

The annual dancing party given by the Detroit Florists' Club last week at Harmonie hall was, as predicted, an immense success. The heaviest snowfall for some years occurring that same evening seemed to but increase the enthusiasm of the florists and their friends, who turned out in goodly numbers. The dance program was interspersed with some clever piano playing by Chas. Fitzgerald and singing by Miss Rieser, but the feature of the evening was J. F. Sullivan as violinist. But few in the craft knew that our friend, Mr. Sullivan, could play at all, and then to have him take his place beside the piano and play like a second Paganini was surely a pleasant surprise. A table, off in one corner, literally covered with sandwiches, coffee and punch, took care of the inner man, and all went home rejoicing only when the hour was away past midnight.

E. A. Fetter's window, all in lavender and yellow, was unusually attractive this week, and stopped many a passerby.

William Dilger is at present not feeling as spry as usual. H. S.

ROCKFORD, ILL.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Association held its annual meeting in the Loucks & Sheldon cafe January 17. A supper was followed by talks by different members of the association in which unity and coöperation were urged. Fred Carpenter, of the park commission, addressed the association on "Parks," outlining what the commission hoped to accomplish in this branch of civic improvement. The florists plan to coöperate with the Woman's Club in its movement to bring about a more general beautification of Rockford.

Previous to adjournment it was voted to meet for the enjoyment of a banquet the second Monday in March. C. H. Woolsey, retiring president, presided. Officers were elected as follows:

President—J. J. Soper.
Vice-president—Max Sadewater.
Secretary Treasurer—George Birks.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

For the first time in more than six years, a foot of light snow covers the ground, and, while not completely blocking traffic, has had a deterrent effect upon business generally. The florists, however, do not appear to have suffered any lack of business. This is entirely due to deaths, and funeral work has seldom been more active. From a dozen to twenty designs a day has not been an exceptional report.

The supply of everything was sufficient to meet all demands, although red carnations and roses find ready sale for decorative and reception purposes. Prices are about normal.

Newport Horticultural Society.

The annual dinner of the Newport Horticultural Society, to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the institution of the association, was held on the evening of January 11, in Mercury hall, at which there were nearly 100 members and guests. Among the latter were Senator John P. Sanborn, Representatives Robert S. Franklin and Robert Kerr, Mayor Patrick J. Boyle, John K. M. L. Farquhar, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and J. A. Pettigrew, superintendent of parks of Boston. Besides these, at the head table were President James Robertson and ex-Presidents Andrew K. McMahon, James McLeish and Richard Gardner. Addresses were made, a history of the society was given by Richard Gardner and musical selections were rendered.

Various Notes.

The Hogg Greenhouses have a handsome new delivery wagon that is attracting favorable attention.

Frank and Fred Vose, of Woonsocket, have the sympathy of the trade in their recent bereavement in the death of their mother.

Eugene Appleton will join the ranks of the benedicts on January 26.

Walter Sword, of Valley Falls, reports the largest business in his experience during the last fortnight.

John F. Woods has received the contract for all the cut flowers and potted plants for table and other decorations at the Narragansett hotel.

Charles H. Hunt had twelve funeral pieces on January 15 and ten on the following day.

Nearly 100 handsome designs were sent January 10 to the funeral of Mrs. Buffalo, one of the best known Italian philanthropists of this city.

Appleton & Sons put in the "Palm Beach" decoration at the Boston Store last week for the exhibition of summer goods.

William B. Hazard has opened his new store at 178 Mathewson street.

William Hay was snowed in for a couple of days, January 14 and 15, by the drift and was unable to get into town from his place at Oaklawn.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg, Pa.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

SIGN full name and address and your queries will receive prompt attention. Anonymous questions are not answered.

CUT flowers appear to be realizing better prices in the east than in the west this season. A year ago it was the other way about.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending the REVIEW $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

J. A. PETERSON says he is not the "creator" of certain new begonias—he objects to the use of the word in that connection and prefers to be spoken of as the hybridizer of the varieties in question.

THE S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., wholesale florists of Philadelphia and Washington, have issued a folder on "Culture of Asparagus Plumosus," edited by Charles E. Meehan, who is one of the largest growers of asparagus for the Philadelphia market.

J. A. VALENTINE, chairman of the committee charged with the organization of the proposed retail florists' delivery association, has called a meeting of this committee and others interested, to be held at the Fort Pitt hotel, Pittsburg, during the meeting of the American Carnation Society, January 26 and 27.

OBITUARY.

Luther A. Line.

Luther A. Line, of Carlisle, Pa., died January 6, as the result of a paralytic stroke. He was 75 years of age and had formerly been engaged in the florists' trade. He was a close friend of General Fitzhugh Lee.

Mrs. J. C. Craig.

Mrs. Nellie C. Craig, wife of "Joe" Craig, a well-known character in the trade in Chicago, died at her residence, 738 South Oakley boulevard, and was buried in Mount Carmel cemetery after funeral services January 18 in the Church of the Most Precious Blood. Mrs. Craig had been a resident of Chicago for forty-six years. She was the mother of Arthur, Herbert, Irene, Joseph, John O'Callaghan, Raymond and William Craig. The sons are engaged in the flower business with their father.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the application of Southwick Cary Briggs, of 1719 Lamont street, Washington, D. C., for the registration of the rambler rose described below, having been submitted to the American Rose Society on December 13, 1909, and no reply having been received from them within the required time, the registration becomes complete.

Raiser's description: Color, delightful shade of deep pink; flower, three inches in diameter, semi-double, free-flowering, five to seven blossoms on a spray; habit, vigorous grower and very hardy; parentage, hybrid of Madame Gabriel Luizet x Wichuraiana, seedling crossed by Baron de Rothschild. H. B. DORNER, Sec'y.

January 12, 1910.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Wanoka Greenhouses, Barneveld, N. Y., registers Carnation Rainbow, white seedling crossed Enchantress; white overlaid with pink; size, three and one-half inches; grand habit; large, high-built flower, making fine display; fragrant, with long, stiff stem and fine calyx; fine keeper and shipper. Also Carnation Sultana, Gov. Roosevelt crossed Mrs. Lawson; light crimson, three to three and one-half inches; fine form, free worker, ideal habit, long, stiff stem and fine calyx.

A. F. J. BAUR, Sec'y.

NEW ENGLAND APPROVES.

There are many factors which may influence an advertiser part of the time, but it is actual results which influence him most of the time.

The Review is the best paper before the trade, both for news and for advertisements.—G. J. Benedict, Concord, N. H., January 6, 1910.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The market has turned one of its periodical flip-flops since last report. All through last week receipts were greater than the demand, in spite of the fact that the cut was at no time heavy. But at the opening of this week the supply out through the country had become so reduced that a large number of shipping orders were received, and a considerable shortage developed. For some time white roses have been under the demand, and last week all short roses sold exceedingly well, while this week finds the rose market decidedly stiff. The only adequate supplies are in medium and long Beauties and in the extra special grades of Killarney, Richmond and to a less extent other roses. There continue to be ample supplies of Beauties, but the price has stiffened because of increased demand and decreased receipts, with a prospect of still further advancement in value. It has been the case nearly all winter that the extra special grade of Killarney and, indeed, other roses, has been, in proportion to the demand, more abundant than the medium grades. This still is true; it is easier to find the stock for the order which calls for the highest grade than it is to find the roses for the buyer who wants the medium lengths. Growers say the extra special grade has at no time this season realized its full value in comparison to the price obtainable for the medium lengths. Just now a short rose is worth one-third to one-half the price of an extremely long one, which is out of proportion to the cost of production.

While the cuts of carnations have not been reduced as sharply as those of roses, the increased demand has brought a welcome advance in prices of carnations. Last week stock was so abundant that it was difficult to find any buyer who would take the splits and other low grades; this week everything has a value, and

Carnations

You will find our Carnations to be all that you could ask—splendid stock, the best varieties in each color and the quantity sufficient to take care of the largest orders. We want to hear from large users of Carnations who have not previously bought of us. We can make it interesting for all such—not the cheapest, but the best Carnations on this market, and the largest supply.

Killarney and Richmond

Rose crops are light at present, but we still have a splendid supply of Killarney and Richmond—finest extra special grade, but the bulk of the cut is the special and select lengths, the grades all stores use in greatest quantity. No better roses anywhere, whatever length you need.

Beauties

Many Beauty buyers depend on us for all their supplies all the year around. We are prepared to take on more regular buyers of Beauties. Our Beauties make friends.

Violets

Our Violets are the cream of the Hudson River stock; that's why we are doing so big a business with them. Also fancy, fragrant, home-grown singles. Now booking orders for St. Valentine's Day.

Sweet Peas

Long-stemmed, fancy Sweet Peas, the white, pink and lavender, now in good supply. These will be one of our leading specialties in the next few months.

Miscellaneous Stock

Jonquils, plenty of Easter Lilies, Callas, Freesias, Mignonette, Paper Whites, Romans and Tulips, white, yellow and proserpine. Green goods of every kind; finest Fancy Ferns.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

We handle the "Chicago Market Brand" exclusively. Mr. Bruns is recognized as the leading commercial grower of Valley in the west. Many leading stores will use no other. We can supply any quantity.

white carnations are sharing in the demand for white roses.

The recent weather has been no more gloomy than the faces of those responsible for marketing the violets. Last week's averages were undoubtedly the lowest of the season to date. The quality of the stock is excellent, and the quantity fully as great as ever has reached this market in January. The demand simply has been absent. Each buyer taking a few hundreds made little impression on the bulk of the receipts, and the fair figures these buyers paid were lost in figuring the averages, for far the largest part of the receipts were sold to the peddlers. This week the violets are faring slightly better, but not enough better to hold out any brilliant prospect.

Because of reduced supply in other lines, the bulbous stock is faring better than heretofore. Paper Whites are selling quite well, and Easter lilies hold their prices in the face of increased supply. There are few cal'as. Tulips do not increase rapidly in quantity. Romans are seldom seen. Freesias are quite abundant. Stevia is not much in evidence.

Among the fancy flowers, white lilac is fine, and it is not possible to fill all orders. Cattleyas are equal to the demand; all orders are filled if needs are made known early in the day. Gardenias are abundant. Valley continues to sell well.

There is little change in the green goods market.

Will Manufacture Soil Conveyor.

The Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, is preparing to put on the market a movable soil conveyor for the purpose of emptying and refilling the benches in greenhouses. This conveyor consists of a metal bucket with a patent bottom for dumping purposes, and is suspended from a wheeled carrier which runs on an overhead rail. This rail is in sections and is bolted to the frame of the house. The sections are easily removed and can be transferred from one house to another as wanted. Wherever it is desired to dump the soil a cog is placed on the rail. This cog engages a cog on the carrier which automatically stops the bucket and at the same time operates the dumping apparatus, depositing the soil in the required place. The Garland Co. anticipates a large demand for these conveyors and, in fact, is now completing a new building which will practically double its facilities. A considerable increase in the iron gutter and greenhouse material business also is looked for again this year.

Horticultural Society.

At an adjourned session of the annual meeting of the Horticultural Society, held at the Art Institute January 14, W. N. Rudd presided in the absence of President Kelley. All the last year's officers were reëlected except Treasurer Wienhoeber, who declined another term. The officers are:

President—W. E. Kelley.
First vice-president—W. N. Rudd.
Second vice-president—E. Wienhoeber.
Secretary—J. H. Burdett.
Treasurer—N. H. Carpenter.

Next fall's flower show will be held under the same direction as the last one. Preparations are well forwarded.

Various Notes.

E. C. Amling is said to have something up his sleeve in the way of a new green something this market never has been offered before.

Fred Sperry was absent from the store of Vaughan & Sperry several days last week because of illness.

Henry Van Gelder has added palms and ferns to the stock sold at the Percy Jones establishment.

Frank A. Benthey, at the Des Plaines establishment of Hoerber Bros., says his roses are now in such shape that he is glad to have anyone come to look at them.

street, is doing quite a little wholesale business. He manufactures wire work and sells greens and some of the staple supplies to the florists in his section of town.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, is doing a two weeks' term of jury duty in the Criminal court.

C. W. McKellar says the present gardenia crop is one of the heaviest on record.

H. P. Gerhardt, at Wilmette, plans to sell the growing department of his business and confine himself to the retail end.

E. Wienhoeber has had several shipments of Begonia Gloire de Cincinnati from J. A. Peterson and speaks highly of it, commending it especially for its keeping qualities.

A note on the death of Mrs. J. C. Craig appears in this week's obituary column.

R. Jahn wishes it stated that he has had no connection with the Butler Floral Co. since December 5, the date on which he and his wife separated. Mr. Jahn states that the Butler Floral Co. never has had any connection with the flower store started just before Christmas at 294 Dearborn street, and that he also is the proprietor, with some outside parties, of the Sheridan road store, formerly conducted by the Butler Floral Co.

There was a meeting of the National Council of Horticulture at the Congress hotel January 17, Secretary H. C. Irish, of St. Louis, and E. D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., being among the out-of-town delegates present. Continuation of the press service during the approaching season was planned.

It gives C. L. Washburn pleasure to find, every now and then, in some European trade paper, a note like this, from the Horticultural Advertiser: "Of the American introductions, O. P. Bassett carnation appears likely to become rapidly popular."

The A. L. Randall Co. reports having already sold three times as many of the red heart-shaped violet boxes as were sold for St. Valentine's day last year.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. reports that it is impossible to close the store on time at night, the afternoon orders being so heavy that they have to call in stock on late trains to fill them.

Kyle & Foerster report last week as being their best to date.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says that in all his years in the business he never has seen a quicker change of market conditions than occurred last week.

At E. H. Hunt's supply business for Easter is beginning to pick up.

Tim Matchen is now in charge of Peter Reinberg's store. His brother, Mike Matchen, is responsible for repairs, maintenance and building at the greenhouses. Leonard Kill writes from Ocean Park, Cal., that he and his family are domiciled within a block of the Pacific, and that the weather is like summer.

Among the recent visitors have been William Dittman, New Castle, Ind.; E. D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.; W. C. Konzelman and his partner, Mr. Dille, who are preparing to build a range of greenhouses at Greensburg, Ind.

The Market.

Business for the first half of January has been quite satisfactory, and with some firms it has been much better than last year. We had real winter for the last month, and there has been a big hole made in the coal pile. The cloudy weather for the last few weeks has not helped the grower any, but flowers have been plentiful nevertheless. Funeral work continues steady, and this, combined with flowers furnished for numerous parties and receptions, has kept the stock moving nicely. Stock of all kinds is cleaned up daily. Carnations have been in demand lately. Roses are of good quality, notwithstanding the cloudy weather, and some extremely good Maids are to be seen. Bulbous stuff is also moving well. Stevia, lilacs, narcissi, peas, valley and orchids are in fair supply and move well. ply and move well.

Association Meeting.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held the annual meeting at the Commercial club, Tuesday, January 11, and it was the most enjoyable meeting had in years. The old officers were reëlected for the ensuing year. The reports of the secretary and treasurer found the association to be in a flourishing condition. The sentiment among the members was for a chrysanthemum show in Indianapolis next fall, and a committee was appointed to investigate. The committee appointed to revise the state fair premium list made its report, which was approved, and which no doubt will be approved by the State Board of Agriculture. The meeting was followed by the usual banquet.

A number of vases of blooms were exhibited, among them being a vase of Mrs. Jardine roses and a vase of May Day carnations from W. Frank & Son, of Portland, Ind., which received honorable mention; a vase each of Enchantress, Lawson, White Enchantress and a vase of mixed blooms from Stuart & Haugh, Anderson, Ind., all of which were exceptionally good. Baur & Smith, of Indianapolis, had a vase of Carnation May which scored seventy-seven points and a vase of light pink No. 271 which scored eighty-two points. The latter looked unusually good. This firm also had a vase of Shasta, which has received honors before. Baur & Smith may well be proud of this carnation, as it is no doubt one of the best whites on the market, and it really looks better than it did a month ago. H. W. Rieman had a vase of mixed carnations, among them being some exceptional blooms.

E. Knabe, of Frankfort, and Ralph Meeks, with Stuart & Haugh, were elected to membership.

Out-of-town members attending the meeting were Stuart & Haugh, of Anderson; J. S. Barnaby, the newly-elected mayor of Columbus; Fred Dorner, of La Fayette; N. Gano, of Martinsville; M. A. Barick, of Seymour; G. R. Gause, of Richmond; B. F. Hensly, of Knightstown; Carl Sonnenschmidt, of Cumberland; Chas. Frank, of Portland; Ira Clark, of Greensburg; and Bert Stanley, of Sunbeam.

The Market.

Although we have been having snow in this vicinity since December, still we were treated on Thursday, January 13, to the most severe blizzard known since the year 1888. Consequently, local business was practically at a standstill. The only thing that kept the retailers awake was funeral work. A few large funerals helped to keep things moving. With this inactivity, stock at times was left on the hands of the wholesalers.

During the storm, stock came in at irregular times. Then followed numerous complaints of shipments arriving from twelve to thirty-six hours late. The mails, too, containing orders, have been coming in all the way from one to two days behind time. So, all in all, it was a most unsatisfactory week. Prices ran down to where the growers undoubtedly will say: "Can't even pay the coal bill." Freight traffic, on the whole, has been at a standstill for some time, and it was not till Sunday that a fair start had been made. E. O.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO.

Club Meeting.

The January meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club was held January 10, in the potting sheds of the Highland Floral Co., Kriegbaum & Campbell, the proprietors, being hosts for the occasion. Tables and board seats had been provided, the former covered with clean white paper; gasoline lamps were suspended from the ceiling, and an ample supply of packing boxes sufficed for lounging chairs, while long rows of potted plants, supplied by Schmidt & Botley, obscured the benches and gave a flowery grace to the occasion.

An odor of sauerkraut and wienerwurst pervaded the atmosphere, and at seven o'clock the assembled members and guests attacked a menu which would satisfy the appetite of a florist of almost any nationality. At the conclusion of the repast, stogies were distributed and in a short time every greenfly about the place thought it about time for any kind of a fly to escape.

In the absence of both president and vice-president, the meeting was called to order by the secretary, Carl Glenn, who introduced ex-President Geo. H. Mellen as toastmaster, by whom the subject of the evening was announced as being "Anything and Everything of Interest to the Local Retailer." Mr. Mellen introduced the subject in a few well chosen remarks and then called on a majority of those present, beginning with the local retail men.

Clinton L. Reese spoke of the room for improvement in local trade conditions and referred to the matter of department store sales.

protection for the retail florist from the wholesale growers.

Charles C. Leedle favored the flower show project, provided the attendance be placed in the hands of some such organization as the Y. W. C. A.

B. C. Blake claimed Springfield florists could grow as good cut flowers as any place on earth, winter or summer.

Harvey N. Siegenthaler advocated a campaign of education to encourage outdoor planting, and some arrangement between wholesalers and retailers for the systematic disposal of any possible surplus of stock each spring.

Ben F. Howell, by reason of being a novice, and Alexander Maxwell, for not wishing to interfere in "family matters," excused themselves from making any extended remarks.

Charles W. Schmidt told a few stories in his usual style, explaining that a "Dutchman" was pretty likely to get the point of a story turned "hind-end-to," and then earnestly expressed his views, in which he claimed that the local trade situation was clearly up to the retailers for betterment.

Geo. D. Leedle endorsed the views of Mr. Schmidt and held that the retailers had no case against the wholesalers until they should themselves get together, organize and formulate some joint demand for presentation to the wholesale growers.

Frank E. Good stated that his company would be willing to comply with any united and reasonable request coming from the retailers.

Christian Binning, for the Geo. H. Mellen Co., spoke of conditions in the mail-order trade, said that his company had refrained from selling to department stores, except in one unimportant instance, and urged a greater degree of harmony and coöperation between the local retailers.

Leman Bradford, of the Springfield Floral Co., referred to the comparatively fair prices at which plants had been sold to the department store trade, although in some cases they had been retailed at less than cost.

Carl E. Glenn, of the American Rose and Plant Co., explained the department store trade from the standpoint of the grower.

Gustave Schneider opened his remarks by stating that "flowers in Springfield have no value," yet, in many cases he had been under the necessity of having stock shipped into town in order to obtain an adequate supply for his trade, and concluded by saying that it was immaterial to him whether or not flowers were handled by the department stores, the view being taken by many that this trade is just so much net increase and, in fact, is somewhat of an educator to the public in acquiring the habit of buying plants.

Altogether this was one of the most interesting and spicy sessions of the club, the prevailing sentiment being that the retailers must do their proper part, with resultant benefits and profits to themselves.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The eastern mails have suffered much delay for the last several days because of the wintry weather. The usual Philadelphia market report had not come to hand at the hour of going to press this week.—Ed.

The Gardenia War.

It may not be generally known that a gardenia war is being waged in earnest. It is but a few short years since the winter production of the gardenia was a prize that called forth the best efforts of the brightest growers in the east. These efforts have been chronicled several times in this column, first as general failures, then as marked successes of two or three masters of culture.

Last summer the floral world was particularly interested in the heavy additions of glass made, it was understood, expressly for the gardenia by one of the brightest growers supplying the New York market. It was understood and freely stated that this grower knew well what he was about and that his success in a minute fully equaled yours or mine in a month. Be that as it may, the houses were completed and the gardenias produced. Now, in the height of the gardenia season, there is a sort of inter-city war, the Street asserting positively that Philadelphia's gardenias have invaded New York and so fiercely competed with gardenias grown especially for that market, that the leading New Jersey grower has placed a representative here who is battling each day for favor in the Philadelphia shops. The effect will undoubtedly be to stimulate the demand for gardenias.

It is interesting to see how clearly improved methods and brains have overcome a serious obstacle in the winter blooming of gardenias, keeping the buds from dropping during dark weather.

Various Notes.

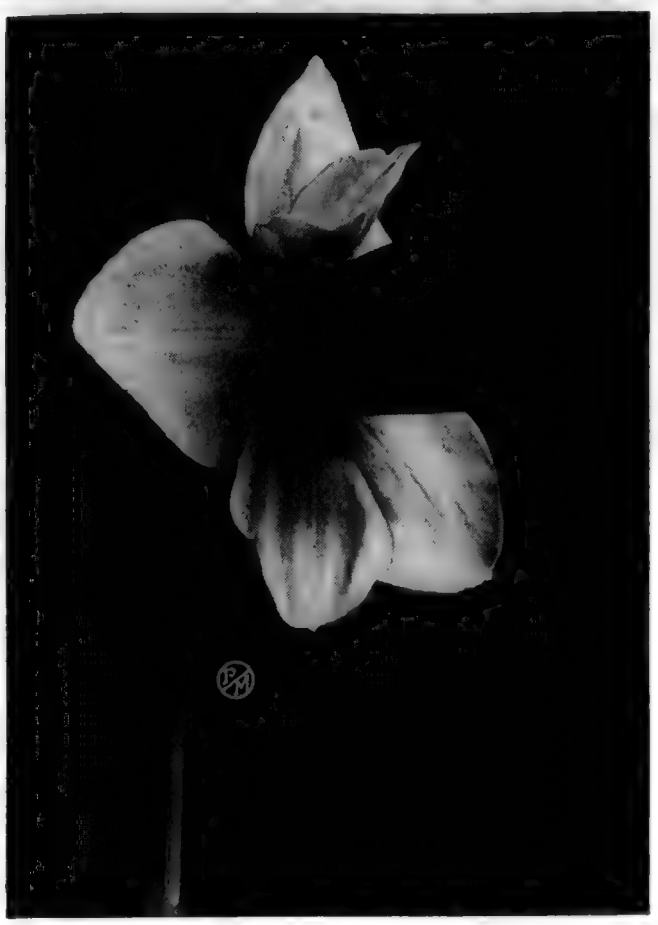
Henry A. Fitzgerald, of The Scientific Spraying Co., spoke before the Philadelphia Florists' Club on Tuesday evening, January 18. His subject was "The Proper Care of Trees."

John Lucas & Co. report the current prices of glass, greenhouse sizes, are ninety and ten per cent off the list, with probability of increased prices.

Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Market.



Supplies have been limited, but the demand was light also, and with the exception of Beauties values only held steady. The blizzard of January 13 and 14 was the worst in over twenty years. Beauties became scarce last week towards its close, and prices rose to almost holiday standards. Other roses held well, especially the lower grades, and there was no difficulty in cleaning up. The extras and specials were not so easily disposed of. While roses gave a good account of themselves, violets retrograded fast, and Saturday, January 15, the finest in the market could be bought for 50 cents. The tendency is still downward. Thousands were disposed of at from 40 cents down on Monday.

Carnations are abundant and the quality of most of the arrivals is superb. Mrs. Ward, Enchantress, Winsor, White Perfection and Alma Ward find buyers waiting. Some of the new seedlings are making a successful bid for patronage. The orchid supply is large and values have declined slightly. Cypripediums meet with but little appreciation. Narcissi are still in oversupply and are hard to move. Shipments of all kinds of bulbous stock are increasing. Forced forsythia is already in the retail windows.

General improvement in all branches of the trade is anticipated for the balance of the month, and until the season of sackcloth and ashes begins.

Various Notes.

February 20 the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association will have its annual dinner at the swell Hotel

Astor. Secretary W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., says the society intends to set the pace for the New York Florists' Club. Tickets are $5 a plate. It costs $50 to get into this association and $12 a year for dues, so you can realize there is some class to it.

The New York Florists' Club will dine sometime in February, as usual, and Chairman Walter Sheridan, of the committee, is already planning for the greatest reunion the club has known. The ladies will be invited. Tickets are to be $4 for gentlemen and $3 for ladies, the same as in 1909.

January 12 the Tarrytown Horticultural Society held its eleventh annual dinner. The attendance was the largest in its history and the most enthusiastic. The tables were handsomely decorated with plants, ferns, Winsors and Killarneys. A fine orchestra was provided by F. R. Pierson, and it was after midnight before the festivities were over. Secretary Neubrand, nursing a sprained ankle, the result of a flying leap from a runaway automobile, was presented with silver mounted brushes and gold cuff-buttons, and complimented highly for his official efficiency, to which he feelingly responded. Among the speakers were F. R. Pierson, who has become a story teller of the first water, and James Guthrie, from the Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The Wilson Hoyt Co. is now settled in its new offices in the Manhattan building, 1 Madison avenue.

R. G. Wilson, of Brooklyn, is associated with Mr. Weber in the dissemination of the new pink seedling, and will be at the carnation convention.

The funerals of H. McK. Twombly and D. O. Mills, which took place last week, brought much work to the leading florists. Wadley & Smythe had the Mills family order.

The Pittsburg convention will draw a large New York delegation. The Pullman promises to be full. Send your name to J. H. Pepper, Rhinelander building, and book your sleeping accommodations at once.

One of the ex-presidents of the S. A. F. celebrated his forty-third birthday on Twenty-eighth street and at his home last week with appropriate ceremonies.

Ford Bros. will move May 1 to the big store now occupied by the Manhattan Flower Market, next door to their present quarters. It will be an easy move and will give them larger space and better facilities than they have ever had. There were several applicants, and the Fords are congratulating themselves upon their foresight. There have been several sales of real estate on the historic street lately, and some of the old-timers will have to cast around for other quarters. It is said that the store of Ford Bros. has been taken by A. H. Langjahr. Next to Russin & Hanfling's

The Florists' Supply House of America

The Little Things That Count

The florist who uses many of our supplies in his work is the florist who prospers. The people whose business is worth having want something nice in flowers and will pay for the little touches that add. One of Philadelphia's fashionable florists uses our Natural Magnolia Leaves for a groundwork in handsome funeral designs and obtains in this way an original effect.

Another finishing touch that we recommend is obtained by using our new select Chiffons. They come in all colors—white, pink, yellow, lavender, scarlet, Nile and moss green—and are far superior to the old chiffons. We use the imported only; they are far better than domestic.

Dainty Baskets for small flowers, handled, oval-shaped, are sure to attract when prettily filled and placed in your window.

There are many other things we could suggest, including the Bohannan Violet Clasp, which would help you to increase your sales. We have said enough by way of suggestion and only add that our best efforts are always at your command.

Remember we can make anything you want in florists' supplies in our factory. Send for our illustrated catalogue.

and opposite the Kervan Co. and close to Gunther Bros., a building has just been reconstructed and made ready for occupancy. It is said that Rosens, the florists' supply man, will occupy it February 1. It is complete and in an excellent location, only a few doors west of the veteran J. K. Allen's headquarters.

The Retail Florists' Association announces a smoker at Healey's, Sixty-sixth street and Columbus avenue, January 24. This function is to be given by the board of directors to its members, and M. A. Bowe says it will be something out of the ordinary.

The Greek-American Florists' Association gave its third annual ball January 17 at the Terrace garden, Fifty-eighth street and Lexington avenue. Over 2,000 were present, including Ambassador Coromeles, Consul Botassi, wholesale florists and other dignitaries. The decorations were elaborate, requiring 6,000 yards of roping, 150 Christmas trees, 500 strings of smilax and large quantities of cut flowers. During the evening fifty doves were released and carried home as souvenirs. It is said that dancing was kept up till 5 a. m. and that some of the retailers and growers stayed for the last waltz.

Semon Bache & Co. look forward to a good season in the sale of greenhouse sizes of window glass.

J. AUSTIN SHAW.

The Climax Mfg. Co., makers of paper boxes, have opened a New York office at 20 East Forty-second street, with U. C. Hirschey in charge.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society and the council of the Horticultural Society of New York met at the American Museum of Natural History, where the spring exhibition is to be held, January 12 last, for conference. Working committees were appointed to take the matter up in earnest to prepare now for the coming exhibition. The facilities that are offered to the Rose Society for the exhibition are superb.

The Horticultural Society of New York will hold an exhibition of spring flowers and plants in connection with the Rose Society's show in March.

The orchid section of the Horticultural Society of New York will meet January 26 at the American Museum to complete its organization.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The cut flower trade last week was fairly good in all lines; better, in fact, than any time since the first of the year. The retailers say they are looking for good business until Lent sets in. There have been a number of good wedding orders to be filled this month. There has been the usual activity in funeral work.

The wholesalers had plenty of stock up to January 14 and 15, when the demand cleaned them up pretty well on all first-class stock, especially white. Roses and carnations have been coming in heavily and the price was down as low as $1.50 per hundred for fancy carnations. Roses, too, sold cheaply for a while, but the latter part of last week the price went up a few cents on fancy grades. Violets also came in abundantly, and were as low as 30 cents per hundred early in the week, and 50 cents to 75 cents Saturday. Bulbous stock is plentiful and the price remains steady. Harrisii and callas sold well, as did lily of the valley.

Smilax, galax and Mexican ivy had a big call last week. Other greens sold better than usual.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its New Year's meeting Thursday afternoon, January 13, in the rooms of the Odd Fellows' building. There was on exhibition a fine vase of the new white carnation, Shasta, sent by Baur & Smith, of Indianapolis, which was greatly admired. The National Clock & Electric Mfg. Co., St. Louis, exhibited one of its thermostatic instruments. C. M. Davidson gave a demonstration of its working, which interested the members greatly.

The meeting opened at 2 o'clock, with President George B. Windler in the chair and all the rest of the officers present. W. A. Rowe, of Kirkwood, was elected a member. Henry Wenzel and Charles T. Hecht, of Anglum, made applications for membership. A new committee was appointed on advertising through the Florists' Club, consisting of C. De Wever and John Connon. The chair appointed Charles Beyer, F. J. Fillmore and Mr. Young to report on the vase of Shasta carnations. Their report read as follows: "We, the committee, think it an improvement on existing white varieties on account of being heavily fringed, and recommend a certificate of merit." The chair called upon W. C. Young for a talk on his New Orleans trip, and Frank J. Fillmore read an interesting paper on "The Troubles of a Grower," which are amusing at times. Several questions brought out a good discussion.

William C. Smith was instructed to prepare a paper for the next meeting on "The Troubles of a Wholesaler." The next meeting takes place Thursday, February 10, at 2 o'clock.

The Ladies Organize.

The St. Louis members of the Ladies' S. A. F. have organized a society called the Home Circle. No one can belong who is not a member of the Ladies' S. A. F. An informal meeting was first called at the home of Mrs. John Steidle, in Central, a month ago. The first regular meeting of the circle, which was called by Miss M. Meinhardt, was held Monday afternoon, January 10, in the parlors of the Washington hotel. Those who responded to the call were Mesdames John Steidle, F. C. Weber, Theo. Miller, Otto G. Koenig, C. A. Kuehn, G. B. Windler, H. G. Berning, Carl Beyer, F. H. Meinhardt, J. J. Beneke and Misses Matilda Meinhardt and J. Meinhardt. The election of officers took place. Mrs. John Steidle was elected president and Miss Matilda Meinhardt secretary and treasurer. The object of the circle is to meet once a month, to entertain visiting lady florists when in the city and to promote the interests of the Ladies' S. A. F. Each month one of the members will read a paper on something interesting to the circle. By vote it fell to the lot of Mrs. J. J. Beneke to entertain with a paper at the next meeting. After the meeting, coffee and ice cream were served, which will be the feature at the close of each meeting. The next meeting place and date have not as yet been decided upon. The call will be made by the secretary.

Various Notes.

Mr. Kelley, of the Kelley Floral Co., says business has been satisfactory in the cut flower line since the first of the year. For goldfish, of which the firm makes a specialty, they find a great sale.

William Hernely has charge of the Michel Plant & Bulb Co. for Receiver Coleman. The place will soon be advertised for sale by Mr. Coleman.

Our nurserymen say that they expect a great call for California privet this spring, as the continuous cold weather has frozen them all out. The fine hedge around the city hall will have to be replanted.

Frank Vennemann, W. A. Rowe, John Connon, Charles D. Hecht and William Wenzel were the suburban members who attended the Florists' Club meeting January 13.

Frank B. Coleman announced January 17 that the bankrupt auction sale of the Michel Bulb & Plant Co. would be held Tuesday, January 18, at 10 o'clock, everything to be sold in bulk or in lots to suit the buyers.

C. A. Kuehn is receiving a lot of Mexican ivy, which has taken a good hold on the trade here, and the demand is increasing daily.

Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, and F. Wakeham, Brooklyn, were callers last week.

J. J. B.

Please omit my advertisements of vincas and dracænas, for they have sold them all.—Dana R. Herron, Olean, N. Y.

Mount Gilead, O.—Armondo L. Munk was adjudicated bankrupt January 11, and notices were issued to the effect that the first meeting of the creditors would be held January 25.

The Market.

No great change has taken place in business during the last week. The weather still continues to be all against crops, and stock remains extremely scarce, while orders, of course, come in heavier right along. Stock, according to complaints, appears to be at a premium throughout this section of the country. The dull weather seems to have a greater effect on roses, for which there is an enormous demand and a scant supply. Carnations, however, are not quite so scarce, but still it is impossible to fill all orders for them, and the same condition holds true with callas. Longiflorums have, seemingly, been taking a vacation since before the holidays, but at the present time there are a few Formosums on the market, while Romans, Paper Whites and lily of the valley are quite plentiful and help out wonderfully in designing, now

Various Notes.

At the January meeting of the Dayton Florists' Club it was decided to have another florists' banquet. Last year the ladies were given full charge of the banquet arrangements, which proved satisfactory to all, so this year the club decided to let the ladies take full charge again. Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs and Miss Ruby A. Bartholomew were appointed as a committee of two to go ahead with the arrangements. The date for the banquet has been set for February 9.

J. W. McNary, of this city, was elected president of the Ohio Nurserymen's Association, which held its meeting at the Vendome, at Columbus, Ohio. Election of officers took place December 12.

Wm. F. Ritter is able to be out again after an illness of several weeks.

D. Rusconi and Mr. Courtland, of Cincinnati, Ohio, called at the home of George Bartholomew January 16.

Mrs. Elizabeth Young, who has been confined to her home with lumbago, is able to be back at her store again.

While engaging in his daily gymnastic stunts, M. Anderson in some way sprained his neck.

Warren G. Matthews, proprietor of the Dayton Floral Co., entertained his employees, their wives and sweethearts, at a banquet on January 12, at the Atlas hotel. It is reported that the affair was

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

VISITED NEW YORK: L. W. Wheeler, of Braslan Seed Growers' Co., San Jose, Cal.

WM. E. CAHILL, eastern representative of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, is at home for a few days and reports a splendid prospect for spring in his territory.

ROBERT W. LEONARD, son of S. F. Leonard and a traveler for the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and Miss Allita F. Hotchkiss were married January 18 at Kalamazoo, Mich.

IN Holland the winter to date has been unusually mild but exceedingly wet. The heavy rains were almost as effective as early frost would have been in bringing outdoor work to an end. The growers would prefer a good blanket of snow.

A CORPORATION styled the Guaranteed Seed Corn Producers has been licensed to do business at Plano, Ill. The object is to grow and deal in seed corn and other seeds and grains. The authorized capital stock is $15,000 and the incorporators are J. R. Steward, G. S. Steward and M. J. Isaacs.

THE Holland bulb men, of whom scores now are canvassing the eastern half of the United States, are finding it hardly pays for time and carfare to visit some bulb forcers who formerly were good buyers. Bulb forcing has not been a gold mine the last few seasons. On the other hand, the big seed houses are selling more bulbs than ever, both to forcers for home trade and to those who use them for bedding.

A NEW retail seed company has been formed at Boston, Mass., by the consolidation of the Boston retail business of the Ames Plow Co. and Deere & Co. The new concern is named the Ames Implement & Seed Co. and has a capital of $100,000. It will act as the local retail agency of the two companies represented, with salesrooms at the present location of the Ames Plow Co., over Faneuil Hall Market. The present Boston retail agency of Deere & Co., known as the Haskell Implement & Seed Co., with salesroom at 21 South Market street, will discontinue business locally. The wholesale business of both the Ames Plow Co. and Deere & Co. will continue as heretofore.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a farmers' bulletin descriptive of potato culture on the irrigated lands of Colorado.

THE list of new corporations includes the name of the Rocky Ford Seed Growers' Association, incorporated at Rocky Ford, Colo., by Will Morrison, H. D. Clute and J. P. Mullowney.

IT is announced that the wholesale seed business founded in London, in 1876, by Alfred Watkins, has been converted into a private company under the title of Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., a number of the staff who have been associated with the business for many years being admitted to an interest. The company sends a portfolio to its American friends containing portraits of Mr. Watkins and fourteen of his staff, none of whom has

(GILLYFLOWER)

Golden Ball—Canary Yellow

NOVELTY 1910

For the Gardener interested in Cut Flowers, this is just the right thing. The Best Novelty in the World. The Bismarck Summer-flowering Stock makes cone-shaped bushes, about 3 feet high, with wonderfully large, canary yellow clusters. It blooms throughout the entire summer season and even into the late fall. This Bismarck Summer Stock produces about 80% double flowers and is indispensable for the artistic work of the modern florist. When placed on the market in the form of a pot plant, it has no equal. This Season's Best Novelty. 1 packet, 15c; 10 packets, $1.25; 100 packets, $11.00.

Bismarck Stocks Snowball, Snow White Novelty of 1909

This new kind has the same good qualities as the above mentioned novelty. The flowers are very large, snow white and are splendid as cut flowers and for sale on the market. 1 packet, 15c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ¼ oz., $1.50; 1 oz., $5.00.

Giant Summer Stocks Gloria, Bright Blood Red—Excelsior Class.

Produces panicles of great length, bright and blood red; the flowers are gigantic. Great novelty. Fine for cut flowers. 1 packet, 15c; 1000 seeds, 65c.

Summer Stocks Himmelsauge (Eye of the Sky).

Belonging to the dwarf class; novelty; wonderful light blue color; the best for pot culture; produces from 80% to 85% double flowers. 1000 seeds, 30c; ¼ oz., 90c.

Dresden Summer Stocks, with large Blossoms and Everblooming.

Best for cut flowers. 1, apple blossom; 2, dark blue; 3, light blue; 4 flesh colored; 5, dark blood red; 6, chamois; 7, soft rose; 8, purple carmine; 9, red brown; 10, crimson; 11, canary yellow; 12, snow white.
Each color separate, 1000 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., 60c; 1 oz., $2.00. All colors mixed, 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 50c; 1 oz., $1.60.

Erfurt Summer Stocks, with Large Blossoms; Best for Groups.

1, brilliant rose; 2, carmine; 3, crimson; 4, dark violet; 5, dark blood red; 6, flesh colored; 7, canary yellow; 8, light blue; 9, aurora colored; 10, pure white.
Each color separate, 1000 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., 60c; 1 oz., $2.00. All colors mixed, 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 50c; 1 oz., $1.60 been less than nine years with the concern, and several twenty to twenty-five years. J. M. Bridgeford, the general manager, has been associated with Mr. Watkins for seventeen years.

The canners are asking for government inspection and labeling of their products, believing that such certificate of purity will lead to larger sales.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending January 8 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Cardamom	15	$1149	Grass	255	$ 4756
Celery	50	704	Hemp	300	1183
Clover	30	611	Lycopod'm	10	804
Coriander	100	297	Mustard	300	1183
Cummin	50	390	Rape	13	64
Fennel	5	215	Other		13192

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $15,806; peas, $8,196, and beans, $29,727.

A NEW GLADIOLUS.

At the flower show of July 26, 1909, at Haarlem, Holland, there was, among other important exhibits, a new gladiolus which attracted great attention. It was shown by P. Vos Mz, a florist of Sassenheim, and called Lemoinei Pink Beauty.

This gladiolus is, without doubt, an acquisition of great importance. If planted in the beginning of spring, it has stalks over three feet in length as early as the middle of June. The color of this flower is deep pink, with a dark purple velvet spot. The plant was grown from seed some years ago by C. Van Tol, of Katwyk. It flowers considerably earlier than the sorts Lemoinei and Gandavensis. P. Vos Mz, of Sassenheim, one of the greatest exporters of cut flowers in Holland, became owner of the lot for a good round sum.

It is generally agreed, here and elsewhere, that this is a sort with a great future. When there are few flowers, just when the need is most felt, this gladiolus is in rich, full flower.

During the present year this novelty will be put on the market by P. Vos Mz.

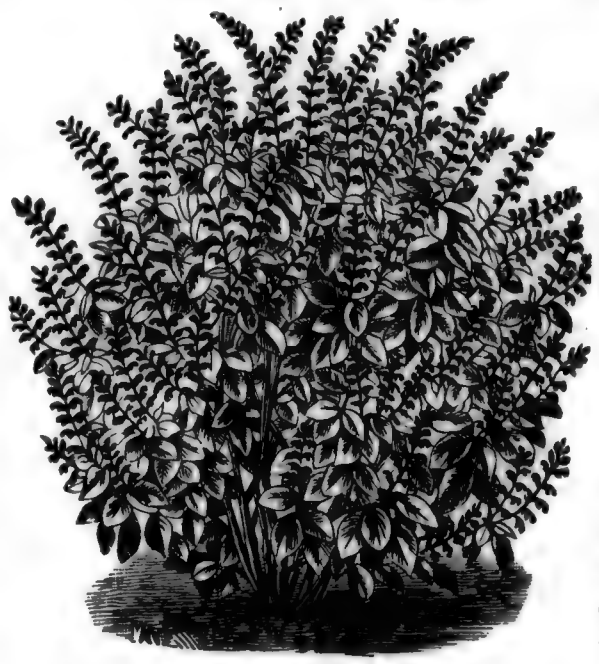
CROSSING OF SWEET PEAS.

I was much interested in the synopsis of Mr. Cuthbertson's paper on "The Seeding of Waved Sweet Peas," as published in the Review of December 30.

I agree with Mr. Cuthbertson in his opinion that sweet peas rarely, if ever, cross accidentally. In making artificial crosses it is necessary to take the bud at an early stage of its growth—almost as soon as it shows its color. You will find almost without exception that an advanced bud has already fertilized itself.

I have never seen honey bees working on sweet peas, but have seen bumble bees doing so more or less, and these always operate on a fully expanded flower, standing with a foot on each wing, so as to drink from the base of the pistil. While they may carry away some pollen on their legs, I do not believe it possible to cross with another full blown blossom.



Just what is causing the phenomenal "breaking" in Spencers I do not know, and I am not yet ready to venture a theory.

Occasionally, in the past, we have had selections of grandifloras which we never could "fix," even after five years of constant work. We had a selection of our own, similar to Eckford's Mrs.

Knight-Smith, which was one of these. As soon as we saw Eckford's variety we anticipated the result as we all found it, and we all had to discard Mrs. Knight-Smith.

I believe we shall be able to fix most of the Spencers by simple but continuous selection. Countess Spencer itself now comes true and so do several others. The tendency is to revert to the hooded or grandiflora type, rather than to other colors, after the fixing is accomplished.

The failure of the blossoms to set seed is still a great mystery. The blossoms seem always to come to perfection and then drop off, just as they should fade and droop to make way for the pod. I have not been able, so far, to find the cause for this and am inclined to think it is the nature of the type. This characteristic certainly means a long blooming period and for the planter it means the very thing he wants.

LESTER L. MORSE.

FAST MAILS FOR FREE SEEDS.

A lot of newspapers are alarmed at the prospect that Congress will increase the rate of postage on newspapers, and some of the papers are joining in the fight on congressional free seeds, as witness the following:

"In its quest of means to reduce the government's seventeen-and-a-half-million-dollar postal deficit, Congress would do well to weigh the following incident: Sixty-one big mail sacks full of seed were received yesterday at the postoffice at Indianapolis, Ind., having come all the way from Washington. They were sent by a congressman of that district and constituted his 1910 allotment of seed. They had come by fast mail trains for which the United States pays thousands of dollars. And the congressman had used his postoffice frank in sending them.

"There you find one of the most fruitful sources of the postoffice department's annual deficit. Where is the business house that would think of sending garden seed in quantity by mail? Except under rare circumstances all such matter goes by freight. Nor does the trip from Washington to Indianapolis end the extravagance. At the latter city the congressman's secretary undid the sacks, took out several thousand packages and remailed them to constituents scattered over the state.

"For all of this the government must pay. The expense of the railway mail service for the past year has just been reported by Joseph Stewart, second assistant postmaster general, as more than forty-five million dollars. It would be profitable to know what part of that forty-five million is chargeable to congressional and departmental franks. More circumspect and business-like regulations for the use of the frank would undoubtedly cut down the enormous deficit."

AGRICULTURAL CHEMICALS.

The movement of all fertilizer material is large, and although the season has commenced later than usual, demand is more insistent and the volume has increased at a quicker rate than noted at the beginning of other seasons. Owing to the high price of cottonseed meal, the animal ammoniates are in big request, and on contracts covering needs for the season high values have been realized by the packers, who are in absolute control of the abattoir products. Dried blood is a little easier in the west, although this is only considered a dip, with higher prices yet to come. Tankage is unchanged. Sulphate of ammonia has been advanced again 2½ cents. Nitrate of soda is firmer and demand is slowly improving. Dried fish scrap is scarce, with prices unchanged, but wet scrap is still rather plentiful. The potash salts are going into consumption in large quantities, and spot stocks are small. No one evidently cares much about present syndicate developments, but it is generally believed that before long the independent interests will again become affiliated with the combination and prices become regulated by the latter, as was previously the case. The acid phosphate factories are busy and taking into immediate use all the arrivals of pyrites. For bone high values are ruling. The phosphate rocks are still slow of sale, but there is a stronger tone noted as the season advances.

Forcing Gladiolus

Many florists plant these in boxes, or among their carnations, in the winter. They are excellent for decorative purposes and realize good prices, either wholesale or retail. Gladioli are a good catch crop and take up but little room. The following are the best for this purpose.

Gladiolus Gandavensis Hybrids

"NOT HOW CHEAP— BUT HOW GOOD"

Horseshoe Brand Products

According to Cuvier the elephant's trunk has no less than 40,000 muscles, while the whole of a man's muscles number 527. That's where the elephant is superior to man.

According to Arai, Horseshoe Brand Giganteum bulbs are not only produced from the healthiest seed bulbs, but are planted deep in the ground, which insures the best quality; while many others are planted near the surface to make size a year earlier, regardless of quality. That's where the Horseshoe Brand are superior to the others.

Try them.

VEGETABLE MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Cucumbers, 75c to $1.25 doz.; lettuce, 27½c box; radishes, 15c to 30c doz. bunches.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—Tomatoes, 15c to 25c lb.; cucumbers, $4.50 to $8.50 box; lettuce, 50c to 75c box; parsley, $2 to $2.25 box; mint, 50c to 60c doz. bunches; radishes, $1.50 box.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The few mushrooms received worked out at about former rates. Cucumbers quite plentiful, but largely of ordinary quality. Fancy heavy lettuce would exceed quotations if here. Mint steady. Radishes firm. Rhubarb dull. Tomatoes in light supply and steady. Cucumbers, 75c to $1 doz.; lettuce, 75c to $1 strap; mint, 40c to 50c doz. bunches; mushrooms, 20c to 40c lb.; radishes, $2 to $3 hundred bunches; rhubarb, 75c doz. bunches; tomatoes, 10c to 20c lb.

WORMS IN VEGETABLE HOUSES.

I am sending you some samples of small worms that are infesting the soil of a house used for growing vegetables. Can you have them examined and named? Also state if they eat the roots of cucumbers, lettuce, tomatoes, etc., and give a remedy. S. C.

The pest is one which I am not familiar with, but I do not believe it is of a kind that feeds on the roots of these crops.

S. C. does not state whether the soil has been in the house a long or short time. I suspect that it has been used several years and I would advise changing it next summer surely, for some nice, clean, fresh soil from a rich, new field. In such soil crops seldom have insect enemies or diseases during the first season.

I would also suggest that you send a sample of these worms to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. They can, no doubt, identify the worms and tell you all about their habits, etc., and they will do it willingly. H. G.

TRANSPLANTING ONIONS.

Will you kindly advise me regarding the growing of the large varieties of onions? I am located in Michigan and have neither greenhouse nor hotbed to start them in, and would like to know whether sowing the seed in coldframes, say about March 15, would enable me to produce the large onions secured by the transplanting process. Could I start them later than this date? Would Prizetaker be the best variety to grow, or is Ailsa Craig better for the purpose?

I want to thank you for the information you have given during the last few months. You have helped me a great deal. W. H. G.

You can start your plants in coldframes quite satisfactorily. In fact, many prefer a coldframe to a hotbed for onion plants, claiming that they stand the transplanting better. I prefer a mild hotbed, so they can be kept growing nicely and so I can keep the ground warm and still have the sash partly off most of the time, to harden them to fresh air.

If you grow them in coldframes you should take extra precaution in other ways to help make up for the absence of bottom heat. Your frames should not be full of cracks and knot holes. Repair them first and have tight, well fitting sashes. There will be nights when it will be necessary to cover the glass with mats or strawy manure, to keep from freezing inside. If you are fortunate enough to have some Sunlight Double Glass Sashes, you can save this trouble. These double glazed sashes have two layers of glass, about two inches apart, and are fine indeed and becoming very popular. If you use the common sashes, have a pile of strawy manure handy, which you can throw over the glass easily when thought advisable, removing it early next morning.

The soil should be nicely prepared, fine, soft and fresh. Plant the seed thickly, in rows about four inches apart. Keep the seed and young plants just moist—not too wet—and ventilate every day, covering again early in the afternoon.

Prizetaker is the old standby. Some prefer Ailsa Craig, but in some localities the Prizetaker is still doing the best. Suppose you try both kinds. March 15 is early enough and April would not be too late in your latitude.

My frames are portable and are used for either coldframes or hotbeds, as desired. They are made of two boards, set on edge, fifteen feet long and six feet apart. The two end boards and two braces hold the frame. These frames are the right size for five sashes, each 3x6 feet. The north board is twelve inches and the south one ten inches high. We set these anywhere, and when we want a hotbed we make a pile of manure larger than the frame each way and two feet deep when tramped and leveled. Then we set the frame on this. It is not necessary to dig a pit. H. G.

WORMS IN LETTUCE ROOTS.

I am having a great deal of trouble in growing lettuce in one of my old houses. I am sending you a sample plant, the roots of which are apparently destroyed by small worms. I am also putting in a sample of the worms. Kindly tell me, if possible, the nature of the trouble and the best way to get rid of it. I find it almost impossible to destroy all the worms by sterilizing the soil; some of them seem to escape and are there to work on the new plants as soon as set. C. D. L.

The samples were frozen solid when received, and I was unable even to find the worm.

If the soil had been thoroughly sterilized no worms could have escaped, but it is often the case that growers put in manure after sterilizing; this should be done before the soil is sterilized.

Sterilizing the soil is necessary in some cases, but where clean, new, sweet soil can be had it is best to change the soil every summer. In that way and by being sanitary in the care of the crop, sterilizing will be rendered unnecessary in most cases. Soil that is kept over inside for more than one season is positively not as good as it should be the next season, no matter what treatment is given it. There is something lacking in it, and all the fertilizing and sterilizing or anything else you may do to it will not make it pure, new, sweet soil, such as you can get fresh from the fields at less trouble and expense than trying to doctor the old soil.

As to the worms that are eating the roots, I cannot think what kind it could be, never having had trouble of that kind, and I probably could not tell the name of it or the remedy if I had found the worm in your package. I would suggest that you send a sample to your state agricultural college and address it to the professor in charge of the Department of Entomology. He, no doubt, can help you to fight them.

Lime water is excellent for the common angleworms and manure worms, as well as other worms in the soil, and might kill off your particular pests. You can try it easily and it will benefit the soil and plants, anyhow. Take a peck of fresh lime and slake it as you would for making mortar, using plenty of water, so as not to let it burn, but not too much, so as to drown it. After it is slaked into the form of putty, put it in a barrel of water, stir it well and water the benches with it, using a sprinkling can without the nozzle on it.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The demand last week was rather quiet. The dark weather shortened up the cut, but there was no shortage of anything except roses, which are away off crop. Carnations are to be had in quantity. Narcissi and sweet peas are quite plentiful. Tulips have put in an appearance, but the demand has been light. Violets have moved rather slowly of late and the same might be said of Beauties.

Various Notes.

The Jones-Russell Co. reports a busy week in funeral work, among which was a large blanket of Killarney roses and violets for the Crawford funeral.

Fred Witthuhn's greenhouses were wrecked by the explosion of the steam boiler January 16. The boiler used was a cast-iron sectional type for steam. It is moved about five feet from its original position, with the back section completely blown out. There was no one around when the accident happened.

Sam S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, was a visitor one day last week, calling on the different stores in town. B.

PLAN OF NEW GLASS CO.

The Imperial Window Glass Co., the new selling agency for the independent window glass manufacturers of the country, has opened offices in the Fulton building, in Pittsburg, and will hereafter handle all of the glass made by the manufacturers outside the American Window Glass Co.

Myron L. Case, of Bowling Green, is president and J. G. Syre, of Columbus, is treasurer of the new organization. It has a capital stock of $250,000 and represents over 2,900 pots valued at over $10,000,000. The new company will act in all sales matters and all wage subjects for the factories, and its officers have announced that it will be its aim to pay a fair wage scale and make a fair profit on the output of the factories.

The organization is ironclad and all glass will be handled through the Cleveland Storage Co. This company will handle the product of the fifty-one factories represented in the new company. A man under bond will be stationed in each factory and his business will be to see that no glass is shipped from that factory except when such goods are ordered through the Cleveland Storage Co., which has full charge of the storage and distribution of the window glass manufactured by the factories. By this means all shipments may be closely watched and with a bonded employee of the storage company in every factory there will be no opportunity of cutting rates and injuring the industry.

PACIFIC COAST.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Since the holidays, trade of one kind and another has been steady and at times has demanded an extra supply of stock, with everybody working overtime. What poinsettias still remain in the market have been in good demand for both wedding and table decorations. Some chrysanthemums still linger, and the public will continue to call for them till the summer sun shines. Smilax, now in bloom, finds extra favor. Easter and calla lilies, with a sprinkling of roseums, have been good standbys for funeral work. Considerable wedding work is booked for the rest of January.

Plant sales have been extra good since Christmas, both in blooming stock and ferns.

We have not felt the heaviest effects of the surrounding storms, although steady cold and frequent falls of snow have made us realize that it is midwinter. All plants and flowers require extra protection, and nobody is anxious to send out palms and ferns.

Various Notes.

The New Year's window decoration at the store of the Spokane Florist Co. was an interesting display, consisting of the rising sun of 1910 pictured in yellow rays of a fabric, with the figures "1910" in gilded magnolia leaves. Burning candles outlined the piece on the circular edge. To one side, representing the attendant festivities, was a decorated punch bowl done in grapes and roses.

The New Year's window of Hoyt Bros. Co. presented a clock of red and white, over which hung a lycopodium bell, swinging. The edge of the bell was slashed with scarlet ribbon, and two long bell ropes of scarlet ribbon, with showers of small immortelle bells and pine cones, reached to the clock below.

The Dutch bulb growers are upon us, several having reached this section within the last few weeks.

J. J. Karins, from H. A. Dreer, is gathering his annual harvest of orders in this vicinity.

F. W. Winters has left Miss Armstrong's employ and joined the independent order of plantsmen. We understand that he is to make a specialty of landscape gardening. S.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

We are still being treated to a spell of cold, frosty weather. In this neighborhood we have had white frost every morning for the last three weeks and, as a consequence, stock continues to be scarce. This is particularly noticeable with all kinds of outdoor flowers, which at this time should be somewhat in evidence. Narcissi and daffodils, especially the former, are backward, and violets are in shorter supply than they have been for years at this time. Chrysanthemums are almost out of season and a couple of weeks more will finish them. Some splendid sprays of cut Acacia mollissima from the south, however, show that before long we will be treated to plenty of tree blossoms. Although everything has been scarce, there are evidences that we will be treated to an overabundance of all kinds of flowers in a few weeks. Carnations are selling at present at from $4 per hundred down to about half that price for second quality stock. With roses there is less to select from. Good Beauties cannot be found at any price, although Bride and Maid are in fair supply and of good quality. The Burlingame growers are sending into town some extra fine Killarney and Liberty, which give much needed color to the florists' shop windows.

Valley is in fair supply and moves well at $4 per hundred. A few early freesias have made their appearance, but a full supply will not be cut for several weeks yet. California red berries are showing the results of the frost and are practically over until next year. Wild maidenhair is being brought into town by the green goods men and supplies a long felt want by the retailers. Smilax is somewhat scarcer than it has been and shows the results of too close cutting for the holidays. Orchids are being produced in about sufficient quantities to keep the market supplied. Business, in a general way, can be described as being rather quiet since the holidays, with funeral orders more in evidence than anything else.

Various Notes.

A company of Italian growers have bought ten acres of land on Wild Cat creek, near Stege, Contra Costa county, Cal.

L. O. Beery, late of the Bay Tree Nursery, has entered the general nursery business, with headquarters at Oakland.

Charles J. Hall has gone to southern California and will not return to town for several weeks.

C. C. Morse & Co. are negotiating for a large tract of land in the neighborhood of Haywards, where they contemplate starting large seed farms.

The Superior Court of Alameda county has just rendered a decision in which the newly appointed county board of forestry is held to be an illegal body. G.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Aviation week brought crowds of people to Los Angeles, and there was great excitement at Dominguez, where the trials took place, but the florists did not reap any great harvest from it. All of the stores had beautiful window displays, which attracted a great deal of attention.

There is a comfortable general business done, but no rush. Flowers are getting more plentiful, with the greatest demand for carnations and roses. The greenhouse carnations are large and beautiful. The field-grown ones are scarce, but are seen in some of the stores. The frost has hurt them, even in protected places, so they look only about half opened. They sell at 15 cents a dozen, while the greenhouse-grown ones are $1. All of the roses are good now. Beauties are improving all the time, the heads getting much larger. They have been coming in with long stems, but small blooms in proportion.

Valley is exceptionally nice and sells well. There is a great demand for orchids. The street stands are heaped high with violets at 5 cents a bunch. Sweet peas from outside are arriving in abundance, but the stems are rather short as yet. Some fine mignonette was seen. Chinese narcissi, Paper Whites and Romans are also plentiful; these are grown outside, the same bulbs blooming year after year. Some pans of Dutch hyacinths were seen in one of the stores. All of the florists are making a fine showing of azaleas.

The recent frosts have caused the oranges to drop to such an extent that all of the street stands are piled with large ones at ten cents a dozen. Reports are rather conflicting. Some state that a quarter of the crop will not be fit to ship, while others say that the injury is slight. Outside flowers have fared badly; even the geranium foliage is frost-bitten.

Various Notes.

Jack D'Ortignac, proprietor of the Redondo Floral Co., returned Monday from a week's stay in San Francisco.

S. Lundy, representing W. A. Manda, is in town, calling on the trade.

E. J. Reynolds, formerly of Denver, is now with the Redondo Floral Co.

Morris Goldenson had the misfortune recently to lose a fine new overcoat while at lunch at Levy's cafe.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. says it is a little early yet for planting, but a big trade is anticipated. There are many inquiries already for seeds in large quantities.

Theodore Payne makes a specialty of eucalyptus trees, and is quite busy.

HOLLY FROM SEED.

In glancing over the REVIEW of October 7, 1909, I noticed an article which contains a description of the ordinary method of growing holly from seed in California. I noticed, too, that the process of germinating the seed, as outlined in that article, is an extremely tedious one. Now, there are many, many things that I do not know, though they might be useful to me if I knew them, but I do know how to grow holly from seed and get ninety per cent of it to sprout in less than one month. I got the suggestion from an Ohio nurseryman fifty years ago, but had almost forgotten it.

Soon after coming to California I planted a lot of holly seeds, but after waiting a year I failed to get a plant. Next year I tried again, with the same result, but in the following fall I remembered the hint given me by the old nurseryman. I tried his plan and in a few weeks I had plenty of holly coming up. I made several plantings that winter and one or two more plantings last winter, all of which were quite satisfactory. In the present winter—December 20—I took a bunch of holly seeds to the greenhouse, put them to soak and planted them December 24. January 2 there

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
Officers for 1909-10: Pres., F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; Vice-Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-fifth annual meeting, Denver, June, 1910.

J. C. Hale, Winchester, Tenn., is postmaster in his town and his nursery company is the largest patron of the post-office.

Ernest F. Coe, president of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn., will sail January 22 on the steamship Baltic, of the White Star line. He will visit the important European nursery centers.

The Durant Nursery Co., of Durant, Okla., is making arrangements to establish a branch of its nursery at Muskogee, Okla. The firm has already secured some land at the latter town and wishes to purchase more.

Mrs. P. S. Peterson, mother of Wm. A. Peterson, proprietor of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, will sail from New York January 29 for a tour of the holy land. She is leader of the forestry class of the Chicago Women's Club.

The sale for ornamental stock is so good that it militates against the increase in the supply of strictly high grade material. When a park commission wants a considerable number of a certain tree to plant a boulevard, it is not always easy to find what is sought.

The Hollandia Orchard Co., of Decatur, Ark., announces the establishment of a branch organization, which will bear the name of the Hollandia Nursery Co., will be located also at Decatur and will handle both nursery stock and florists' plants. The managers of the new concern are Geo. C. Groenewegen and H. De Schepper, who have had wide experience in the trade in Europe and America. Plenty of good land is available and the shipping facilities are said to be excellent.

TEXAS NURSERYMEN MEET.

The midwinter meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association was held January 14, at the Hotel Southland, Galveston, Tex. There was a large attendance of southwestern nurserymen and the day was given over to the discussion of a wide range of subjects of trade interest. The following was the program:

"Reviewing the Year 1909; What Have We Accomplished?" J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

"Looking Forward; What Are Our Prospects for 1910?" J. B. Baker, Ft. Worth, Tex.

"Is the Nurseryman Making the Progress, Financially, That Are Other Business Interests in Texas?" E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney, Tex.

"How Does the Supply in General Line of Stock for 1910 Compare with Former Years?" F. T. Ramsey, Austin, Tex.

"How Can We Make Better Collection in the Retail Business, Especially on Deferred Payments?" H. E. Hall, Sherman, Tex.; W. J. Schulze, Bangs, Tex.; J. W. Tucker, Waxahachie, Tex.

"Prominent Features of the Western Association" (Kansas City, December 21, 22), C. C. Mayhew, Sherman, Tex.; W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., vice-president American Association.

"Is It Policy to Replace on Retail Orders Trees Which Have Died in One, Two or More Years After Delivery?" E. W. Knox, San Antonio, Tex.; A. K. Clingman, Keithville, La.; John S. Kerr, Sherman, Tex.

"The Season in Alabama," Henry B. Chase, Huntsville, Ala., ex-president Southern Association.

"Nursery Conditions and Interests in Oklahoma," J. T. Foote, Durant, Okla.; North Texas, J. L. Downing, Wichita Falls, Tex.; South Texas, W. A. Stockwell, Alvin, Tex., and R. H. Bushway, Algoa, Tex.; East Texas, John F. Sneed, Tyler, Tex., and M. G. Black, Mount Pleasant, Tex.; Southwest Texas, W. J. Schulze, Bangs, Tex.; Plains country, L. N. Dalmont, Plainview, Tex.

"Summary of Nursery Inspection for the Past Year in Texas," Sam H. Dixon, Austin, Tex., chief inspector.

"How Can We Make 1910 the Best Year of Our Lives?" John S. Kerr, Sherman, Tex.

Newport, Ky.—Rudolph Rupner, an employee of William Speck, committed suicide January 8 by shooting himself in the breast.

Rooted Cuttings

SCARLET GLOW. (New) an extra good bright scarlet, a large flower and exceptional keeping qualities. It is in perfect health, and has that early and free flowering habit that characterizes a paying commercial variety. $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

PINK DELIGHT. Clear waxy shell pink. The variety that won over Enchantress at the A. C. S. meeting, Indianapolis, January, 1909. It has all the good points to make it the leader and with its unequaled substance, the best keeping and shipping carnation in the light pink class.

In 1909 we had no surplus stock to offer. With our large stock this season we are in a position to take care of all orders. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

We have large stocks of White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Enchantress, Winona, Enchantress, Aristocrat, Beacon.

Selected, healthy, well rooted cuttings, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

We do not supply the cheapest, but the best.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT.

were several hundreds of them up and they are still coming at this date, January 9, though in a greenhouse where the temperature gets below 40 degrees at night.

The trick is a simple one. I just put about one pint of wood ashes, sifted through a fine sieve, in each quart or three pints of water and soak the seeds in this mixture for from four to six days. First, however, I loosen the pulp from the seeds by gently pounding them or rubbing them with a block. I treat all resinous or gummy seeds in the same way and find that it works well.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business for the last fortnight has been in a condition of laxity, with but few social functions going on. New Year's business was normal, and the demand was equal to that of former years. Flowers were more or less scarce, giving an opportunity to clean out all left-overs in plants and baskets. The unusually cold and snowy weather has made an occasion for many funerals; therefore funeral work has been up to the standard.

Carnations are of better quality and quantity and are the best selling commodity on the market, with roses a close second. Chrysanthemums are still to be had, but only of the choicer varieties. Callas and longiflorums are in regular supply, with a daily clean-up. Daffodils are to be had in limited quantities, a harbinger of springtime. Sweet peas also have put in their appearance and are welcome visitors.

Flower venders have at last been driven off the street by a new city ordinance, which raises the price to $600 per year.

Various Notes.

The Mountain View Floral Co. has secured an acreage tract near Gresham, Ore., and eventually will erect a new range there, carrying, in addition, a general stock of nursery and ornamental plants.

D. L. Thomas, of Salem, was a recent caller. He reports business brisk in the capital city.

Carl Mueller, after six years of service at Clarke Bros.' range, has resigned and will commence business for himself, giving particular attention to landscape work and ornamental gardening.

The Routledge Seed Co. has given space to cut flowers in its new catalogue, a new departure for this firm.

P. W. Stearns, of Vancouver, was a week-end caller. E. R. C.

Somersworth, N. H.—G. S. Ramsburg has installed a new boiler at his greenhouses and he now has one of the best equipped establishments in this part of the state.

The Market.

All stock is in good demand, business being extra good. The weather is bad and roses and carnations are not extra good. Today is the second time the sun has shown itself this month and in December we had only four or five days of partial sunshine. December was the coldest month here for a number of years. Green goods is scarce, especially smilax, Sprengeri and plumosus.

Various Notes.

The Blackman Floral Co. is having a great deal of funeral work and uses everything it can get hold of. They are short on green stock. Their carnations are good and they have been cutting from 500 to 1,100 a day for some time and all have been used.

Benjamin Kramer has had considerable funeral work lately, carnations and sweet peas being mostly used.

Henry Seymour is cutting some good carnations. He has been busy lately, having work for a number of prominent funerals.

Karl Zeidler has been rushed with work all this month and has used lots of roses and carnations.

Nellie Goodge is on the sick list and has had quite a severe spell, but is improving, with hopes of getting out again soon. E. L. F.

SOUTH BEND, IND. — The downtown store and the greenhouses of the South Bend Floral Co. have been purchased by Adelbert and Charles Kinyon, florists. They have taken over the entire business, making the deal through C. E. Campbell, receiver of the South Bend Floral Co. The purchase price is $10,000. They have secured about an acre of ground on which the houses stand, but the receiver still has fifteen building lots to dispose of, as a part of the company's property.

ADMIRATION

This carnation we offer to the trade as being one of the finest Carnations of any color that we know of up to date. Being a beautiful shade of pink, somewhat lighter than Winona, having that beautiful satin finish, always showing up well either in natural or artificial light. Plants benched in August are now coming into full crop, carrying from 10 to 20 buds. We have been cutting since September 10th. As a money maker you will find no equal.

The size of the flower is 3 to 3½ inches, excellent form, well built up in the center, with the petals so arranged as to make it stand the general requirements of a good fancy commercial variety. A grand keeper and shipper.

The habit is ideal, upright with no surplus grass and every shoot going into flower. Its freedom and earliness make it nearly the ideal carnation. The calyx is very tough and seldom bursts. Can be handled with great success either from the field or grown inside all summer. No one has to be an expert to handle this variety. It scored 86 points at the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis, January 27 to 28, 1909.

Price, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.
250 at 1000 rate.

Send for catalogue of all other new and standard varieties of carnations. We are always pleased to have visitors come and inspect our stock and varieties.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

The gauntlet that was cast down by the Yale men when they established the rule that no man buying flowers for the Junior Promenade would be allowed an entrance to the armory January 18 has been picked up by the local florists, and now it is war to the teeth between the merry sons of Eli and the Chapel street dispensers of flowers. In previous years the students intending to go to the promenade have been advised by the committee not to purchase flowers, but the majority of them generally yielded to the occasional hints of their fair companions and patronized the florists. This year, however, it was announced by the committee that entrance would be refused to any man who bought flowers, and to make it more effective they forced every man who purchased a ticket to sign a pledge to the effect that he would not indulge in this luxury. Naturally the florists regard this as a particularly hostile move against them.

John N. Champion said: "Had we been notified of the proposed action of the committee a few months ago it would not have hurt us so much. But, all in all, we don't lose such a pile, for most of the profits were given to students soliciting the orders, and we had to sell on close margins. Then there was the advertising in the college papers; but hereafter we will not be put to expense on that account, for I guess the florists can treat the Yale men the same way as they themselves are being treated. They say that cutting out the flowers will lessen the expenses, but it is a well known fact that the students who invite girls here have money enough to pay for flowers. Generally the men who are financially embarrassed go stag. If these girls come to this city and want flowers they will buy them. They want a good time and expect their friends to purchase the flowers for the event. Up to the present we have been carrying a lot of Yale men's bills on our books, but be assured, that will not last long now."

The Review sends Scott's Florists' Manual postpaid for $5.

CARNATION DOROTHY GORDON

You are looking for the variety that will show the most profit, plus the greatest satisfaction to your customers.

Very well, this Carnation will do both. Dorothy Gordon is vigorous and disease-free, with flowers of uniform color—a shade darker than Pink Enchantress.

It produces at least a third more carnations than does Enchantress, and much larger—average flowers of Dorothy Gordon measure 3 inches or more in diameter. It has a stiff stem and is a long keeper.

It has regularly brought us double the profits of the leading commercial sorts—Enchantress, for instance. Let us illustrate:

Enchantress sells at wholesale in the Philadelphia markets at $6.00 per 100; Dorothy Gordon has REGULARLY brought us $9.00 per 100. In addition, Dorothy Gordon produces easily one-third more flowers, or an additional $3.00—giving a return of $12.00 from the same greenhouse space that would be required to grow $6.00 worth of Enchantress.

We are selling strong, rooted cuttings at $10.00 per 100, or $75.00 per 1000.

We are ready to demonstrate to you that you can grow Dorothy Gordon with greater profit than any other commercial carnation. We invite you to come to Wyncote and see it growing in our houses; if you cannot do this, write for full particulars—we'll furnish some carnation facts that will interest you.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The cut flower market after the holidays is generally about normal, but the last week's trade has been unusually dull and with warmer weather prevailing all lines have become overstocked, especially so in violets. The latter part of the week the ice-boxes in the commission houses were filled to the uttermost capacity.

Roses have been in oversupply and prices have dropped accordingly. American Beauties are down to $4 per dozen for the best, and other roses, such as Killarney, Richmond, Bride and Maid, run from $4 to $8 per hundred. Carnations have accumulated until the best grades brought only $3 per hundred, some going as low as $1. Violets, for the first time this winter, were a glut on the market, bringing 50 cents per hundred for the best, with prospects of still lower figures should this weather remain. Paper White narcissi have but little call when carnations are plentiful and many found their way to the waste pile. Two dollars were the quotations during the week. Sweet peas are not meeting with a big demand, although they are of good quality. Lily of the valley has become more plentiful. Harrisii and callas are not too many and clean out daily at $1.25 to $1.50 per dozen. Green goods are not overabundant and sell well. H. Schwarz.

The Hyde Park Rose Co. has been incorporated here, with a capital of $10,000, by Gustav Meier, Albert Sunderbruch, Henry Sunnenberg, Frank Sunnenberg and Joseph Sunnenberg.

Buffalo, N. Y.—As the result of an injury to his left knee, R. A. Scott has been confined to bed for a time, with his leg in a plaster cast.

Sangamo

Brilliant, glistening pink. Winner wherever shown: Chicago, St. Louis and Milwaukee. The greatest bloomer and fastest grower of any. Flowers perfect, stems long and stiff.

Why you should grow Sangamo: 1st.—It will give you more blooms in a season than any other variety. The fastest grower we have ever seen. 2nd.—It is the best color of anything in this class, Winsor, Rose-pink Enchantress or any other. 3rd—The blooms are well formed, nicely rounded out in the center, and do not fade. 4th.—The flower stands well above the calyx, making it impossible to split. 5th.—It comes early with long stems that are always stiff, holding the flower gracefully. 6th—The entire stock is clean and healthy. The cuttings root easily and the plants lift from the field and establish themselves without a setback. 7th.—Not only an exhibition variety, but the best bread and butter Carnation for any florist to grow. Let us pay your coal bill for you.

Rooted cuttings guaranteed. January delivery, 100, $12; 1000, $100

FLORIST PETUNIAS

Every florist having a design trade has felt the difficulty of getting suitable flowers for the work during hot weather, when roses and carnations are barely presentable. After years of selection we have found three varieties of Double Petunias, No. 1, Pure White; No. 2, Clear Shining Pink; No. 3, Pure Lavender, which have made us more money for the labor expended than anything we have ever handled. The flowers are large, 4¼ to 6 inches in diameter, and as a keeper during hot weather beats anything we have ever tried, while the enormous quantity of blooms they produce makes the cost practically nothing. We find indoor culture suits them best. Price, 2-inch pot plants, $1.50 per doz.; one dozen of each of the three varieties for $4.00.

MADISON, N. J.

The annual smoker of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held Wednesday, January 12, and was voted by all present the greatest kind of a success.

A short business meeting was held before the festivities began, during which the treasurer announced a balance on the right side of the ledger of upwards of $700, with all of the accounts for the year paid up and disposed of. It was also announced, amid cheers, that the Chrysanthemum Society would hold its meeting for this year in conjunction with the Morris County Society, and that the work was already commenced on the preliminary schedule, which will give some $2,000 in cash prizes, outside of the special classes, which are always a feature of the C. S. A. exhibitions. It is proposed to so divide up the schedule that members of other societies will have a chance to compete in special classes open only to their own members, with sweepstakes covering the best of the exhibits as a whole. The Morris County Society does not propose to hedge its prizes around with any restrictions to make them easier to be won by their own members than by other growers. The policy of this club has been that of the open door, and the farther it is opened the better.

After the business session had been disposed of the entertainment of the evening began, Joe Burke, the noted impersonator of Harry Lauder, and several other professional gentlemen in the vaudeville line being the chief entertainers. Totty's famous punch, which now is known almost all over the country, was in great demand. After a few glasses of this Balm of Gilead, the grower forgot his diminished coal pile and such troubles and surrendered himself to the enjoyment of the evening. Homemade turkey sandwiches and celery were also greatly appreciated.

There were about 120 present, including representatives from the New Jersey Floricultural Society, the Monmouth County Society, the Bernardsville Society and representatives from the seed houses and the trade press.

The entertainment broke up at midnight with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, and the twelfth smoker, which was voted the best ever by every one present, passed into history. The committee, who deserve great praise for their efforts, were Messrs. Herrington, Duckham, Totty and Schultz.

IDAHO FALLS, IDAHO.—E. F. H. Lawrence has started in the florists' business here.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta

Another New Fern Originating with us Introduced fall 1909

Of all the valuable introductions in ferns that we have sent out, beginning with the Pierson (Nephrolepis Piersoni), we consider the Elegantissima compacta the most valuable of all, particularly from a commercial standpoint.

While this resembles Elegantissima in a general way, it is far superior to that variety, on account of its perfect habit. Yet it can hardly be compared with Elegantissima in a general way, because it occupies a place by itself and is as distinct from Elegantissima as that variety is from Piersoni—in fact, it bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. Elegantissima compacta has an ideal habit. The fronds are considerably shorter than those of Elegantissima, and it is a more compact plant. It throws a great many more crowns naturally, making a very bushy, dwarf, compact plant. The difference between the two varieties may be seen at a glance.

Fine, strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $5.00 per doz., $35.00 per 100; 4-in. pots, $7.50 per doz., $50.00 per 100; 6-in. pans, $1.50 each; 8-in. pans, $3.00 each.

We make a specialty of all kinds of Nephrolepis, carrying a large stock of all sizes at all times—Piersoni, Elegantissima, Superbissima, Bostoniensis, Scottii, Whitmani, Amerpohlii, etc.

Greenhouse Heating.

AVERAGE QUANTITY OF COAL.

What would be considered a fair quantity of coal to consume in heating a well built greenhouse, 32x206 feet, to carnation temperature in northern Ohio for a season, figuring on average winter weather? A good grade of lump coal would be used, with plenty of boiler capacity and a good system of hot water piping. C. B.

So much depends upon the boiler and the skill of the fireman, as well as the efficiency of the piping, the quality of the coal and the character of the weather, that all that can be given will be the merest approximation, but under favorable conditions it should be possible to maintain the temperature stated with 400 pounds of coal per day, as an average through the season. In severe weather it might be twice the quantity mentioned, but 600 pounds is morely likely to be a maximum. On the basis of 400 pounds as an average and 180 days in which a fire must be maintained, it will require thirty-six tons of lump coal in a season.

SCALE IN BOILER.

Will you please tell me how to prevent my greenhouse water from getting limy? It is hard water. I have a hot water boiler, which heats 15,000 square feet of glass. I have only one tank, a large one, which is used both for the boiler and for watering. Will it cause any injury to my plants if I put something in the water to prevent its being so hard? J. P. M.

I infer that this question really relates to preventing "scale" from being deposited in the boiler. While there is often considerable trouble from this when hard water is used in steam boilers, the amount deposited in a hot water boiler is generally so small as to be of little account. It would hardly be safe to use the water in the tank for watering the plants, if "boiler compound" were used, and it hardly seems possible that any such remedy will be necessary. Rather than go to the trouble and expense of putting in an expansion tank, which would be necessary if a scale preventive is to be used, it will be easier to draw the water out of the system once or twice during the winter. This will prevent the lime being deposited, as it will only take place when the water has become surcharged with lime, owing to evaporation.

UNSATISFACTORY PIPING.

We have a greenhouse 19x90 feet, eleven feet high to the ridge and running east and west. It is divided into three rooms. In the smallest one we grow chrysanthemums; the center room is devoted to roses and the one farthest from the boiler is used for carnations. The house is heated by a Hitchings No. 16 boiler. It is a good, air-tight house, built by the Lord & Burnham Co. five years ago, but we cannot keep the temperature up. I make up my fire about 9:30 p. m., with the rose house temperature about 56 degrees and the carnation temperature about 50 degrees. Then I go home, and return at 7 a. m. This morning, December 30, at 7 a. m., the thermometer outdoors registered 3 degrees above zero. The temperature in the rose house was down to 42 degrees, and in the carnation house down to 36 degrees.

The chrysanthemum house contains 250 feet of 4-inch piping, the rose house 396 feet and the carnation house 352 feet. The chrysanthemum house contains 3,800 cubic feet of space, the rose house 4,916 cubic feet and the carnation house 4,916 cubic feet. What do you think is the cause of our trouble? I am located in Rhode Island. W. H. C.

of cubic feet of space in each room, it omits two important points—the length of each room and the amount of glass in the side walls. Without these particulars no very definite reply can be given, as it is the amount of exposed glass surface, rather than the cubic contents of the houses, that is considered.

Supposing that the rose and carnation houses are thirty-three feet long and the chrysanthemum house twenty-four feet long, and that there are two feet of glass in each side wall, there is nothing in the data given which will explain the trouble. The heater is a good one and is amply large enough to heat the entire house to 60 degrees. There is 1,000 square feet of radiating surface, which should more than suffice to maintain a temperature above 60 degrees, in all of the rooms.

It would seem that the only possible cause is that the pipes are too near the level of the boiler, or perhaps that they are not properly graded.

Instead of using 4-inch pipe, it would have been better to use 2½-inch flows and either 2-inch or 2½-inch returns. For the carnation house it would have only required three 2½-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns, and the same would have answered for the chrysanthemum house, while three flows and twelve returns would have answered for the rose house.

IN NORTHERN ILLINOIS.

My greenhouse is 20x85 feet, eleven feet to the ridge and two feet from the path to the gutter. The south roof is fourteen feet from the ridge to the gutter and the north roof is twelve feet. There is a 4-foot wall of concrete. The west end of the house is extended 9x18 feet, connecting with the boiler room.

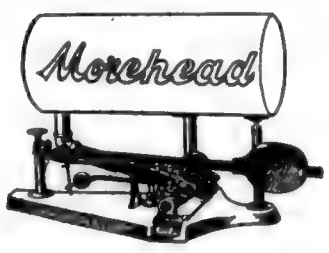
Will a boiler which carries 975 square feet of radiation heat the house to 50 degrees in zero weather, if the house is properly piped? The boiler is made for four 2-inch flows and returns. Will it be advisable to run the flow pipe along the side walls and return with 1½-inch pipes? There are two 4-foot benches in the center and a 5-foot bench on each side. Please advise how to pipe. G. H. R.

As 600 square feet of radiating surface is all that is needed to heat the house described, aside from the connecting house, the boiler with a capacity for 975 square feet should be amply large.

While it will answer to use 1½-inch pipes, it will be better, in houses more than fifty feet long, to use 2-inch pipe for the returns. With four 2-inch flow pipes it will be necessary to use eleven 1½-inch returns, while nine 2-inch returns would be sufficient. The flow pipes can all be carried on the side walls, or a

A Catalogue Worth Having

Our new Boiler Catalogue is a valuable book to any florist, large or small, and everybody who has a greenhouse ought to have one of them by all means. This catalogue tells you all you want to know about greenhouse heating and tells it in a simple manner, so that everything is easily understood.



One of our large customers wrote for six copies to give to his men—he said it would make them valuable employees.

ABOUT ITS ERECTION

Taken side by side, with conditions equal, the U-Bar house can be erected with less trouble and greatest speed. Look at a U-Bar house and it is plain enough why—rafter and roof bars combined in one—the entire frame reduced to a mere web—no complicated fittings to bolt up—one-third less glazing to do because the glass is spaced one-third wider—simply straight away work from start to finish.

If yours is a case where time counts and where greatest endurance and highest productiveness are requirements, then send for a catalogue and get in immediate touch with us.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

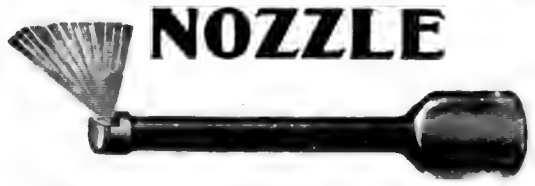
Current Comment.

Business was fairly good last week. Funeral work was good, cleaning up lots of stock. Carnations are now retailing at 60 cents and 75 cents per dozen. Roses bring from $1.50 to $2 per dozen, retail. Violets are in fairly good demand, retailing at $1.50 per hundred blooms. Sweet peas sell at $1 per hundred. Paper Whites are in good supply; they retail at 50 cents per dozen. Green is in good demand. Some nice flowering plants are still to be seen here in the stores.

On Saturday, January 15, this city was visited by a severe snow storm and blizzard. As a result, in the evening there was but little doing uptown.

It is now time to be getting ready for Memorial day, and florists here will soon be planting ten weeks' stocks, candytuft, etc. A great quantity of these two flowers is grown here.

Easter lilies, in general, are looking fairly well and give promise of a good crop.



All the uptown stores are making nice window displays just now.

The weather at present is cold and fair. W. L.

Elwood, Ind.—F. W. Blubaugh recently added to his range an iron-frame greenhouse, 25x125, of King construction. Part of the new house is stocked with sweet peas and the rest of it with radishes and lettuce.

Bessemer, Ala.—Mrs. W. D. Brown says that last fall was unusually favorable for the culture of chrysanthemums in this locality. She always grows these flowers outdoors and had a beautiful arbor of them.

STOTT SPRAY NOZZLE

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

NOXALL FLORISTS' HOSE

Furnished in any length up to 500 feet, without seam, joint or connection, ½ and ¾-in. sizes. An exceptionally high grade greenhouse hose, manufactured with a double woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover. The double woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking. Noxall Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 lbs. per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this. Noxall Hose is made by the latest and most improved methods and its construction is the most important improvement made in the manufacture of rubber hose since Goodyear discovered the process of vulcanizing rubber 75 years ago. PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Business is all right as far as it goes, but it is not going as far as some would wish to see it just now, and this is the result largely of the weather conditions, which can only be described as rotten. Violets seem to suffer most, as they usually move best when they can be worn on the streets and that has not been lately. But what's the use of kicking? It has been worse. With snow, rain, more snow and more rain, what can we expect? But we are satisfied to get this all worked out now, so as to be ready for the carnation people when they come.

The Carnation Convention.

The committee having charge of the arrangements for the carnation convention met at Fort Pitt hotel and all reports were satisfactory. The finance committee reports almost enough money subscribed and paid in without any personal solicitation, and no worry is felt for the balance. The entertainment committee is now figuring how it can get in its full program in the limited time of the convention meeting. This looks like the program to date: First evening, Wednesday, smoker at Fort Pitt hotel for men and theater party for ladies, with luncheon afterward at Fort Pitt hotel; Thursday, trip to H. J. Heinz (home of 57 varieties), where, after an inspection of the largest establishment of its kind in the world, a luncheon will be served in their auditorium, with some entertainment; Thursday night, the banquet in the English room of the Fort Pitt hotel and, if it is not a success, I will take off my hat to all of you; Friday, President Burki has planned a trip to Bakerstown, the home of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and if everyone does not stay for this, I know Mr. Burki will be disappointed, as he just wants to show, not the largest plant in the world, but one that he will not be ashamed of.

I have not mentioned the regular convention meetings, which will have their own good things for those who are most interested along that line.

Don't forget to bring your ladies or you will inconvenience the committee which is providing for them.

Florists' Review

When Writing Advertisers

ROCHESTER.

The progress Rochester is making as a trade center is well shown by the fact that the Commercial Florists' Association of Rochester is one of the two or three florists' clubs in the United States which has a permanent headquarters. Rooms have recently been secured in the Cutler building and furnished for the occupation of the club. It is intended eventually to have the rooms open to the members at all times and to establish a library of trade literature. The step promises to result in a large increase in the already strong membership.

At the meeting January 10 the officers of last year were reëlected. The regular meetings are held on the second Monday of each month. The club has appointed committees and is well along on the work of preparation for the entertainment of the S. A. F. annual convention next August. The Rochester convention will be of special importance to the society because, if present plans do not miscarry, it will result in a radical change in the character of the conventions. The two most important innovations planned are for a public exhibition of plants separate from the trades' display, and the division of the business sessions into sections, each section to be devoted to some special interest.

At the last meeting of the society it was proposed that its name be shortened to Rochester Florists' Association, the membership to include, besides those on the present roster, nurserymen, seedsmen and gardeners, whether commercial or private in their activities. At the next meeting the dinner committee will be appointed, it having been announced that the association will gather for this social feature as soon as preparations can be completed. It is proposed to make the question box one of the features of the regular meetings.

One of the significant features of the last meeting was the annual report of Treasurer W. L. Keller. The report indicated that the net proceeds from the flower show last fall were $1,498.94, which, with proceeds from other sources, swelled the total income of the association to $1,637.34, of which sum there is at present in the treasury $1,367.06, as against $12 one year ago.

OTTAWA, KAN.—Holiday trade at the Lester Greenhouse was twenty-five per cent better than a year ago, in both plants and cut flowers.

PADUCAH, KY.—Schmaus Bros. report that holiday trade this season was one-third better than a year ago. The demand was about equally divided between cut flowers and plants.

Evergreen Brand Flower Fertilizer

Its recommendation is based upon careful, extended and disinterested experiments, showing that this material is a nourishing, easily available food for crops.

It can be used on any kind of soil, for it is a combination of all Plant Foods in such proportions as are taken from the ground by herbaceous plants.

Its use provides Digestible Food for the roots when they require it, regardless of climate or character of soil.

Can be used at any time during the growing season, dry or in solution.

Put up in 12-pound cans. Price, $2.00 each.

The Market.

The weather, upon which the florists' trade so closely depends, continues wintry and exceptionally trying, the records of the weather bureau showing that this winter has been exceedingly severe from December 1 to January 15. The average temperature for this time has been 26.3 degrees, which is 5 or 6 degrees below the normal mean temperature for that period. In ordinary seasons in this section, after a cold spell of two or three days, there is a thaw, followed by a spring-like interval of a few days, but this year the cold has been unremitting and snow has covered the ground for weeks. Fortunately, one favorable feature was the few cloudy days, the atmosphere generally being clear and inspiring.

Roses are coming in better and are moved without much trouble. Carnations seem to be in full crop with a great many growers, judging by the appearance of the street fakers on Saturday, who were loaded down with them at 25 cents per dozen. Sweet peas are coming in large quantities and are eagerly sought after. Daffodils have arrived and some extra fine Golden Spur are to be had at 3½ cents. Violets are not so good as they were before Christmas. They are chiefly from New York and are mostly of the single varieties.

Various Notes.

The Baltimore Florists' Exchange held its annual meeting and election on January 10 and the following directors and officers were elected for the ensuing year: President and director, I. H. Moss; vice-president, F. C. Bauer; secretary, P. B. Welsh; treasurer, C. E. Akehurst; directors, F. C. Burger, Wm. Lehr, R. L. Graham. Manager J. J. Perry reports that this year's business was the largest and most profitable in the history of the concern.

At the club meeting January 10, F. C. Bauer had on exhibition President Taft begonia, which was much admired, as was also some of his new seedling mignonette, which was of immense size and stem.

James Hamilton gave a talk on greenhouse heating. He has just finished a large cement propagating bench, 150 feet long, for carnations. Q.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Zane & Son belong to an historic family. Ebenezer Zane's log cabin, built in 1769, was the first building put up in Wheeling, and it was to this cabin Elizabeth Zane made her famous dash for powder during the siege of Fort Henry by the British and Indians.

Our Steel Eave

The galvanized iron roof bar brackets are bolted to the steel eave plate, which is itself bolted to the wrought iron posts. You know that the most lasting of eave plates is that of iron to iron. No greenhouse could be more lasting than one built this way.

The Snow Question Solved

Showing how the snow lay on the wooden gutter houses

Showing that the snow did NOT lie on the Garland Gutter Houses

(These photos were taken the same day and hour at Wietor Bros., Chicago.)

The GARLAND GUTTER did the work

An iron gutter not only clears your houses of snow in less than 1/3 of the time a wooden gutter will, but prevents glass breakage at gutter.

Iron absorbs sufficient heat from the house to keep it continually thawed, consequently no ice can form on gutter, therefore no breakage from that source. This point is demonstrated by the freedom from ice and snow on the sidewalks, when wooden sidewalks are heavily coated. Immediately after a fall of snow, melting at the ridge sets in, and the water, running down to the wooden gutter, freezes fast, forming a ridge over the first pane of glass and preventing the snow from sliding down. With iron gutters the conditions are reversed, the snow melting first in gutter, keeping the sides smooth, so that the snow can readily slide down to the gutter and pass off in the form of water in the coldest weather, thus relieving the house of snow and exposing the glass to the action of the sun in 1/3 of the time, which is an important factor when sunlight is at a premium.

Have you heard about the new GARLAND SOIL CONVEYOR?

We manufacture the iron material that made the biggest hit of the season of 1909. Write us for particulars. All inquiries will be cheerfully answered. Our draftsman is at your service Free of Charge.

"Light as Outdoors"

THAT is pretty close to the truth about our Sectional Iron Frame Construction.

Here is a view inside one of these houses, looking straight at the roof, from ridge to eave. What a cobweb-like structure of iron and wood it is! Light, but solid as a rock.

Such a house, made such a way, will be growing roses for your children and your children's children, and that's long enough for any house to last.

THE Kroeschell Boiler

Was installed to heat over 9,000,000 square feet of glass during the past four years.

THE BEST HEATING SYSTEM ON THE MARKET TODAY

We are very much pleased to inform you of the wonderful result of the new boiler tube piping and Generator system, which we have just finished and tested. We were able to raise the heat fully as quick as steam, and far more satisfactory. We made the test with the Generator cut out, then with the Generator turned on, and noted the wonderful difference in the circulation of the water. It is certainly a wonderful achievement and would work a wonderful improvement on old systems.

Please accept our many thanks for the use of the tools and for the many favors shown us. Your system of doing business is certainly the squarest and fairest of any out of the many whom we have dealt with.

Again thanking you, and wishing you a prosperous New Year, we remain. Respectfully yours,
W. J. Miller & Son, Pontiac, Ill.

I am so pleased with my No. 5 Kroeschell Boiler and the excellent work it is doing for me, that I am showing it to everyone. If I can be of any assistance to you in placing a boiler at any time, I shall be glad to do so. Yours truly,
C. A. Nokes, Sac City Greenhouses,
Sac City, Iowa.

The Kroeschell Piping System

Circulation is perfect.
Cheaper and better than 1, 1¼, 1½ or 2-inch threaded pipe.
Overcomes all the disadvantages of 4-inch cast-iron pipe.
No deep boiler pits required.

THE Kroeschell Boiler

Replaced over 1500 cast iron boilers in the short period of six years.

Expressions From The Men Who Know

KROESCHELL vs. CAST IRON BOILERS

We purchased of you this spring a No. 6 Kroeschell Boiler, which you guaranteed would take the place of three cast iron boilers. Well, the whole thing in a nut shell is this—your word is as good as gold. Night before last we had a severe storm of snow and sleet, and a very high wind; we had not the least bit of trouble. We fired the last at 10:00 p. m., Nov. 24th, and the next morning at 7:00 o'clock we looked at the houses and found it only 1 degree less than when we fired the last coal, 9 hours earlier. If this isn't magnificent work and a good test we would be pleased to hear from any one else that could furnish a better boiler.

We know if parties wishing a boiler would get one from you they never would try any other.

We think in 5 years' running of this boiler we will have the price saved in the difference in our coal bill.

Wishing you the best of success, we remain,
Very truly yours,
Adam Laub & Son, Hughsonville, N. Y.

We now have your No. 2 Boiler and Generator in operation. We use soft or bituminous coal and it works like a charm. We are very much pleased with it indeed. Yours truly,
J. T. Lovett, Little Silver, N. J.

THE KROESCHELL GENERATOR

Cures sluggish circulation.
Water travels three to five times faster.
Saves fuel.
Prevents boiling over.
Water can be heated to 240 degrees without boiling, making it possible to have steam temperatures in your piping if wanted.
Greatly improves systems having long mains and coils.
Can be connected to any hot water system, no matter what kind of boiler or piping is used.
Easy to install—simply attach to your present expansion pipe.

TWO SPLENDID Rose Novelties

Raised by JACKSON DAWSON
Now offered for sale for the first time of the Silver Medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, 1900. One of the finest hardy Ramblers ever raised.

LADY DUNCAN

Rosa Wichuraiana fertilized with Rosa rugosa. Absolutely hardy.

WINNER

Has the prostrate long rampant growth of the mother, while the Rugosa blood shows in the foliage, spines and flowers, the petals being a warm lively pink and making a delightful contrast to the yellow stamens.

DAYBREAK

Wichuraiana type, formerly known as Seedling No. 7 (Wichuraiana X The Dawson). A vigorous grower, profuse bloomer and easy forcer. Foliage light yellowish green. Hardy as far north as Canada.

Flowers single, in loosely pyramidal clusters. Color deep yellowish pink, a shade darker than Lady Duncan, slightly lighter tint toward center. Stamens very bright orange. Flowers full, round cupped.

EVERY NURSERYMAN AND EASTER PLANT FORCER WILL WANT THESE TWO NEW ROSES.

Stock limited; order now for early spring delivery. PRICES: Strong 3-year-old plants, $1.00 each; $10.00 per dozen; $80.00 per 100.

House of Carnation Mrs. C. W. Ward at Cottage Gardens, Photographed December 3, 1909

Important Announcement to Carnation Growers

At the earnest solicitation of a large number of commercial and private growers, the Cottage Gardens Company has decided to disseminate this year the two famous Carnations two varieties which are well known to all the leading growers of the country. Four years' test in the New York market has demonstrated their popularity and good staying qualities For the past three years we have been growing from 15,000 to 25,000 of each, during which time they have always commanded the highest market prices, and at no time has the supply been equal to the demand.

MRS. C. W. WARD and ALMA WARD

On the exhibition table they have taken the highest honors, and we believe it is safe to say these two Carnations stand without an equal.

INVITATION

We extend a cordial invitation to all those interested to visit our establishment, where they will have an opportunity to see them growing and compare their good points with other standard varieties grown under the same conditions.

MRS. C. W. WARD

MRS. C. W. WARD is a perfectly formed flower with full center; color, deep pink, several shades lighter than Lawson; deeper than Winsor; having strong, erect stems, 24 to 36 inches in length A vigorous, healthy grower and has never shown disease of any kind.

A very early and free bloomer, producing fine flowers as early as September 1, which bring from 25 to 50 per cent more than any other variety on the market.

The keeping qualities of this variety are remarkable. Several shipments of blooms sent to Europe reached their destinations in perfect condition, and wherever exhibited it has always been the last to show signs of wilting.

ALMA WARD

This beautiful Carnation is pure white except during dark weather, when it shows delicate splashings of pink similar to the Cattleya Orchid, increasing its popularity.

ALMA WARD is the largest and most fragrant Carnation ever grown, producing perfect flowers 3½ to 4½ inches in diameter, on strong, erect stems 36 to 42 inches in length.

This most remarkable variety takes the same place among Carnations as the American Beauty Rose among Roses, and has, during the past four years, been awarded numerous prizes, including the following:

The Lawson Silver Medal, ... Toronto, 1907
(No Gold Medal having been awarded.)

THE PITTSBURG CONVENTION

The American Carnation Society Holds Its Nineteenth Annual Meeting and Exhibition.

President, Fred Burki, Pittsburg, Pa.
Vice-president, E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.
Secretary, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.
Treasurer, Fred E. Dorner, Jr., Lafayette, Ind.

NEXT MEETING PLACE, BOSTON, MASS., MARCH, 1911.

In many respects the exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society, held this week at Pittsburg, proved to be the most notable of the long line of successful meetings of this vigorous organization, the most active of all the special flower societies in the United States. While no records as to attendance were broken, there was, nevertheless, a first-class showing from a distance, New York coming with a full carload—nearly thirty people—and Chicago and vicinity being nearly as well represented. J. A. Valentine and Emil Glauber, the Colorado delegates, were farther from home than any one else. The New England representation was light. Peter Fisher was missed. As is always the case, scores of florists from the small towns for fifty miles around dropped in for a few hours and departed without making themselves known to the secretary; still there was a rather good western Pennsylvania accession to the membership.

Pittsburg is an ideal convention town, only one night's ride from most of the convention goers, and the Pittsburg Florists' Club worked hard on the arrangements, so that they were nearly perfect. The only thing that appears to have been overlooked was the propitiation of the weather man—he announced several days before that it would rain or snow in Pittsburg during the convention dates, and it did both fairly continuously—and a deal whereby the Carnation Society should have the exclusive convention privilege that week. As it turned out, there was a big baseball conference, a glass manufacturers' convention and several other meetings, so that the hotels were crowded. The big Fort Pitt hotel, where the Carnation Society met, was obliged to turn away many florists, which was an unpleasant feature—it had been planned to keep everything and everybody under one roof.

The Carnation Society never has had so fine a place for its meeting. The Fort Pitt is one of the big, modern hotels of the country. It affords every creature comfort, and the exhibition hall was a beauty, well ventilated, if it is so poorly lighted that the electrics were required in the day the same as in the evening. Many a member did not step foot outdoors during the two days of the meeting, Wednesday and Thursday.

The Exhibition.

While the business sessions were exceptionally interesting this year, after all it is the exhibition that draws the attendance and holds the attention, for it means real money to most of those in the trade. There have been larger exhibitions of carnations than the one held at Pittsburg this year, for there are not a large number of local growers to participate, but there never was a finer showing anywhere. It is noteworthy that year by year the standard sorts are less and less in evidence and the exhibition is monopolized by the new sorts, those of this season's introduction, those to come out next season, and those sent out a year ago. No one ever saw a finer lot of new sorts than were shown at Pittsburg. There were thirteen splendid competitors for the gold medal, among them being most of the sorts now being disseminated and some of those to come out next year. The effort to make a showing of last year's introductions was only partly successful. While fourteen disseminators offered premiums to tempt competition from those who bought their novelties a year ago, there were no entries in several of these classes and only one in many of them. It was notable that in this year's exhibition there was not even one vase of last year's medal-winner, Roper's variegated, Bay State.

The Novelties.

Possibly the greatest interest attached to the varieties now being sent out. The Cottage Gardens Co. had several vases of Alma Ward, white, and Mrs. C. W. Ward, pink. The awards will show how they stood comparison with the best now in sight. Dorothy Gordon, the light pink of the Joseph Heacock Co., was closely studied, for it is being bought heavily, over 95,000 having now been booked. It looked better than it has in either of the last two years. Admiration, by the Chas. Knopf Floral Co., also showed up better than ever before. Both A. C. Brown and the Chicago Carnation Co. staged fine vases of Sangamo, the pink that was so well thought of at Indianapolis last year, and the latter concern also showed Mary Tolman, light pink, and Conquest, varie-gated, in good shape. The number of new light pink sorts was the subject of comment; Enchantress hardly was in evidence and certainly could not stand up beside the new sorts. Baur & Smith had two fine vases of Shasta, white, which everybody likes for its form. Scarlet Glow, which F. Dorner & Sons Co. is sending out, was second only to one of the finest vases of Beacon ever staged.

(President-elect American Carnation Society.)

Of the sorts that will make their bids next season or later, some of the most prominent were:

W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., staged a variety; the color shows up splendidly under electric light.

F. Dorner & Sons Co. won the silver S. A. F. medal with their red, Hoosier Lad. They also had a light pink seedling, No. 42-06, and a white, No. 68-06.

Baur & Smith, Indianapolis, besides Shasta, had a rose-pink sport of May that was well liked, and a crimson seedling, No. 653.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, had a couple of fine vases of a new white, Norwood, that they plan to disseminate next year.

Albert M. Herr.

(President American Carnation Society.)

crimson, named for his wife, that was good for a certificate.

The Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O., had a fine vase of Miami Queen, pink, and other seedlings.

Wilson & Weber, Brooklyn, had a handsome lot of a fringed pink seedling, raised by the latter, which they call Brooklyn and which will be sent out next year. As staged it looks a good thing.

Henry Eichholz, Waynesboro, Pa., put up a fine vase of Washington, a bright pink sport of Enchantress, the variety recently sold to the Chicago Carnation Co.; also several pot plants of the variety Christmas Cheer.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., showed the Bertermann yellow, J. W. Riley; Spellbinder, pink; Mrs. Beckwith, red; Niagara, a good-looking white; Annie Mae, exceptionally promising light pink, and some other seedlings.

A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill., had Superba, another light pink, and Clara Mae, a brighter pink that looks promising.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, had a fine lot of standard varieties but only one new sort, No. 40, light pink, that Mr. Pierson thinks highly of as a commercial Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., with White House, took a medal over three of the finest vases of 100 whites any set of judges ever tackled, and Alma Ward was among them. Dailledouze Bros. also had a good variegated, No. 303.

R. Witterstaetter showed two vases of 100 each, No. 1400-E, light pink, a successor to his J. A. Valentine, sent out some time ago, that he purposes to call President Valentine, and No. 1407-O, an improved Afterglow.

Nic Zweifel, North Milwaukee, came to the front in good shape with his bright pink, Bright Spot, that he plans to send out next year.

The Wanoka Greenhouses, Barneveld, N. Y., had some good looking seedlings in Rainbow, variegated, Sultana, crimson, and a white, No. 214.

W. N. Rudd, Morgan Park, Ill., showed Greenwood, still another light pink; No. 2807-A, crimson; No. 607-A, also light pink, and No. 11004-A, another crimson.

The Wagoner Floral Co., Columbia City, Ind., showed Columbia, a good looking crimson, and standard sorts.

The Finleyville Floral Co., Finleyville, O., had a pink seedling, No. 168, and several standard varieties.

Vases labeled Kathleen B. W. and Mrs. Thomas Harvey had no cards to indicate the owners and there were a number of seedlings under number that were without grower's name. A vase of a white delicately suffused with pink carried a shipping tag from Kennicott Bros. Co., Chicago, but no other label.

The Awards.

The judges were M. A. Patten, John Birnie, E. A. Stroud, W. N. Rudd, Wm. Nicholson and R. Witterstaetter. They divided up into teams of three and did their work in record time, although the large number of splendid entries in the model classes called for some close work. The awards were as follows:

A. C. S. gold medal for best vase of 100 any variety, F. Dorner & Sons Co., on Hoosier Lad, red; thirteen entries.

A. C. S. silver medal for second best vase of 100 any variety, R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, on 1400-E, flesh pink; twelve entries.

A. C. S. bronze medal for third best vase of 100 any variety, Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., on White House; eleven entries.

S. A. F. silver medal for best vase of fifty not yet disseminated, to Cottage Gardens Co., on Mrs. C. W. Ward; twelve entries.

S. A. F. bronze medal for second best vase of fifty not yet disseminated, to Cottage Gardens Co., on Alma Ward; ten entries.

One hundred white, Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first, on Alma Ward; Strafford Flower Farm, Strafford, Pa., second, on White Perfection; eight entries.

One hundred flesh pink, F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., first, on No. 42-06; F. Dorner & Sons Co. second, on Pink Delight; six entries.

One hundred light pink, Cottage Gardens Co. first, on Mrs. C. W. Ward; Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., second, on Dorothy Gordon; four entries.

One hundred dark pink, Nic Zweifel, North Milwaukee, Wis., first, on Bright Spot; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., second, on Afterglow; five entries.

One hundred red, Cottage Gardens Co. first, on Beacon; F. Dorner & Sons Co. second, on Scarlet Glow; seven entries.

One hundred crimson, Wanoka Greenhouses, Barneveld, N. Y., first, on Sultana; W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., second, on Mrs. W. W. Coles; four entries.

One hundred yellow, E. G. Hill Co. first, on J. W. Riley.

One hundred any other color, H. Weber & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md. first, on Toreador; Chicago Carnation Co. second, on Conquest.

Sweepstakes, best vase of any color in the classes for 100 blooms, to Cottage Gardens Co., for Alma Ward, white.

Fifty White Enchantress, A. T. Lorch & Co., Allison Park, Pa., first; A. C. Brown second; four entries.

Fifty White Perfection, Chicago Carnation Co. first; Wagoner Floral Co., Columbia City, Ind., second; five entries.

(Re-elected Secretary American Society.)

Fifty Winona, Finleyville Floral Co. first; E. G. Hill Co. second; three entries.

Fifty Lawson, A. T. Lorch first.

Fifty Afterglow, E. G. Hill Co. first; A. C. Brown second; three entries.

Fifty Victory, F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., first.

Fifty any other dark pink, Chicago Carnation Co. first, on Aristocrat.

Fifty Beacon, Chicago Carnation Co. first; F. R. Pierson Co. second; four entries.

Fifty any other scarlet, Chicago Carnation Co. second, on A. Carnegie.

Fifty any other crimson, J. D. Cockcroft first, on Harvard.

Fifty Pink Delight, Chicago Carnation Co. first; E. G. Hill Co. second.

Fifty Mrs. Charles Knopf, Chicago Carnation Co. first.

Fifty May Day, E. G. Hill Co. first; W. Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., second; three entries.

Fifty O. P. Bassett, Chicago Carnation Co. first.

Fifty Apple Blossom, W. A. Rowlands, Utica, N. Y., first.

Fifty Wanoka, W. A. Rowlands first.

Fifty Georgia, Walter Thomas, Stony Brook, L. I., first.

Fifty Gov. Deneen, Chicago Carnation Co. first.

Fifty Alvina, Chicago Carnation Co. first.

For certificate of merit the varieties entered were scored as follows:

Rainbow, variegated, by Wanoka Greenhouses, Barneveld, N. Y., 85 points.

Annie Mae, pink, by E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., 85 points.

No. 40, light pink, by F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., 79 points.

Mrs. W. W. Coles, crimson, by W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., 86 points.

No. 1400-E, light pink, by R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, 86 points. The variety was thereupon named President Valentine.

No. 1407-0, pink, by R. Witterstaetter, 85 points. The name Afterglow, Jr., is proposed for this variety.

Miami Queen, by the Miami Floral Co., scored 78 points.

Sultana, crimson, by Wanoka Greenhouses, 87 points.

For preliminary certificate; No. 168, pink, by the Finleyville Floral Co., Finleyville, scored 80 points, and No. 653, crimson, of Baur & Smith, Indianapolis, scored 79 points.

The judges recommended a certificate of merit to the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co. for a handsome exhibit of ten vases of well grown standard varieties not for competition.

Honorable mention was awarded to J. A. Peterson for a table of excellent plants of his new begonia, Gloire de Cincinnati.

Honorable mention was awarded the Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., for a display of carnations not for competition, which included a good white seedling, No. 107, and several other seedlings in their first year.

Special mention was made of two handsome vases of Shasta and one of Rose-pink May, a sport, exhibited not for competition, by Baur & Smith.

Local Hospitalities.

Every moment not occupied by the affairs of the society was taken up by the hospitalities arranged by the Pittsburg Florists' Club, so that there was something doing every minute. The hospitalities never were more abundant.

Wednesday afternoon, while the judging was in progress, a large party was escorted to and through the widely advertised works of the H. J. Heinz pickle factory. The processes were explained, pictures of farms and branches shown and luncheon was served. It was an exceedingly enjoyable trip.

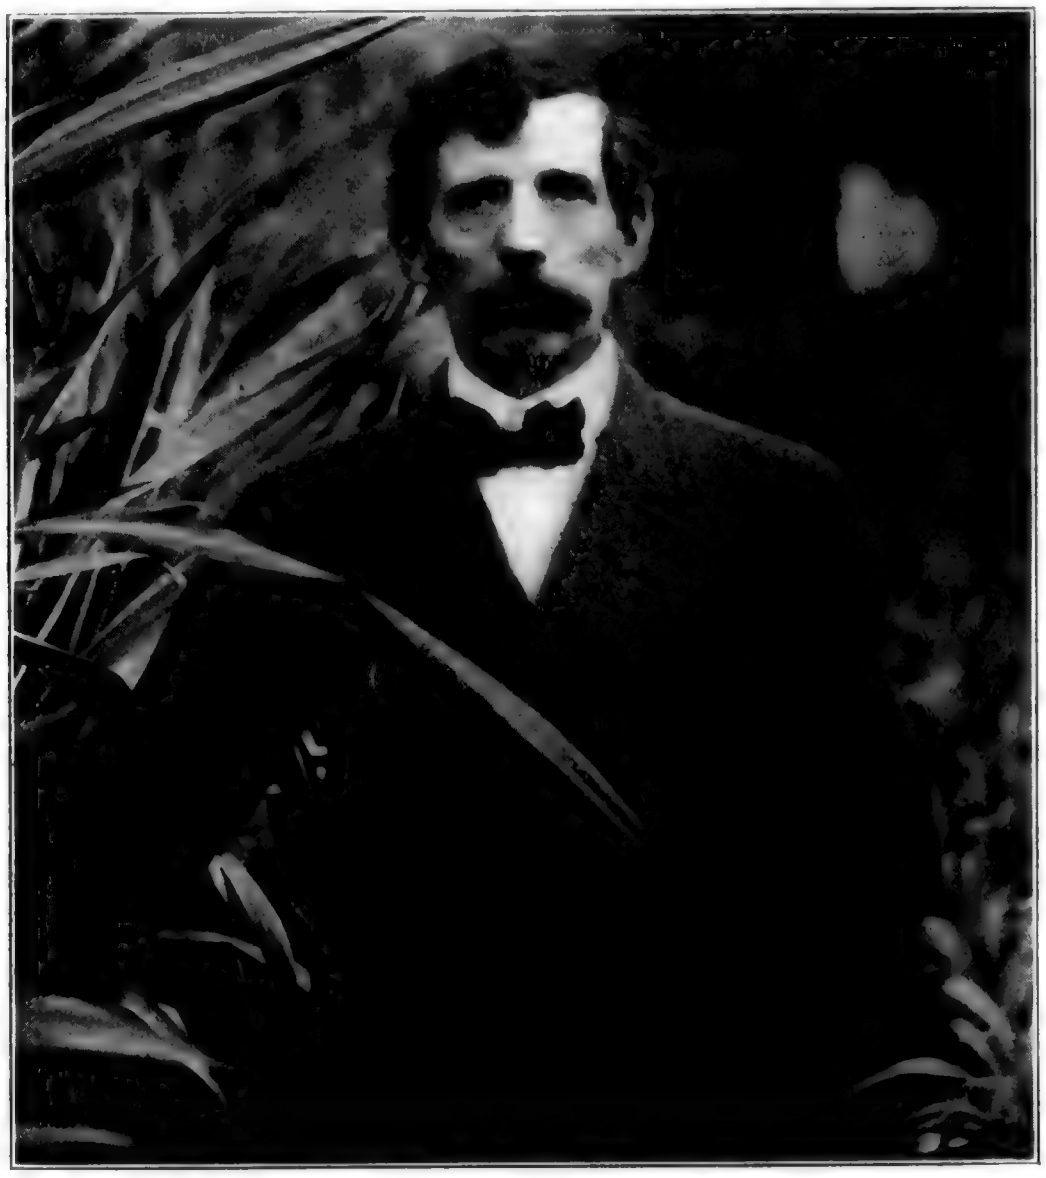
Wednesday evening, while the society was dispatching its routine business, the ladies to the number of about forty, including the Pittsburg ladies, were taken in taxicabs to the theater, followed by supper.

After the adjournment of the business session Wednesday evening, all the visiting men were invited to a smoker in the main dining-room of the Fort Pitt hotel. There was a big crowd, over 250, and a jolly good time—plenty of amusement to keep things lively to a late hour, with luncheon and other refreshment.

On Thursday evening a formal banquet was given the visitors in the Fort Pitt. There was an elaborate menu, after which many of the well-known visitors were called on to talk.

Friday all the visitors who remained were guests on a trip to the Bakerstown greenhouses of the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co., where luncheon was served. Many had visited the plant individually in the days preceding.

First Business Session.



Vice-president Fred Burki called the society to order for its opening formalities Wednesday evening, introducing John A. Brashear to deliver an address of welcome. Mr. Brashear bears quite a resemblance to J. D. Carmody, both in appearance and in flow of language. He talked of the chemistry of light and color in flowers, bringing out some ideas quite new to those who know flowers best, and was warmly applauded at frequent intervals during his ten minutes' talk.

Mr. Burki said Robert Craig needed

Fred E. Dorner, Jr.

(Re-elected Treasurer American Carnation Society.)

P. S. Randolph, Vice-President Pittsburg Florists' Club.

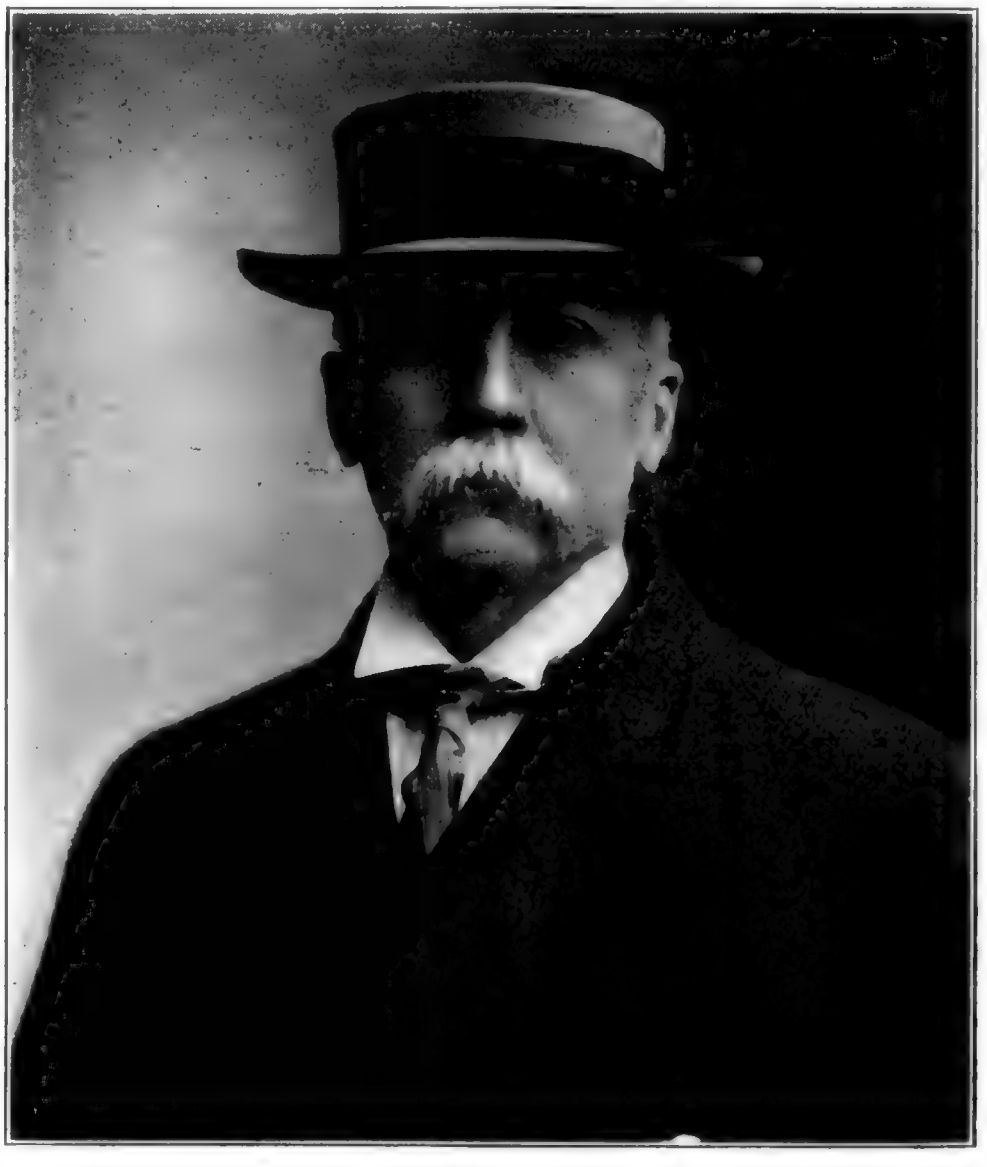
no introduction to respond. That silver-tongued gentleman voiced the appreciation of the society for so interesting an address of welcome and said that visiting florists always feel at home in Pittsburg, where floriculture has many valued patrons. Mr. Craig made a great hit by presenting Mr. Brashear with a great armful of carnations which lay upon the table, for the invalid wife of whose love of flowers Mr. Brashear had spoken.

President Albert M. Herr took the chair at the conclusion of Mr. Craig's response and read his formal address, as follows:

President's Address.

Your president extends greeting and a welcome to our sessions; we hope to have them interesting enough to have you at each one of them.

This society was organized in Philadelphia and the first regular meeting was held in New York, but it always seemed to me that it took the second annual meeting, in this city, to get us thoroughly acquainted with each other, and Pittsburg will always be a bright spot in the memory of those of us who were fortunate enough to attend that meeting. Those of us who are here today will no doubt long remember the nineteenth annual meeting and our Pittsburg welcome.



Getting acquainted is one of the chief benefits to be derived from these gatherings. I know of several instances where men have attended our meetings for the first time and gone home having met but two or three members. In one instance, on the train going home, a new member told me that the only person who spoke to him during the whole convention was the secretary. In cases of this kind the individual himself is largely to blame, but we should, during the few days we are together, be a more universal brotherhood and have at least a "howdy" for each and every visitor. I would suggest a permanent committee of introduction and information, to whom strangers can apply for assistance in getting acquainted.

Improvement of Business Methods.

Can we make our meetings more interesting and more profitable to ourselves and our flower than they now are? We have told and retold the story of production, the proper houses, etc.; there are, of course, new difficulties and advanced methods to discuss along these lines each year, but it seems to your president that we could and should devote at least one session to the improvement of our business methods. That they have improved no one can deny, but the improvement today over that of our meeting here seventeen years ago is little more than what has been forced upon us by the general upward trend of all business. Other industries do not wait to have improvement forced upon them; they are continually searching for it, grasping and utilizing it.

We should know how much money each square foot of ground surface in our houses should bring us to meet our expenses, labor, heating, operation, wear and tear on the place.

We should have a small but conspicuous tag attached to each bunch of flowers we send into market and let this tag follow them into the retail shop, so that in the course of time buyers would learn to ask for it and demand it as a guarantee of quality. This tag could be marked with the letters A. C. S., or some other special mark, and the whole be copyrighted and for use only by paid-up members of this society, and all infringements prosecuted. To this special mark could be added the grower's name and the date the flowers were cut, this to be left to the discretion of each user. Poorly grown flowers and over-aged flowers by this method would soon be left in the race. To succeed and properly advance our business, our flowers should give pleasure and satisfaction to the user, and this suggestion is offered as a means to that end.

H. P. Joslin, Secretary Pittsburg Florists' Club.

Chas. S. Crall, Chairman Reception Committee.

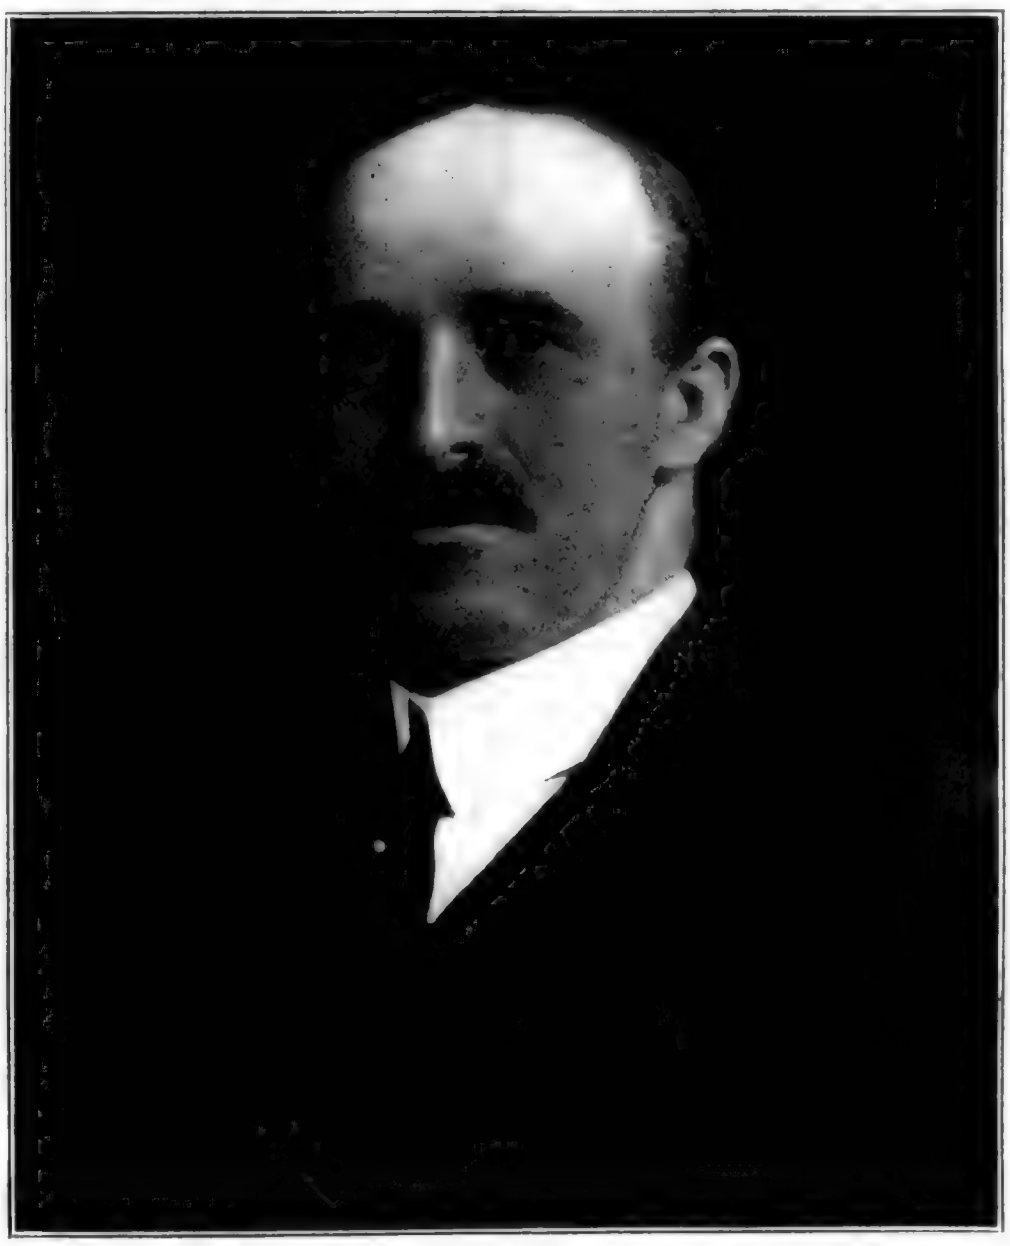
Getting Together.

Can we improve our methods of selling carnations? Mr. Fox gave a talk in Philadelphia from the retailer's point of view, on prices for special days of demand. We all know of instances when the retail market price of carnations was from $1 to $1.50 per dozen and the wholesale price was $1 to $1.25 per hundred, less the fifteen per cent commission to the middleman. This proportion between the grower and the retailer is not a good business proportion, and if it were not for the advanced prices of special days the grower would be in a bad way. Adjustment will have to come some day and it should come through this society.



Is there overproduction of carnation blooms? I was told by a Pittsburg man that if roses had been plentiful for Christmas, carnations would have gone begging. All hail to the rose! But carnations have their devotees as well, and if given to them in proper shape and form I believe the day of overproduction is far in the future, providing the retailer, the grower and the middleman can get together and work toward a mutual end. Let us put on our thinking caps and see what we can do toward this. At our meeting in this city before, we had a paper by Thomas Cartledge, who stood at the head of the Philadelphia retail trade. He reviewed the various carnations then grown by name, giving his retail experience with each, as per this example: "Grace Wilder has been our leading pink, only because we could get it in quantity. Aurora has sold equally well when we could get it, although it sometimes shows a slaty, ashy purple tint when a little old." We want to grow "best sellers"; a review of this sort each season would help us find them out.

Making Membership a Necessity.

Our exhibitions will admit of some improvement as exhibitions to the public, but as an educator to the grower the lines on which we are working are as nearly right as we can hope to get them; as a guide to the buying of new sorts, each individual will have to work that out for himself, with the new flowers for comparison with older sorts in front of him.

There is one point I would like to see worked out and that is to have a report, from those who buy novelties the first year, sent in to the secretary December 1 of the following winter, giving their honest opinion of the variety from the buyer's point of view. Let the secretary publish these reports in pamphlet form and send them to applying members only. The buying of novelties is an experiment from a profit point of view, no matter how much we may try to eliminate it, but a pamphlet of this sort would be a great help to buyers of new sorts in their second year. If necessary, this pamphlet could also be copyrighted. You will note that I am trying to make membership in this society a necessity to all live carnation growers.

We need also a permanent committee of finance, to devise ways and means for

H. L. Blind, Treasurer Pittsburg Florists' Club

Thomas P. Jenkinson, Reception Committee.

the procuring of the funds necessary to the welfare of this society.

In closing, I want to compliment this society on its choice of a secretary; a better one would be hard to find; his work has been especially arduous for this first year, but it certainly has been faithfully performed. Our secretary should have at least $250 per year and the work would be cheaply done at that.

Let us all work toward getting this society to the position it should hold, and the prosperity of our society will bring prosperity to all its members.

At the conclusion of President Herr's remarks Secretary A. F. J. Baur presented his annual report, as follows:

Secretary's Report.

Your secretary begs leave to report on the last year's work as follows:

The former secretary, who is now our worthy president, turned over the secretary's office to me in good condition, April 1 of last year. He had gotten out the annual report and finished all the work connected with the last convention. Hence my report will not cover the whole year.

Our membership roll now contains 394 names. Of these, fifty-five came in during the year 1909. Against these we have twenty-seven who are delinquent for 1908 and 1909 and will be dropped from the roll, except those who may pay up at this meeting. We also have about fifty who owe for 1909, but no doubt many of these will pay up here.

During the last year four of our members have been called away from this life. They are: Geo. M. Kellogg, of Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Herbert Heller, of New Castle, Ind.; Wm. K. Harris, of Philadelphia, Pa., and E. Sutermeister, of Readville, Mass. No official notice was received by your secretary of any of these deaths.

The board of directors, at their meeting in Cincinnati, O., last August, ordered the secretary to procure more vases, and to have cases made for storing and shipping the vases from place to place. These have been secured, and it is hoped that our vases will be better preserved than could be done heretofore.

We have also had holders made for securing the name cards and entry cards to the vases. You will notice that these are so made as to permit the cards to be printed and read from both sides. It will be unnecessary for anyone to handle the cards to read the name of the variety or the exhibitor. There will be less likelihood of confusion from getting the cards mixed in moving vases around.

The premium list was gotten out early in December, as is customary. We were this year favored with a splendid lot of advertising, amounting to $285. This will pay for all the printing and stationery connected with this convention and leave a balance of some $150 to go into our treasury.

The greatest change in the list is the addition of the new section, called Section C, for the previous season's novelties. It took considerable correspondence to get this section started, but after it became clear to the disseminators they responded liberally, and all except two have entered their varieties in this section. We hope that this arrangement will be a permanent one, and that in the future it will become customary for disseminators to list their varieties in this section, without having to be coaxed.

We have also divided the list into sections, designated by letters of the alphabet, and numbered the classes in figures.

In the judges' book we have adopted a system under which every entry has a different number, and it is impossible to recognize the owner of an exhibit by the number on another exhibit. In order to help make this system work smoothly, I will ask this meeting to adopt some rule to limit the time for making entries in the competitive classes.

The rule printed in the list, requiring the payment of $1 for each entry made after a certain date, does not seem to answer the purpose fully. It has never been enforced strictly, and unless a rule can be enforced strictly it cannot be made fair to everybody. We would suggest that one week before the convention opens, all entries for competitive classes must be in the hands of the secretary. That will give him time to get everything into good shape before he leaves home, and the greatest cause of errors will be eliminated. The secretary should not be burdened at the convention with work which can just as well be done a week before he leaves home.

In conclusion I wish to thank the members for the interest shown by their ready responses to letters from the secretary. I also wish to thank the vice-president and his local committees for the able manner in which they have handled the local preparations, and most of all my predecessor, for his kindly advice and guidance during the past three-quarters of a year.

Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer F. E. Dorner reported on the society's finances for the year, summarized as follows:

Expenditures.

Paid by orders on treasury	$826.48
Jan. 24, 1910, cash on hand	283.68
Total	$1,110.16

Receipts.

Balance cash on hand, Jan. 25, 1909	$227.58
Cash from secretary	759.30
Cash, interest from permanent fund	123.28
Total	$1,110.16

Permanent Fund.

Reported Jan. 25, 1909	$2,375.31
One life membership	50.00
Total	$2,425.31

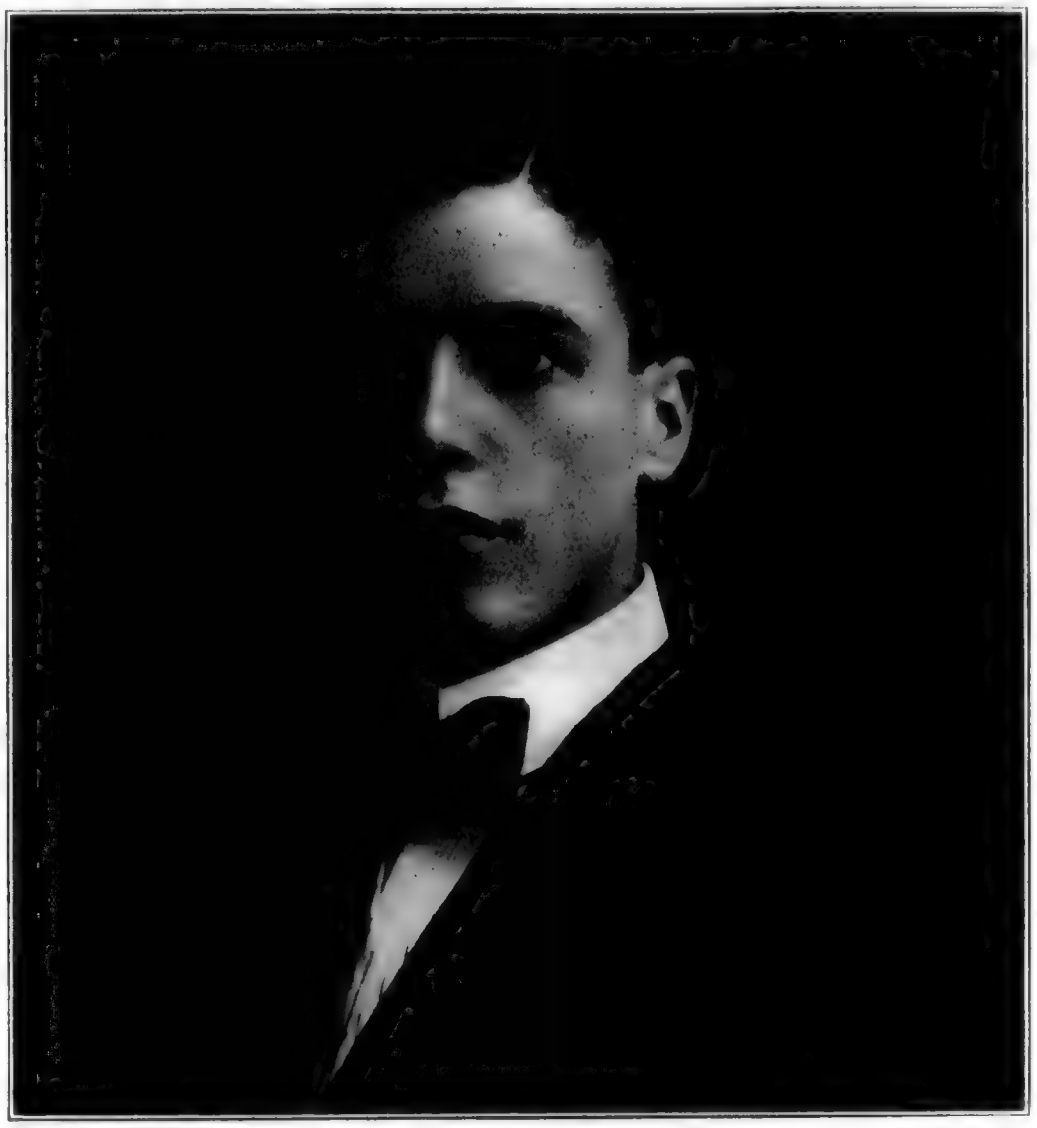
Nominations.

An invitation to hold the next meeting in Milwaukee was presented in writing, from the Milwaukee Florists' Club, also from Mayor Rose of that city and from the Milwaukee Business League.

F. R. Pierson brought up the matter of holding the 1911 meeting at Boston about March 20, in connection with the Second National Flower Show. Mr. Coles asked if Boston extended an invitation. Mr. Pierson said he spoke as chairman of the National Flower Show, a broader proposition than any local matter. W. N. Rudd spoke for the Boston proposition, where about $500 is to be offered as premiums for carnations. J. A. Valentine and Robert Craig also urged the consolidation with the National Flower Show next year.

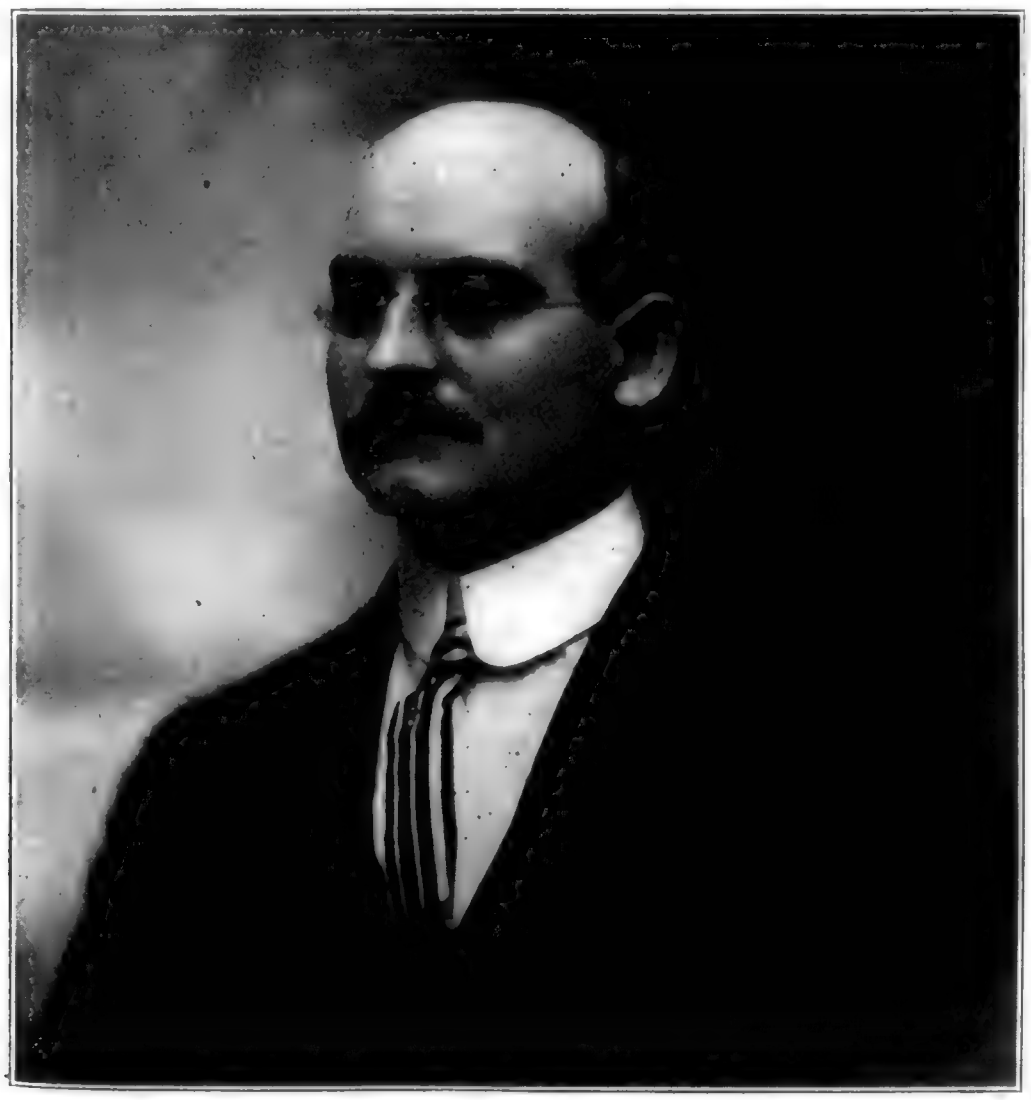
Nominations of officers being in order, H. B. Howard nominated Fred Burki for president, seconded by W. W. Coles.

F. R. Pierson nominated for vice-president S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass., and Nic Zweifel, of Milwaukee, but President Herr ruled that this be passed till after the place of meeting be determined by ballot.



W. J. Vesey nominated A. F. J. Baur to succeed himself as secretary, seconded by F. R. Pierson.

W. W. Coles nominated F. E. Dorner to succeed himself as treasurer.



F. R. Pierson was nominated to succeed Wm. Weber as director.

W. N. Rudd spoke of the importance and arduous character of the work of the judges and moved that the number of judges elected be increased from three to six. The motion prevailed. Mr. Rudd's term expired and four were thus to be elected. Nominations were made as follows: W. W. Coles, W. J. Vesey, J. A. Valentine, Jos. H. Hill, E. A. Stroud, Eugene Dailledouze, W. N. Rudd, F. H. Traendly. Mr. Valentine was permitted to withdraw, but Messrs. Vesey, Rudd and Dailledouze were not allowed to decline.

The awards of the judges were read by Secretary Baur. They appear in full on another page of this issue.

DeForest W. Ludwig, Reception Committee.

August Frishkorn, Reception Committee.

A. W. Smith, Jr., Manager of Exhibition.

W. T. Bell, of Franklin, Pa., presented a paper, "The Carnation; its Uses, Varieties and Culture," which appears in full elsewhere in this issue.

S. A. F. Directors Meet.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the S. A. F. was held at Pittsburg January 26, to take the necessary action for the investment of the permanent fund of the society, which has now reached the respectable sum of approximately $7,500. Certain guaranteed first mortgages are available and a committee consisting of J. A. Valentine and Geo. Asmus was appointed to pass upon the adequacy of the security and consummate the investment.

Jottings.

H. B. Beatty, treasurer of the S. A. F., and Mrs. Beatty, were on hand to welcome their friends.

John Reimels, of Woodhaven, L. I., was taken ill Wednesday afternoon and was removed to a hospital.

Mr. Breitenstein, the Pittsburg retailer, put up an exhibit showing how carnations are or can be used in table work.

National Flower Show.

F. N. Pierson, chairman of the National Flower Show committee of the S. A. F., has stated informally that the guarantee fund for the show to be held in Boston in March, 1911, now has reached $9,925, subscribed by representative firms in the trade, and that the preliminary premium list is about ready for publication. It carries approximately $10,000, in addition to which it is expected a large number of special premiums will be offered.

Thursday Morning Session.

At the opening William Nicholson, F. Burki and R. Witterstaetter, the committee on president's address, made the following recommendations: That a committee of introduction be appointed for each meeting, to greet visiting members of the trade and make them known to the officers and members of the society; that an official membership button be adopted; that every member be appointed a committee of one to increase the membership; that the secretary's salary be increased to $200 per year.

The recommendations were adopted, except that, on motion of John Birnie, the secretary's salary was made $250.

The committee recommended that in future all entries for the exhibition be required to be mailed ten days before the meeting. This brought out a long discussion as to the working details of the show, terminated by the adoption of a motion by W. A. Manda to accept entries on the day of staging, but only on the payment of a penalty of $2 for each late entry.

For the committee on nomenclature, the secretary reported on the registration of new varieties, all of which have been published in the Review, and stated that work is in progress on a complete list of all varieties ever introduced. The judges made a supplementary report, scoring seedling Prince Charming, exhibited by Henry Eichholz, eighty-five points for a preliminary certificate, and making honorable mention of his variety Washington.

The program was changed somewhat, in order to bring up the discussion of joint exhibitions with the Rose Society in advance of the selection of the next meeting place. C. L. Washburn spoke for joint exhibitions, as follows:

Argues for Joint Meetings.

"The question of the advisability of holding a joint convention of the American Carnation Society and the American Rose Society is best considered from a business standpoint. There are now held, the Carnation Society meeting, the Rose Society meeting, the S. A. F. meeting, the various Chrysanthemum Society shows and the various club shows. The aim of these conventions is to do the most good to the greatest number of people in the trade, but by holding so many meetings we are dividing our energies into too many channels, which causes less attention by the trade to each meeting than would be the case if some of these meetings were combined in one. All are good, no doubt, but what is needed is a little more united work.

E. C. Reineman, Chairman Executive Committee.

"The importance of a convention of the combined societies would be such that the growers could not afford to overlook it. Men who in the past have felt that the time taken up in attending so many minor meetings could not well be spared, would be glad to attend this one larger meeting. To those whose business necessitates their attendance at both meetings, the matter of reduced expenses would be an important item. Also, the general reduction of expenses to each society by having the two share the expenses would be quite an item, while the same amount of business would be accomplished.

Aims Are Similar.

"The carnation and rose men have similar objects in view when holding their meetings and we certainly need a larger attendance at these conventions. This can only be obtained by increasing the membership of both societies. In order to increase this membership it is necessary to increase the knowledge regarding our business and products to be obtained by attending these meetings.

"We are in the business as a money-making proposition and any knowledge which increases the earning capacity of our houses increases our profits. The advancement in new varieties, better methods of growing and better means of handling the flowers are all questions being constantly brought up at these conventions, so that a wider scope of investigation and a wider discussion of these questions would be obtained by a joint convention; also thus producing more interest and increasing the good results to be obtained by the members of both societies attending a joint convention.

W. A. Clarke, Exhibition Committee.

John Bader, Exhibition Committee.

"There is such a broad field in this matter of new varieties of plants, new methods of construction and new everything almost pertaining to our business that a joint convention would stimulate a larger exhibition of these new things. No one will question the added importance of an investigation and certificate when backed by the united action of both societies.

A Splendid Exhibition Insured.

"The exhibition of flowers would, of course, be larger in a joint meeting and would be a greater matter of interest to the general public. This is a very important point, as the general public are the flower buyers and it is for them our product is produced. The holding of a convention is a very serious expense and inconvenience to those florists located in the city where the convention is held and a joint meeting would reduce this to one city instead of two.

"The field for united work, it can be seen, is so similar for both associations, and the time for the exhibition of the flowers is best suited for roses as well as for carnations, so that a joint convention would be very desirable for both societies."

T. P. Langhans, Entertainment Committee.

The Only Objection.

Eugene Dailledouze was on the program to argue for a separate carnation meeting, as at present. He said he thoroughly agreed with all Mr. Washburn had said and that the only objection to joining with the Rose Society lies in the fact that March is the month for roses, while late January or early February is the time for the carnation men.

Joseph Hill then presented his paper, "The Calendar of the Carnation." It was one of the most interesting the society has listened to in some time, and is printed in full elsewhere in this issue.

Boston Next.

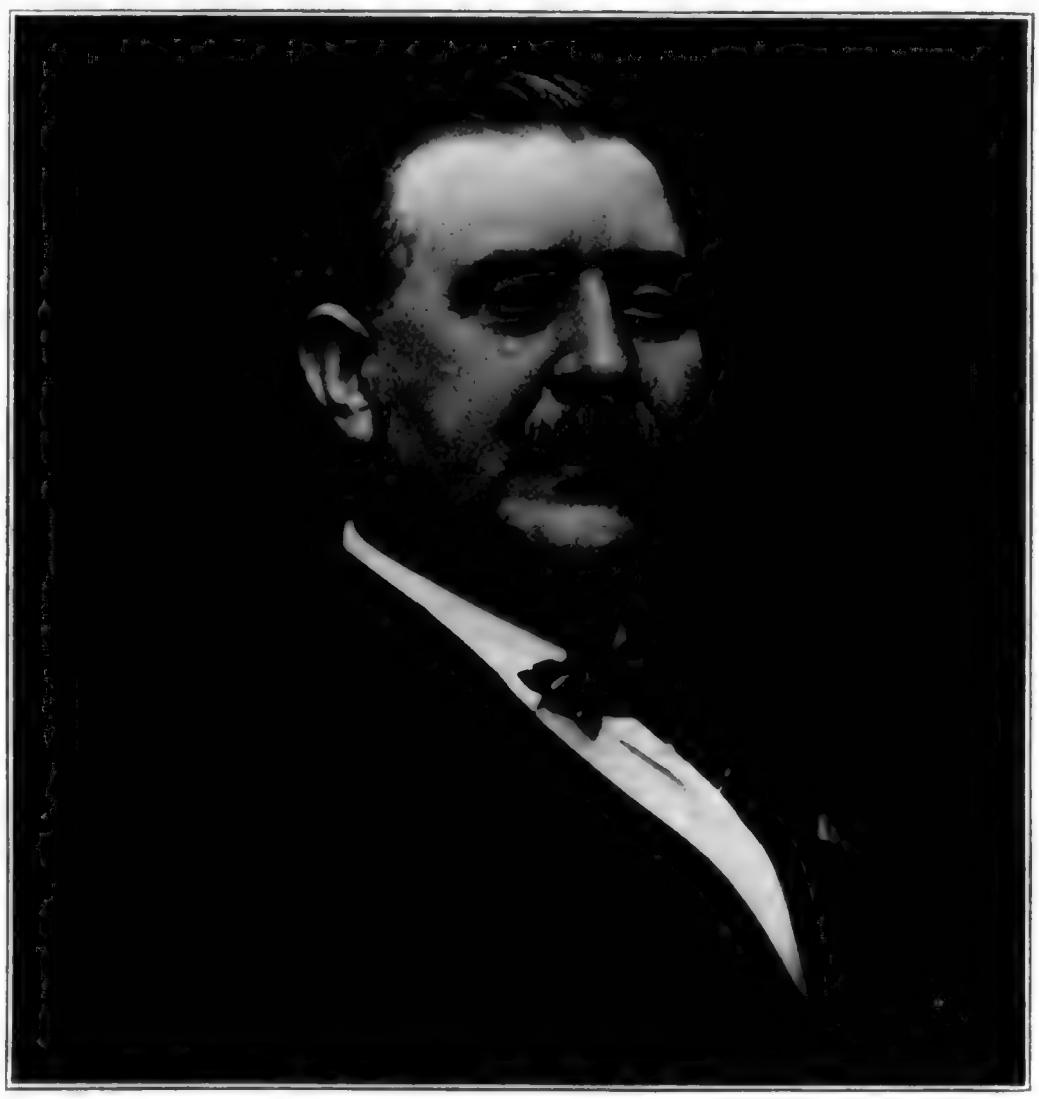
When the selection of the next place of meeting was reached, there was a lively fight between those who wanted the society to join with the National Flower Show at Boston in March of 1911 and those who felt that the best interests of the Carnation Society would be served by a separate exhibition, as usual, at Milwaukee in January. F. R. Pierson, W. A. Manda, M. A. Patten, C. L. Washburn and others spoke for Boston, while Nic Zweifel and F. Burki championed the separate meeting. W. P. Craig, H. B. Dorner and J. A. Peterson were appointed tellers. The vote stood: Boston, fifty-seven; Milwaukee, twenty-five.

Previous nominations for vice-president having been declared out of order, William Nicholson nominated E. Allan Peirce, of Waltham, Mass.

Closing Session.

The judges reported awarding a preliminary certificate to Woodenethe, a large white exhibited by F. E. Whitney, Fishkill, N. Y., which scored ninety points.

F. Burki read a paper on "Summer Culture of Carnations Under Glass." R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens, described their system of growing the plants in frames in summer. Mr. Harvey, of Brandywine Summit, said that, after several years' trial, they will go back to field culture, in preference to the indoor method. W. H. Breitenstein's paper was received and ordered printed.



The president appointed as the new introduction committee, Joseph Hill, R. Witterstaetter, F. Burki, Eugene Dailledouze, M. A. Patten, W. N. Dunlap, J. A. Valentine, S. S. Skidelsky and F. R. Pierson. He appointed W. P. Craig, M. A. Patten and H. B. Dorner a committee on final resolutions.

Election of Officers.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Fred Burki, Gibsonia, Pa.; vice-president, E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; secretary, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; treasurer, Fred E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.; director, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; judges, Eugene Dailledouze, W. N. Rudd, J. H. Hill and E. A. Stroud.

The Banquet.

At the banquet in Fort Pitt hotel, Thursday evening, the set program of talks was as follows: "The Carnation Society," by Albert M. Herr; "The S. A. F.," by J. A. Valentine; "Our Boys," by P. S. Randolph; "The Pittsburg Club," by E. C. Reineman; "The National Flower Show," by F. R. Pierson; "The Carnation," by W. F. Kasting; "The Trade Press," by H. B. Howard; "The Pittsburg Press," by Mr. Burgoyne; "Our Ladies," by W. J. Vesey; "Our Ambitions," by F. E. Dorner; "The Old Boys," by Robert Craig; "The Advantage of Science

Coupled With Practice,'' by L. B. Judson; ''Canada,'' by J. A. Brashear; ''Our Visitors,'' by T. P. Lang.

Retail Delivery Association.

There was a meeting of retail florists at Pittsburg, January 27, at which the Retail Florists' Delivery Association was organized by the adoption of by-laws and the election of officers, as follows: President, J. A. Valentine, Denver; vice-president, W. J. Palmer, Buffalo; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. L. Rock, Kansas City; directors, John Bertermann, Indianapolis; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; A. B. Cartledge, Philadelphia; E. Wienhoeber, Chicago; W. L. Rock, Kansas City, and William F. Gude, Washington.

The by-laws provide for putting into operation the plan worked out by J. A. Valentine along the lines proposed at the Chicago meeting, and published in full in the REVIEW last November.

Visitors.

All the members of the trade in Pittsburg were on hand early and late and were indefatigable in their efforts to make pleasant the stay of the visitors. Among those present from outside of Pittsburg were:

SUMMER CULTURE INDOORS.

[A paper by Fred Burki, of Gibsonia, Pa., read before the American Carnation Society at the Pittsburg convention, January 26 and 27, 1910.]

When I consented to read a paper on my experience in growing carnations under glass, I meant carnations planted under glass in summer instead of in the field, as it is still an open question with most of us which method is the better, and, with your permission, I will confine my notes to this subject.

In the early nineties I set out some plants under glass in the spring, with the object of getting salable flowers in the early fall, as at that time we did not house carnations as early from the field as we do of late years. The variety was Mrs. Fisher, which I at that time grew as my principal white and with which variety I had for some years great success, but only in solid beds; it did not do well for me on raised benches.

Good Flowers When Most Wanted.

I found that stock out of 3-inch pots, planted under glass in spring, gave me good flowers when such were scarce, say, in September, October and November, and bloomed through the season as well as did those planted from the field. They did not make as much surplus grass, but grew more slender, with equally good flowers and longer stems than the field-grown plants produced, and they could be planted closer.

The soil I used at that time was taken from an ordinary piece of garden ground, as I could not procure sod, being located in one of the city suburbs. This piece of ground was manured heavily in the spring with cow manure, plowed in and kept plowed through the summer. Sometimes we manured it a second time and pulverized it with the harrow before taking it into the houses.

Another variety I grew with great success at that time was Hector, a scarlet, which did better with me than any other red at that time and for some years after. The only fault it had was weak stems; I had to give it up when the trade insisted on stiff stems. Hector grew very tall under glass in summer, but bloomed much better that way than when planted from the field.

Building Glass Over the Plants.

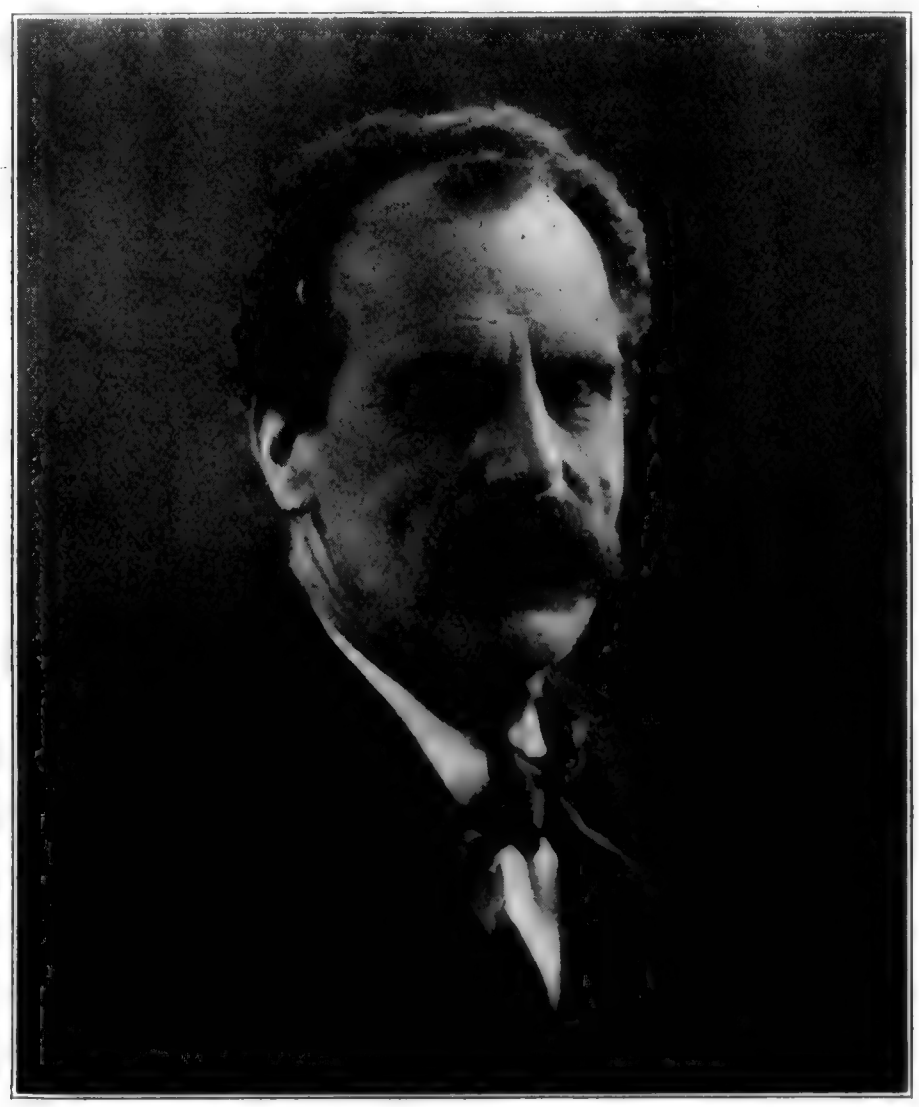
I simply could not make Hector pay when planted from the field, but it did its best when I planted it in beds prepared in spring, cultivated it the same as if under glass, and built a greenhouse over it before fall. I am of the opinion that this way of growing carnations, on beds with no glass over them until fall, would be an ideal way if it were practical, but I find it impossible now where we are located and with the kind of houses we build now.

Some years ago Uncle John Wyland said to me one day about the beginning of June, "I am going to take the glass out of my carnation house, clean it out and plant the young stock in it in place of into the field." I said to him, "You are going to have a big job on hand." About the end of June I met him again, and he said to me, "You cannot believe how quickly we got that glass out and put away; it took us about two days." I said to him, "Well, you will find it a bigger job putting it in again in the fall, and you have now no carnations to sell when I can get good money for them—$2 per hundred." He never did it again, although the carnations were a success.

The Lawson Varieties.

Of late years we aim to plant the Lawson varieties under glass instead of in the field, and in this way we get earlier flowers and longer stems than we can from the field-grown plants. Unless we can house these varieties from the field by the first week in July, they hardly give us a first crop before the holidays, and then the stems are short and the flowers not up to the mark. We propagate them during December and January and get them into 4-inch pots by May. I find, though, that unless planted under glass not later than the first week in June, field-grown plants planted near the end of June or in the first part of July are more satisfactory, as the plants in pots are liable to suffer during June from one cause or another.

But the difficulty in this is, when carnations have a good sale during June, as they do some years, and your plants are in crop, to make up your mind to throw them out and make room for young stock.



The spaces we are able to plant in May are the beds we had in mums the previous fall. Following these we take out a crop of Grand Rapids lettuce, then fill with potted up cuttings of carnations. We prefer them all in pots, as they come from the cutting bench, so that when we plant in the field we have a good ball to them; then the plants will not suffer much if the ground happens to be dry and we cannot get them watered right away.

Then, as soon as the plants are in the field, we get this empty space planted with Lawson and Winsor.

Soil From the Open Field.

The soil we use is sod plowed about four inches deep the previous fall; then, before we bring it in, we plow in a good coat of rotten stable manure, pulverizing it with the harrow. I have found that soil prepared this way, in the open field, is sweeter than when it is put up in heaps, and the labor is less. Besides, the sod piles are apt to sour unless they are turned and cut down, which means much work for the laborers.

I have found that other varieties than the Lawsons also do well when planted under glass in spring; in fact, I rather think nearly all varieties would, if we could only get the houses ready for them without having to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of flowers to do it.

CARNATION CULTURE.

[A paper by W. T. Bell, of Franklin, Pa., read before the American Carnation Society at the Pittsburg convention, January 26 and 27, 1910.]

So many papers have been read and discussed, at the various meetings of this society, that the essayist who can add anything new on the subject of carnations will be almost as great a curiosity as a 6-inch carnation flower, but as it has been found to be a good plan, in our schools, to require the pupils to review the lessons previously studied, so perhaps a general review of the subject that we have met to consider may be of advantage to all present, and especially to those younger members of the society who are modest enough to admit that they do not already know all there is about it.

The carnation, or, to express the name in strictly botanical terms, Dianthus Caryophyllus, is, according to Loudon, a native of southern Europe, and has been found growing naturally in England.

The generic name, dianthus, is compounded of two Greek words, meaning the flower of the gods, or the Deity, which has led certain writers to call it the divine flower, a name that might well be exchanged for one more simple and comprehensive. The specific name, Caryophyllus, has reference to the clove-like fragrance of the flowers, while the common name, carnation, has for its base the Latin word carnis, meaning flesh, in allusion to the pink or flesh color of the flowers in their wild state.

There are many different species in the genus dianthus, including the familiar Sweet William; but the one that most nearly resembles the carnation in appearance is the pink, with its several varieties.

Where it grows naturally, the carnation has single flowers, about one inch in diameter, having but five petals, but variation, selection and cultivation have so changed its character that flowers four inches in diameter are now produced, having a great number of petals.

Evolution of the Carnation.

The ordinary garden carnation is a hardy perennial that blooms but once a year, and the florists' carnation of today is undoubtedly the result of changes that have taken place in its habits through selecting and cultivating the most promising plants produced by natural variation, until now it may be had in bloom during the entire year. In the evolutionary operation, however, it has lost a portion of its hardiness, probably because of the higher temperature to which it has been subjected for generations during the cold season of the year, although this loss could perhaps be regained by reversing the process that brought about the change, and gradually hardening the plant until it could withstand the rigors of our severe winters.

This change from summer-blooming to perpetual-blooming is not confined to the carnation, but has been accomplished in the case of other plants. Chrysanthemums have been grown from seed that was saved from the ordinary seasonal-blooming kinds that have developed into varieties that have been had in flower every month in the year, and the rose is one of the most familiar examples of a plant that has been changed from an annual to a continuous bloomer, through the treatment accorded to it under modern methods of culture.

The carnation flower today, and especially in this country, is the most popular flower produced by the florist, having overtaken and passed the old-time favorite, the rose, in the race for popular favor, and instead of being referred to as the divine flower, it might truthfully be called the people's flower.

Good Reasons for Popularity.

To become really popular, a flower must possess several qualifications, the first of which is beauty, a somewhat indefinable and elusive quality. In addition, it should have a pleasant odor, and be capable of being used in a variety of ways and for various purposes. Its texture should be such that it will remain in fairly good condition for a reasonable length of time, and its successful cultivation should be so simple that it can be grown and sold profitably at such a price that the ordinary flower-user can afford to buy it freely.

All these various requirements are possessed by the carnation, and, in addition, it may be procured at any time during the entire year.

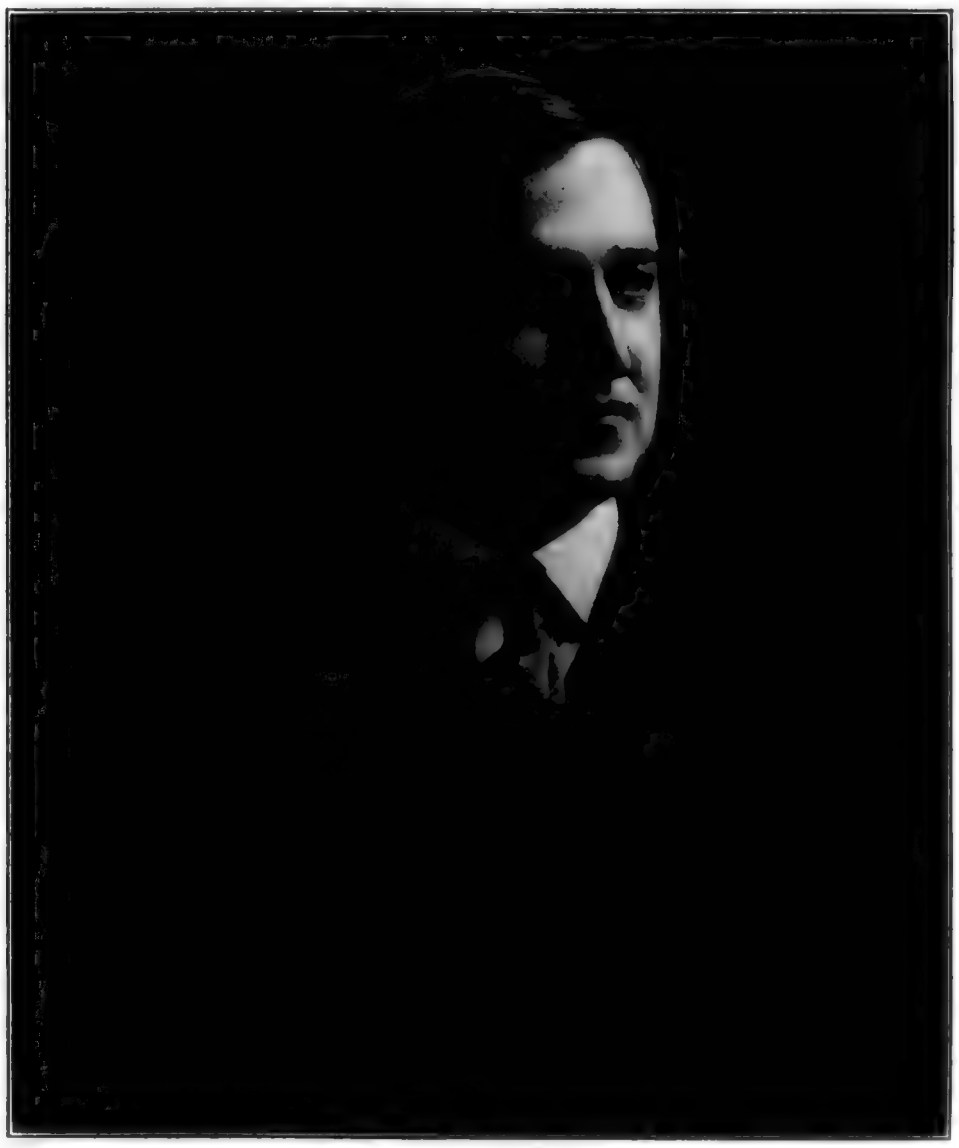
Roses, violets, lilies of the valley, chrysanthemums and many other flowers will continue to have their admirers, and will always be in demand, when in season, but some of them are difficult to produce with profit and most of them are more expensive, bulk for bulk, than are carnations.

Several years ago, at one of the conventions of the S. A. F., an essayist seemed to think that, in a few years, orchids would become as plentiful and popular as roses, but the prediction has not been verified and probably will not be, for two reasons; first, they are more difficult to cultivate and produce, and second, because of this difficulty, their prices will never become popular.

The development and improvement of the carnation have taken place within a comparatively recent time, both as regards the size, color and quality of its flowers and the number of desirable varieties.

Thirty or forty years ago the florist was confined mainly to such kinds as Edwardsii, Degraw, La Purite, Miss Joliffe and Astoria. Buttercup, one of the best of the earlier yellows, although, like most of the later kinds of that color, decidedly bizarre, came later, and was followed by Grace Wilder, Albertini, Mrs. Bradt, and a host of other slowly improving kinds, until the list of aspirants for a place on the carnation stage reached well up into the hundreds.

Daybreak, originated and disseminated by Simmons, of Geneva, O., was one of the best and most profitable carnations of its day, which is now over, and was probably one of the progenitors of the fine variety, Enchantress, and other kinds having the Daybreak shade of pink. William Scott was another easily grown and useful sort, but it, too, is now eclipsed.



Superiority of American Sorts.

While the carnation is not a native of this continent, certain writers speak of the varieties now in cultivation here, collectively, as the American carnation, but a better term would be the American varieties of carnations, as they nearly all originated here.

At the royal show, held at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, in 1908, and practically open to all exhibitors, many vases of British carnations were shown, having, in the main, stiff stems and large flowers, but the flowers were nearly all of coarse texture and the most of them had split calyxes, and decidedly the finest carnations in the great show were those of American origin.

Carnation flowers may be appropriately used on many occasions and in a variety of ways, from a single flower on a coat lapel to the most elaborate floral design or other form of decoration.

They are welcomed in the sick room or the hospital ward, and are suitable for the placements or the centerpiece for the dinner table. Clusters or sprays of the flowers, when arranged with taste and skill, in combination with a sufficient amount of suitable greenery, are much asked for and appreciated for funeral occasions. No flower can be used to better advantage in a pleasing arrange-house carnations as early from the field as we do of late years. The variety was Mrs. Fisher, which I at that time grew as my principal white and with which variety I had for some years great success, but only in solid beds; it did not do well for me on raised benches.

Good Flowers When Most Wanted.

I found that stock out of 3-inch pots, planted under glass in spring, gave me good flowers when such were scarce, say, in September, October and November, and bloomed through the season as well as did those planted from the field. They did not make as much surplus grass, but grew more slender, with equally good flowers and longer stems than the field grown plants produced, and they could be planted closer.

The soil I used at that time was taken from an ordinary piece of garden ground, as I could not procure sod, being located in one of the city suburbs. This piece of ground was manured heavily in the spring with cow manure, plowed in and kept plowed through the summer. Sometimes we manured it a second time and pulverized it with the harrow before taking it into the houses.

While the carnation is not a native of this continent, certain writers speak of the varieties now in cultivation here, collectively, as the American carnation, but a better term would be the American varieties of carnations, as they nearly all originated here.

ment to place beside the door of the house where death has entered, in lieu of the somber crape. Because of their excellent lasting quality, they are one of the best flowers to use for sending a long distance, or when they are required to be kept for a considerable time before being used.

If it were not for being so wasteful, many of the arrangements of carnation flowers would be improved in appearance if carnation buds and foliage were combined with the flowers.

For the uses enumerated, the carnation flowers should be of good quality; and to produce such, the propagation and culture of the plants producing them, and the gathering and care of the flowers after being grown, must be carefully and properly attended to, necessitating unflagging attention on the part of the grower. This is not alone the case with the carnation plants and flowers, but applies as well to all the stock in the florists' domain; a fact which all plantsmen do not seem to appreciate.

If eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, it is no less the price of good plants and flowers, and the difference in the success of different florists may generally be ascribed to the continuous care bestowed on his stock by the successful grower, and the intermittent care and partial neglect, in this respect, of his less successful neighbor.

Propagation—Old Ways and New.

There are different ways of propagating carnations, and the older English authorities seem to have preferred layering, which is necessarily an extremely slow method and is practically unknown in this country.

Another means that they practiced was propagation by pipings, which were practically the same as our cuttings, and the directions for the operation are as follows: "Prepare as many pots as are wanted. Fill them nearly full of compost, and the remaining space with silver sand. Prepare the pipings, by cutting off a stem quite smooth at the third joint; then carefully slit the joint just through, and insert the pipings in the sand."

How would our growers, who propagate carnations by the million, like to be confined to the slow and tedious method just outlined? Undoubtedly their patience and their pots, with some of the other material mentioned, would soon become exhausted.

Judging from the directions concerning many of the horticultural operations described in the English works on gardening, and especially those of an early date, silver sand was a most important substance in the gardener's equipment, and, while it is a very nice and cleanly material to work with, we have proved by long practice that it is not indispensable.

The best materials from which to make carnation cuttings are the shoots springing from the sides of the flowering stems, but taken before they are old enough to have developed the three joints mentioned in the directions concerning pipings, just read. These will make better plants than the tips of terminal stems, such as are produced on young plants, and which are sometimes used.

Cuttings should never be taken from plants showing any signs of disease, such as yellow or spotted foliage, notwithstanding the temptation to do so in the case of varieties that it is desired to increase to the limit.

Only so many cuttings should be taken off at once as can be prepared before they show any symptoms of wilting. They should be handled at a distance from stoves or hot pipes and not in bright sunshine, and it will do no harm to freshen them by a gentle spray of cold water, if it seems necessary.

Benching the Cuttings.

While some growers insert the cuttings in the sand almost in the condition in which they are taken from the plants, it is much better to prepare them first by judicious pruning, as follows: Pull off two or three of the lowest leaves, without removing too much of the substance of the stem of the cutting; then, with a sharp knife, shorten any of the remaining leaves that are long enough to require it, leaving from one to two inches of the base of each leaf.

The cutting bench should have been prepared in advance, with three or four inches of clean, sharp sand, free from loam or any vegetable substance, and should be provided with some means of keeping up a gentle bottom heat.

It is the practice of some of the best propagators, and a good one, too, to renew the cutting bench with fresh sand after each lot of cuttings have been taken out, but it is a laborious operation and is not absolutely necessary. If the sand is stirred and loosened, and thoroughly soaked with boiling water, applied with a watering can having a spray rose on the spout, so as to destroy any fungoid growths in the sand, it may be used for a number of times with safety, as has been proved by actual experiment.

In preparing the bench to receive the cuttings, the sand, which should have been thoroughly watered some time previously, should be firmed by using a clean brick, or something similar, and scored for each row of cuttings with a table knife. If the cuttings have been properly trimmed, the rows should be about two inches apart, and the cuttings placed one-half or three-quarters of an inch apart in the rows. They should be inserted from one-half to one inch deep, depending somewhat on the condition of the sand and the character of the cuttings, and should be firmed by pressure of the finger and thumb on the sand during the operation of setting them, which may soon be learned. As soon as a lot are set, they should be given a good watering with a can such as recommended for scalding the bench, and should never be allowed to get so dry that the sand becomes light-colored and dry to the touch or the cuttings show any signs of wilting, but the watering should be done, if possible, during bright days, and in the morning. While the bench should have all the light it will bear without injury to the cuttings, by making them wilt, it will be necessary to shade it from bright sunlight, at least until the cuttings have become so thoroughly established that sunshine does not harm them.

Potting the Cuttings.

As soon as the cuttings have formed roots half an inch in length, they should be potted in 2-inch pots, using a good quality of potting soil, with little or no fertilizer in it, and firming the plants well in the pots. This course is preferable to planting the cuttings in trays or boxes of soil, a plan followed by many growers.

The plants should now be placed in a rather cool, well lighted house, having about the same temperature as that in which the cuttings were rooted, and one in which top ventilation can be given when needed.

For a short time at first they will require to be shaded from bright sunshine, but the shading should be dispensed with as soon as possible.

One of the most important things requiring attention at this stage of the growth of the plants is the watering. They should never be allowed to get quite dry, and, on the other hand, should never be watered while the soil is wet, as neglect or carelessness in this respect is likely to lay the foundation, or, rather, sow the seeds of future stem-rot. This operation should be in charge of the most experienced and careful person employed in the establishment. If the watering is done with a hose, it should have a nozzle furnished with a spray rose, having a flat, and not a convex surface, perforated with very small holes. To water plants as it should be done is one of the most difficult things to teach a beginner and should never be entrusted to anyone who cannot do it properly. A careful and experienced man knows by looking at plants when they need water, and how much they need.

While probably a majority of plantsmen use an open hose to water with, regulating the amount of the flow with the end of the finger, this is not nearly as good a plan as to use the spray nozzle, as recommended for the newly-potted carnation plants. The flat, perforated surface of the rose concentrates the spray, while a convex surface causes it to be too much scattered, so that it is difficult to apply the water just where it is needed without wetting other plants standing near that may not require irrigation at the time. For general greenhouse use the perforations in the rose should not be very large.

Weeds should not be permitted to grow among the young carnation plants, and fumigation must be attended to regularly, to keep down aphis, while the under side of the foliage should be sprayed with a good force of water, to keep the plants free from red spider. As soon as the stems attain the proper height, say, five inches, they should be stopped, which will induce the formation of side shoots. When the pots are well filled with roots, the plants should be repotted in 3-inch pots, and so on to 4-inch and 5-inch pots, for those that are to be benched from pots.

Late propagated plants that are to be grown outside during the summer may be planted from 2-inch pots, or, better still, from 3-inch, if they have needed repotting before being planted out.

Propagation by cuttings may be carried on from November until April, but January, February and the early part of March will be found the best time for this operation.

Planting in the Field.

The proper time for planting in the field will vary with the latitude and the season, but should be done as early as it can be with safety, so that the plants may become established, and make some growth, before the hot weather of midsummer. If the young plants have been hardened in a coldframe for some time previously, they may be planted outside sooner than if taken directly from the warmer greenhouse.

The soil in the field where the plants are to be grown should be of a loamy nature, and care should be taken to have it well pulverized and free from stones and other obstructions.

If a horse cultivator is to be used, the rows should be two and a half or three feet apart, but if to be cultivated by hand, they will only require to be eighteen inches apart. In either case the plants should be set about a foot apart in the rows.

A half-inch rope should be tightly stretched where the row is to be, and the ground should have a final raking and leveling by drawing a fine-toothed garden rake along the rope, walking backward. Pressing the edge or cutting face of a common garden hoe on the rope, and walking forward with it in that position, will leave a fine mark to plant by, when the rope is shifted, and is better than to try to plant beside a small stretched line.

The plants should be cultivated frequently, and the soil kept in a loose condition; especially should it be stirred at the proper time after a rain. No weeds should be allowed to grow. The stopping of the lengthening stems must be promptly attended to, if shapely, bushy plants are wanted. No flowers or flower buds should be allowed to grow, or at least not until nearly time to transfer the plants to the houses.

During long-continued dry weather a properly arranged system for irrigating by means of perforated pipes may be used to advantage, and as the plants are all of the same nature, and the conditions likely to be uniform, the objections to such a system when used in a planthouse where a variety of plants are grown, requiring varying amounts of water, do not apply.

Housing the Plants.

Planting in the houses may be done from June to October, the earliest plantings being from pot-grown stock. Probably the best time for housing the plants from the field is August and early September.

The beds or benches should be of convenient width to work over, say, not to exceed five feet where there are walks on both sides, and not more than three feet for side benches.

Both low beds and raised benches have their advocates, and good flowers may be grown with either system of cultivation. Ground beds are cheaply made and, if furnished with cement or brick walls, are durable, but should always have provision for sufficient drainage. Raised benches, although more expensive to make and requiring frequent renewal, are more convenient to plant, weed, stake and spray than the low beds are. Each grower should test both plans and decide for himself, after a sufficient trial, which he will adopt. Possibly, as some have already done, he will use both.

While, with proper attention in other respects, carnations may be grown fairly well in soils that vary greatly in quality, still the time and cost required to procure and prepare the best quality of soil for use on the benches or beds are well expended.

Sods and the top soil from an old loamy pasture field, cut three or four inches thick and piled with one-fourth of their bulk of clean cattle manure, a sufficient length of time before using to obtain the proper condition when sliced down and thoroughly mixed, and having a small quantity of air-slaked lime incorporated with them, form an ideal compost.

The bottom and side boards of the raised benches that will come in contact with the soil, should, before filling, be thoroughly coated with whitewash made from freshly-slaked lime and having a small quantity of sulphur added. Five inches of soil, prepared as directed, is sufficient for the raised benches.

In digging the plants in the field, a reasonable amount of soil should be left attached to the roots, if possible, and they should be carried and handled so carefully that this soil will not be shaken from them.

Contrary to what the novice might expect, the best results in transplanting will be obtained if the soil in the field is dry when the plants are dug, rather than if it is wet.

The plants should be transferred to the benches as promptly as possible after digging, so that the roots may not become too dry.

Probably a majority of planters firm the soil around the newly-set plants by pounding it with the closed fist, but as this firming is an important part of the planting operation, a better plan is to use a brick hammer, or something similar, as a tamper for the purpose.

Care should be taken not to set the plants any deeper in the soil on the benches than they were growing in the field.

Treatment in the House.

After a few feet of bench has been planted, the soil and plants should be gently but thoroughly dampened, by using the fine spray rose on the nozzle of the hose. If the sun is shining on the benches, the plants should be lightly sprayed again after the foliage has become dry, and the spraying should be repeated on bright days as often as may be necessary, so as, if possible, to avoid shading the glass.

After the plants have become somewhat established, they should be dusted with air-slaked lime, and, as soon as convenient, they should be furnished with the galvanized wire supports, to be lengthened as needed. These, although more expensive, are neater and better than strings stretched between the rows, a plan in common use.

Carnation houses should be freely ventilated whenever the weather will permit, and fumigation and spraying, for aphis and red spider, must not be neglected. Weeds should not be allowed to grow, and the surface of the soil should be stirred frequently, when in the proper condition, but not so deeply as to injure the roots of the plants.

As soon as the flower buds are of sufficient size to handle, disbudding should be commenced, and continued persistently throughout the season. In disbudding carnations it will be found best to begin at the top of each stem, so that, if by accident the terminal bud is broken off, one of the buds lower down may be left to take its place. On account of differences in habit of growth, certain kinds can be disbudded much more easily than others. Among the kinds that require most time, because of the numerous buds and side shoots, are Beacon, Bassett and Georgia; among those that can be disbudded much more quickly are Harvard, Victory and White Perfection.

After the soil has become filled with roots, the application of additional fertilizing material may be made—either pulverized cattle or sheep manure, to be stirred into the soil, or liquid fertilizer, for the making of which there is nothing better than cattle manure. This must be applied in combination with good judgment, and neither too strong nor too frequently.

The most important thing connected with the cultivation of carnations is the watering, and the most common failure in this respect is in allowing the soil to become too dry, even to the extent of causing the plants to droop and wilt. The soil on the carnation benches should always be slightly moist, but should never be watered when saturated.

Immunity From Disease.

But little need be said now concerning the filthy carnation rust, that caused so much trouble and dread a few years since, nor indeed of the various other fungoid diseases to which the plant is subject, because, if intelligent care and attention are given to the propagation and culture of the plants, but little trouble will be experienced from any of these diseases, and this applies as well to the case of other florists' plants.

Those who complain so much of disease in their stock of forcing lilies, and lay the blame on the men who grow the bulbs, if they would give more care to the plants, and especially in the matters of temperature and moisture, the "two tures," as they have been called, would find their stock practically free from disease.

In regard to the style and size of planthouses for the proper cultivation of carnations, ideas differ and will continue to do so, although at present the tendency seems to be in favor of longer and wider houses. However, some of the finest carnation flowers that have ever been produced were grown in narrow houses—so narrow, indeed, that in some cases they were wide enough for but one narrow bench—but the man who grew them was careful not to allow the ventilating sash to remain unopened during the whole of a bright, sunny day, nor to neglect the watering until the plants hung their heads from thirst. While good-sized houses, well lighted and conveniently arranged, are highly desirable, success does not depend so much on the style of house as on the style of men in charge of it. Houses 300 feet in length should be long enough for any reasonable man, and equal-span houses, running north and south, do very well for growing carnations in.

The number of varieties that are grown with profit at the present time is so great, and is being so persistently added to, that it seems unnecessary to specify them, or to say which are the most profitable. The beginner in the business will do best to consult some successful grower on this point. Then, after having had some experience, he can add to his stock, for the purpose of testing, some of the most promising of the new introductions, and retain those that prove to be desirable.

Production of New Varieties.

Notwithstanding the many fine sorts that are now cultivated, better kinds than are now in existence will be warmly welcomed when they appear, as they undoubtedly will, and this prospect opens a new field to the thoughtful carnation grower, the production of new varieties. He may be fortunate enough to have a sport or variation from an existing kind originate on his premises, which is a short cut to the point aimed at, for which he will deserve no particular credit, but from which, if it is a decided improvement in color, size or habit over those now grown, he may derive a considerable profit.

The most promising way to proceed, as well as the most interesting, is to resort to cross fertilization, usually called hybridizing, which term is in this instance incorrect, as a hybrid is the result of a cross between different species of the same genus, while the various kinds of carnations, as we grow them, are simply different varieties of the same species.

For his experiments in cross breeding, he will select parent kinds that seem to combine the qualities he desires in the looked-for progeny, and after growing and testing a few thousand seedlings, he may be rewarded by the production of a prodigy, which may, indeed, result from the very first pod of seed produced. When he has bestowed on this a plain, short name, somewhat descriptive, if possible, and sold the stock, or a portion of it, for $10,000, be the same more or less, he will probably feel repaid for the time and trouble expended on its production, and if his efforts do not result so profitably, he will at least be repaid in a measure by the interesting experience he has had.

The intelligent, observant and careful grower of carnations will soon be able to distinguish the different varieties he cultivates from each other by inspection, guided by differences in appearance and habit that cannot be described in words. And, possessing this faculty, if mixtures occur in his stock, as they may, he will be able to identify and name the interlopers. He will find the work, in its variety, both healthful and interesting, and, if located within reach of a good market, profitable as well.

He may, also, as a result of experiments, discovef some improved methods in the culture and care of his stock, that will be of general interest and benefit, and having done so, he will of course report the same to the American Carnation Society.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bouvardias.

The bouvardia plants will now have finished flowering, and if cuttings have not yet been taken it is time to start some. If the plants of the large, white, sweet-scented variety, B. Humboldtii, are rested a little, pruned back and then placed in moist heat, they will soon give an abundance of nice soft cuttings, which root as freely as chrysanthemums in a warm cutting bench. The other varieties of bouvardias do not break so freely as Humboldtii and we find root cuttings make much more satisfactory plants than soft shoots. Cut the thicker roots in pieces half an inch long and place these in a propagating bench where a good bottom heat, 75 to 80 degrees, is maintained. Cover with sand. Soak well with water every day and few will fail to grow.

Bouvardias are not grown as they were twenty-five years ago. The scarlet varieties are, however, good sellers at Christmas, while the more persistent blooming Humboldtii may be had in flower from August to Christmas. It is one of the best selling choice flowers of the day, being superb in either design or bouquet work.

Fancy Caladiums.

If your fancy caladiums have been wintered in a warm, dry shed or room, the tubers should not have decayed, as so often proves to be the case when they are shaken out prior to starting. Too cold resting quarters and an excess of moisture will speedily raise havoc with the tubers. Provided they are plump and sound, now is a suitable time to start them. Do not pot at once, but chop up some sphagnum moss and mix with sand. Rest the tubers on this, over heating pipes, either in a propagating case or in a box placed where it will have a good bottom heat. Damp slightly until the roots and growths appear. Pot before the roots run and become entangled. Those having fancy caladiums and not possessed of a warm, steamy house had better wait a few weeks before starting their tubers.

Asparagus Sprengeri.

Take advantage of any lull in other duties to look over the benches of Asparagus Sprengeri. Cut away all unsalable shoots and give the plants a top-dressing of decayed barnyard manure or fine bone, scratching over the surface after applying. Avoid the temptation to cut away all shoots on any of the plants. The inevitable result is a decided weakening of them, and if you will take note of the aftergrowth on any cut down altogether and those on which one or two shoots have been retained, you will soon be convinced of the correctness of this.

Herbaceous Calceolarias.

The flower shoots on herbaceous calceolarias are starting to come up now and the final potting should be delayed no longer. Let the soil at the last shift be of a porous nature. The plants like an abundant water supply, but like it to pass away quickly. Fibrous loam, dry cow manure, a little leaf-mold, some broken charcoal and pieces of rough peat chopped up make an ideal compost. Press it firmly in the pots. Continue to grow the plants as cool as possible; 40 degrees at night is better than 50 degrees for them, and in the lower temperature there is always less danger of aphis attacks than when grown warmer.

Bedding Geraniums.

Continue to take off any tops from strong geranium plants and insert them singly in 2-inch pots of sandy loam. These can still be grown into nice, salable stock by Memorial day. The earlier potted stock takes on an accelerated rate of growth with the increasing solar heat and should be looked over every few days and given a fresh stand. Remove any dead and decaying foliage and do not use the hose over the foliage any more than is absolutely necessary. Do not allow any of the little plants to become cramped in the pots before giving them a shift. One inch at a time is sufficient, from 2-inch to 3-inch and 3-inch to 4-inch pots. Get in a good batch of that useful little edging variety, Mme. Salleroi. The cuttings root easily and they will make nice, bushy little stock before spring sales start.

Cannas.

It is yet too early to start any of the cannas, but as it is possible some moisture may reach the clumps, look them over carefully. Remove any portions showing signs of mold or decay, and if they have been stored under a bench it will be well to place them in flats in a cellar or shed where a temperature of 45 degrees is maintained. As there are many who do not grow their own cannas, the present is an opportune time to purchase a stock of dry roots of any varieties wanted. A few excellent sorts, which never fail to please, are: Alphonse Bouvier, splendid crimson, tall; Florence Vaughan, golden yellow, spotted red; Jean Tissot, bright vermilion; Mme. Crozy, bright scarlet, still one of the best; Duke of Marlborough, deep crimson; Richard Wallace, splendid canary yellow; Buttercup, pure yellow; Souvenir D'Antoine Crozy, crimson scarlet, edged golden yellow; Egandale, bronze foliage, currant red flowers; Tarrytown, a magnificent scarlet; Beaute Poitevine, crimson, shaded scarlet.

In the vigorous Italian or orchid-flowering section, King Humbert, with its bronzy foliage and bright orange scarlet flowers, is still the best. Pennsylvania and Italia are each good. These are useful for back rows or centers of beds. The new canna, Black Beauty, has distinct and richly colored foliage, although the flowers lack size.

Chrysanthemums.

While it is still much too early for the commercial grower to start propagating chrysanthemum stock to plant in the benches, it is well to take in hand varieties which it is desired to grow in quantity another season, and all possible cuttings of these should be placed in the sand at once. These will each give a cutting before they are potted long, and if you are desirous of working up all possible stock of any varieties, plant them out in flats containing four to five inches of soil, or, better still, in a piece of shallow bench, and they will give you a big crop of succulent cuttings by the end of April or during May, which is quite early enough for inserting cuttings, unless fancy blooms are desired.

Double Feverfews.

Any planting of double feverfews for flowering at Memorial day should be done without delay. It is an easily grown and comparatively commonplace flower, but at the end of May flowers of about any variety will sell, and for quantity there are few plants which will surpass the old feverfew. Its strong, somewhat disagreeable odor is objectionable to many, but where an easily and cheaply grown white flower is wanted it is still one of the most useful for bouquet work.

Potting Fine Foliage Plants.

Many of the crotons, dracænas and other colored-leaved plants will be needing a shift, and, as there is now time to attend to this work, it is well to do it before the busy season arrives. Avoid big shifts. Pick away some of the old soil from the top of the pots, scratch the sides of the balls with a sharp-pointed stick where the roots are much matted, take out the old drainage and carefully loosen the roots entangled in it. A compost of turfy loam, with some leaf-mold and sand added, is suitable. Only a small quantity of manure should be used, and it should be old and well dried and pulverized. See that the soil is securely packed around the sides of all the pots. Practically all the plants in this section require firm potting.

Jerusalem Cherries.

Select a few of the finest berries of Jerusalem cherries. They contain a large quantity of seeds each. Sow in a flat and pot off singly when of sufficient size. Plant outdoors a foot apart, early in May. Do not pinch at all, as sometimes advised, and if your soil is generous, as it should be, you will have splendid bushes which will fill 6-inch pots, vastly superior in every way to the sprawly, ill-shaped plants raised from cuttings. It is surprising how any growers will still propagate these from cuttings, when so much larger, more vigorous, better shaped and more heavily berried stock is to be had from seed.

CALENDAR OF THE CARNATION.

[A paper by Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., read before the American Carnation Society at the Pittsburg convention, January 26 and 27, 1910.]

It seems a trifle ludicrous for a person as young and as inexperienced in carnation culture as myself to stand before a body of representative men such as are gathered here today, and attempt to inform them as to the best way to cultivate carnations throughout the year. Many a member of this society was successfully growing carnations before I was born; others, comparatively young men, are already acknowledged authorities on the divine flower; and there are others here present who might, if they so desired, retire on their well-earned laurels and enjoy for the rest of their lives their well-filled coffers, the result of hard work, close application and an unceasing attention to the demands of their chosen flower. In some portions of my discourse will readily be recognized the teachings of such men as William Nicholson and the Dailledouze Bros., to all of whom I am deeply indebted for kindly interest and instruction and unfailing response to any inquiry propounded. Other portions of this paper are records of my own observations and experiences, many of the lessons being quite expensive, as every grower has at times cause to confess as he sums up his columns of success and failure.

First Steps.

The middle of November witnesses the first steps looking toward the production of the millions of carnation plants required for the annual planting in this and other countries. At this time the grower puts into the sand those varieties which fail to make good plants from later struck cuttings, and also those required by those of his customers who insist on "late December or early January delivery." While large numbers are taken in November and December, the bulk of the propagating is done considerably after the holidays, and often quite up to the first part of May. It is generally conceded that cuttings taken during January, February and March will give the best results to the average grower, though most of us have seen grand blooms produced in quantity from good April cuttings.

Too much importance cannot attach to the careful selection of cuttings, which must be strong and healthy and from clean and vigorous plants. The old axiom quoted in Mr. Ward's book, that "like begets like," must never be lost sight of in this part of our program.

In the Sand.

The cutting bench should have a brick or tile bottom, filled with three to four inches of absolutely clean sand, and so constructed that a bottom temperature of 60 degrees can be maintained. No drafts should be allowed to strike the cuttings, and they should also be protected from the direct rays of the sun by a perfectly clean and light-weight curtain of muslin.

The cuttings should receive a thorough watering when put into the sand, and the detrimental habit of using the hose whenever they show signs of flagging should be avoided, as this wilting invariably shows that overhead conditions are wrong, and these must be corrected rather than that water should be added to the already saturated sand. The less the amount of water used, if the cuttings are still kept fresh and plump, the better will be the root formation, and it requires a nice discrimination to properly adjust this matter.

Varieties differ greatly in the fiber of the first roots, the Enchantress family being notable for producing good, tenacious roots quickly; while Afterglow, the sturdiest, toughest stemmed variety in existence, must be handled with great care to prevent the loss of roots when taking from the sand, and must be allowed a longer time to mature.

Dibbled or Potted?

Then arises the question: Shall the cutting be dibbled into the soil, or potted? The former procedure is the easiest and the quickest, but I feel sure that the extra work of potting and repotting is doubly repaid.

The young carnation that is planted in the field or in the flowering bench from a pot, with its firm ball of earth, inwrapped with a network of roots, will show no ill effect from the shift and will start right off into growth without a day's hesitation, while the lifted plant, in handling and resetting, loses most of the soil from around the roots, and receives a severe check from loss of moisture from its tissues. Especially is this the case if not revived by frequent showers soon after planting. Another strong point in favor of the young pot-grown carnation is exemplified when the plant is lifted from the field either for shipping or for immediate benching; the small pot ball of the springtime will still be found intact, greatly protecting the roots from serious injury. One might be led to suspect that the speaker was interested in the pottery business, for if all the carnation men decide to pot all their cuttings before planting, it means millions of pots, but such is not the case; nevertheless, if any of the pot men present want to "fix it" with the speaker, he will be glad to meet them after we adjourn.

We endeavor to get our young stock up into 3-inch pots before planting out, but often in the spring rush some lots have to remain in 2½-inch pots and grow on nicely, provided they have not become badly potbound.

In the Field.

When the first warm days come on, about mid-April, the inclination is to rush the stock out into the field, but I feel sure that it is a serious mistake to do so. In the house it has grown up in a temperature of from 45 to 50 degrees, and with moisture judiciously supplied, so that it cannot but suffer and be seriously checked when subjected often to cold, severe frosts, and, worst of all, to wet weather and a falling thermometer.

In an ordinary season, if the planting is fully finished by the first part of June, good, big, healthy stock is assured, providing your soil has been properly prepared and possesses full quantities of plant food.

We have come to the conclusion that cross-checking the plants in the field, so as to cultivate them both ways with a hand cultivator, is not so good as to give them more room between the rows and draw the plants closer together in the rows. By spacing the rows twenty-eight to thirty inches, a horse and spiked-tooth cultivator can be used, greatly lessening the hand labor, besides loosening the soil to a greater depth. The inclination of the hand cultivator is upward rather than downward, thus failing of the intent to a certain degree.

About July 1 we begin to condemn the benches that are not producing a paying quantity of flowers, emptying the worn-out soil, and making them ready for our next year's hopes.

It is now a recognized fact that the returns from carnations cut in June and July come nearer being "real velvet" than those cut at any other time in the year, providing the plants have had the proper care and have not been neglected during the late spring rush.

Wanted—A Soil Carrier.

If there is any time in the year when the greenhouse laborer approaches mutiny, it is when the task of wheeling out and wheeling in presents itself. If, at this particular period of carnation culture, the lady who strolls through the houses in the winter, remarking on the delights of "cultivating the fragrant blossoms," comes about once more, she certainly finds herself rudely disillusioned, for it is as hard, hot and disagreeable as working in a quarry or in the molding room of an iron mill. The man who perfects a practical mechanical soil carrier, not only has a fortune assured, but the added blessing of every man relieved of this arduous and exhausting work.

A word as to soil: The old prescription, "Three parts of soil to one of well-rotted manure, together with a generous sprinkling of bone, chopped fine and put on the benches," is sure to be superseded by more modern methods of soil preparation. There are a number of eminently successful firms in this country that take as long as five years in the preparation of their soil for indoor culture.

The one vital principle to be observed is to have the manure and other fertilizers so thoroughly assimilated by the soil, by means of leguminous crops and clovers, that the food is immediately available to the plant.

Back to the House.

So much has been written concerning the careful lifting and quick resetting of the plants from the field, that I pass this item of culture, but wish to emphasize the necessity of the use of the Bordeaux mixture promptly on the establishment of the plants. Generously applied, and given once thereafter every three or four weeks, it not only acts as a preventive of spot, rust and other minor diseases, but of stem-rot as well.

By beginning in August with a weekly spray of Nicoticide and continuing throughout the year, we keep down aphis and also rid our plants of thrips. Red spider is controlled by an occasional application of salt water, together with syringing under high pressure on bright days.

The antiquated proceeding of mulching heavily in late summer or autumn has given way to light top-dressings, through which the surface of the soil is always pliable and open to the free air, thus preventing any tendency toward souring.

Lime, wood ashes, sheep manure and pulverized cattle manure, always applied sparingly, constitute the menu for our plants after they are "up and doing."

Plenty of fresh air, whenever it is possible to admit it, insures a healthy, free-growing plant.

Not until October and November do the plants throw character blooms, but if by January 1 each plant does not show several blooms cut, something is decidedly wrong, either with the variety or with the culture given.

In regard to new varieties: We need them and they are interesting, and we must not forget that every variety that we grow was once an untried novelty; but it behooves every general grower to ascertain, as far as possible, the exact value of a new one before displacing an old one to make room for it in quantity. This national meeting is of inestimable value to carnation growers, in that it shows just how well the standard varieties are holding their early vitality and position, and just what new sorts are surpassing their seniors in brilliance of color, perfection of form and in size. Only the finest and most productive sorts can in this day and time pay for standing room in the modern, up-to-date greenhouse.

I thank you for your attention.

THE PEOPLE'S FLOWER.

[A paper by H. W. Breitenstein, of Pittsburg, Pa., read before the American Carnation Society at the Pittsburg convention, January 26 and 27, 1910.]

Flowers are not more a luxury in modern life than are good clothes, comfortable homes and the many things in daily use that place living above an existence.

There is probably no normal human animal without an inherent tone of the beautiful, and this quality finds no commoner expression than in a fondness for flowers. The indulgence in this expression, it must be conceded, is primarily a matter of cost. He of limited means—and he is legion—must have value received, whether it be in color, for cheer in dull environment, or in fragrance, to stimulate the senses, being reminiscent of a happy yesterday or mayhap leading to anticipations of the morrow, and the influence is only for good.

Nevertheless, it must not be a "flower for a day." The carnation has been the people's flower. Its beauty and fragrance appeal to the senses, and its cost places it within the means of all having more than enough for the common necessities of life. Then there is also its hardiness, giving prolonged pleasures.

Is It Losing Its Popularity?

Mark well the assertion, "It has been the people's flower." Perhaps it still is, and maybe shall so remain; that, it seems, is "up to you."

From observation, it seems to lose in popularity. Why? Certainly not because it is less beautiful. What is the answer? Is it not because it becomes more and more ephemeral each year as it loses its hardihood, as well as its fragrance, and gains nothing in beauty?

Admitting that it grows larger, size alone is not beauty, and bulk at the sacrifice of natural charms does not hold the affection of the people. Might it not be well to consider what qualities are most essential to the pleasures of the consumer, without which all else would be in vain?

Color we have, and, from a decorative point of view, no flower offers more. If given the proper treatment, one can obtain from the most gorgeous to the softest tones; but now is perhaps the best time to make the one exception: We need yellow, now come to its own in popularity, and deservedly so, as no color diffuses more warmth, and nature uses it profusely.

The Need of Naturalness.

One essential feature to a more general use of the flower is naturalness.

One cannot obtain a very artistic arrangement without more natural environment; hence the obvious need of carnation foliage, with which the flower, for a table decoration (perhaps its greatest use other than for memorial purposes), would be incalculably enhanced. It would also be more effective for personal adornment and for favors. A full bouquet, with their warmth of color relieved by a touch of foliage, makes an adornment any lady would be pleased to accept and proud to wear.

Simplicity is the keynote of art. Be it in music, painting, sculpture, architecture or any other branch, its highest expression is faithfulness to Nature as she reveals herself.

Where are the monster chrysanthemums that were a fad some years since? They are replaced by the smaller and more natural ones, having more uses.

What rose has won favor more than the semi-single, fragrant, hardy ones? The American Beauty is a notable exception, not for the beauty of its color so much as for fragrance, and especially endurance.

A DOG SHOW WINDOW.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from the photograph of the dog show week decoration in the window of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo. The lady was borrowed from an adjoining dry goods store; the dog was made on a wire frame, and entirely of violets. The other features of the decoration were changed daily.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Trade is inclined to sag a little now. With warmer weather, flowers are much more abundant, except in the case of roses, which are in moderate supply, most of the houses being off crop at present. Of Beauty, Killarney and Richmond there is no overplus; in fact, all roses, even the short-stemmed ones, are selling well. Carnations hang fire somewhat and are in heavier supply. Prices have, however, held up well so far. Violets are down in price, the bulk going now at 50 cents per hundred, with fancies at 75 cents. Sweet peas are improving and a good demand exists for them. Easter lilies are rather scarce and such as come in are easily disposed of. The same holds true of callas.

Cattleyas are now more abundant and softening somewhat in price. There has been an extra strong call for these during the present winter. Marguerites, both yellow and white, sell readily; so, also, do freesias, if of good quality. The variety Purity now holds the premier position in this market. Pansies, wallflowers, English primroses and sweet-scented yellow jonquils are more plentiful, and quite a few calendulas and bachelor's buttons are seen. Dutch bulbous stock is more abundant and lower in price. Golden Spur, in narcissi, and La Reine, among tulips, continue leaders. There is a particularly good call for asparagus and other greenhouse greenery, also for boxwood, laurel and other evergreens.

Various Notes.

The following awards were made at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, January 18: Carnation Admiration from S. J. Reuter & Son, honorable mention; Carnation Sangamo, same exhibitors, received a vote of thanks; an excellent vase of Shasta came from Patten & Co. and was awarded a report of merit; Littlefield & Wyman, for a fine white seedling, received honorable mention, and they also had a fine vase of White Perfection. H. A. Stevens showed a vase of mixed carnations, also freesias. Daniel Whyte had excellent pans of Freesia Purity. Eber Holmes showed six vases of roses. From Duncan Finlayson came well grown plants of Cypripedium Marion Lascelle; insignes Chantinii, Sanderæ, Harefield Hall and Coulsonianum; Leeanum Clinkaberryanum and Lælia anceps alba, the two latter receiving cultural reports of merit.

The committees for the annual club banquet at Horticultural hall, January 27, are: Reception committee, J. P. A. Guerineau, chairman; P. J. Tailey, James Wheeler, G. W. Butterworth, Thomas Pegler and D. Finlayson; committee of arrangements, William Downs, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Robert Cameron, Peter Fisher and Peter M. Miller; floor director, Peter M. Miller; assistant floor director, Joshua Lawson; aids, J. L. Miller, K. Finlayson, Edward Rose and Frank Murray. Hutchins' orchestra furnishes the dance music and Miss Pettigrew is on the program for several solos. The caterer is D. M. Shoosham, and the toastmaster W. J. Stewart.

At the Park Street Market January 22 a successful Aphine demonstration was held. There seemed to be a difficulty in securing an adequate collection of injurious plant pests, growers in this section evidently preferring to keep these in the background. M. C. Ebel, for the company, showed to the large number of growers, both private and commercial, who were in attendance that Aphine did all that was claimed for it. Mealy bug, various scales, aphis, etc., were severally treated with most satisfactory results. As a result of the demonstration, there will undoubtedly be a big boom in the sale of the new insecticide in and around the Hub.

At Horticultural hall, January 22, William Harvey, gardener to J. R. Leeson, showed some large and well grown specimen plants of Cypripedium Sallieri Hyeanum, Calanthe Veitchii, Cymbidium giganteum, Cypripedium Leeanum and Angræcum eburneum, which received a cultural certificate of merit and gratuity.

John W. Duncan, for a number of years assistant superintendent of the Boston park system and actively identified with all the horticultural interests of Boston and vicinity, leaves March 1 to accept a park superintendency in a large and rapidly growing western city. Mr. Duncan will be much missed in Boston. He was recently elected president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, having previously filled other important offices. He is also a member of the vegetable committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and ex-president of the American Park Superintendents' Association.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, was one of our visitors last week, with plants of his fine new begonia, Gloire de Cincinnati, which has jumped at once into public favor. C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was also a recent visitor to many of the local growers, lecturing also before the North Shore Horticultural Society on "Chrysanthemums," January 21. Other visitors included T. Mellstrom, St. Albans, England; Daniel Hay, Waverly, Pa., and M. B. Faxon, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The local delegation to the Pittsburg carnation convention was much smaller than usual. Among those leaving January 24 were M. A. Patten, William Nicholson, William Sim, E. A. Peirce and L. J. Reuter.

William Sim will commence cutting sweet peas next week, of which he has an immense crop coming in. His violets are doing superbly. Large quantities of tomatoes are being raised to follow the violets.

At Horticultural hall, January 22, A. D. Taylor, of Ithaca, N. Y., delivered an entertaining stereopticon lecture on "Continental Types of Landscape Gardening." Those from Italy and France were chiefly referred to, a few in Austria and Switzerland also being illustrated.

Carnation night at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will occur February 15. S. J. Goddard will open the discussion. Quite a number of novelties are already promised and growers at a distance, if unable to attend, are invited to forward flowers, express paid, to Horticultural hall, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, where they will be well cared for.

Thomas Pegler keeps a fine vase of Carnation Bon Ami, George E. Buxton's new white bread-and-butter variety, at Park Street Market, and it attracts lots of favorable attention.

White Perfection, Viola Sinclair and the various Enchantresses from Littlefield & Wyman are among the best coming into the market at present. The firm has also a promising white seedling.

President Weld has appointed Robert Cameron, J. A. Pettigrew and W. N. Craig a committee to represent the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in connection with the coming national flower show in 1911.

William A. Hastings is handling Enchantress carnations from Johnson & Neilson, Framingham, as fine as we have ever seen. These are grown in solid beds and have remarkable stems.

William H. Elliott's son is ill with appendicitis, necessitating an operation January 27. We hope for his speedy convalescence.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, is bringing in some good Cattleya Trianæ at present.

We are pleased to see Thomas J. Gray around again, after some days' confinement to the house. His firm is doing a fine trade in cold storage valley this season, having quadrupled the orders of a year ago.

Philip L. Carbone's flower store on Boylston street is always well worthy of inspection. Just now it has a spring-like appearance, with branches of prunus and other forced shrubs.

W. W. Rawson & Co. are experiencing an extra heavy call for dahlia tubers, and seed mail orders are arriving in much greater volume than a year ago.

W. N. CRAIG.

THE CORPORATION TAX.

If there is any commendable feature of the new national tax on the incomes of corporations, it has not yet been pointed out to the REVIEW. The law is especially unfair to those corporations engaged in the horticultural trades, for all of these are small, their affairs of no public concern, and practically partnerships—but neither partners nor individuals are subject to the tax. It is not so much the money involved in the tax as it is the annoyance of the multiplication of taxation, the bother of studying out the involved meanings of the law, regulations and blanks, the possibility of making public one's business secrets and the penalty which might attach to a statement which contained errors.

Here is one of the questions raised by the law, submitted to the REVIEW by the treasurer of one Illinois corporation operating 125,000 feet of glass:

"On the blank forms sent out by the internal revenue collector for statements of corporations as to their net income, there is an item for deduction, headed: 'Depreciation from January 1 to December 31.' In your estimation, what would be a fair percentage to figure on greenhouse property? I would be interested to hear the opinions of my brother florists on this point. For our own protection, it seems that we ought all to charge off about the same percentage, or some of us may get called on the carpet to explain."

The REVIEW will be glad to publish replies.

MISCELLANEOUS STOCK.

Enclosed you will find a leaf of azalea, Camellia Japonica and jasmine. From these can you give any reasons for their dying off, as you see they do? I find in the soil of the flower pots a worm. It is about two or three inches long, and is quite thin. It is of a light reddish color. Is it harmful to the plants? If so, could you suggest some remedy? I also find that all the begonias I have die off just like the leaves I send. Can you also tell me, if I were to send for flowers in the winter time, whether they would get here without freezing? I am located in North Dakota. L. C. A.

Without knowing more of your conditions and cultural methods, it is difficult to answer your queries, except somewhat vaguely. Dryness at the root, too much water, poor drainage, too much or too little heat, lack of ventilation and other causes are any one of them sufficient to produce the troubles you refer to. The plants named, if carefully watered, ventilated on all possible occasions and treated with a reasonable amount of care, should not drop their leaves as yours are doing.

The presence of a few earthworms in the pots should not suffice to cause a general falling off of the foliage. They will choke the drainage and cause sour root conditions, but can easily be destroyed by watering with lime water. Slake a piece of stone lime, draw off the clear liquid and apply to the pots which are in a wormy state.

Cut flowers are sent daily long distances, often 1,000 miles, and frozen shipments are rather rare. If you purchase from any one of the many firms advertising in the REVIEW, they will pack them so that they will arrive in good condition, even in North Dakota.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg, Pa.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

Results bring advertising.
THE REVIEW brings results.

THE shortage of roses is general throughout the west.

IT is getting to be always a feast or a famine in most of the big cut flower markets.

THE fourth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Champaign-Urbana, February 15 and 16. C. E. Gullett, of Lincoln, president of the association, states that complete programs will be ready to mail to the florists of the state in a few days.

THE CARNATION LASS.

The little lady with the barrow-load of carnations on the front cover of this issue of the REVIEW is Alma Lorch, daughter of A. T. Lorch. The picture was supplied by George F. Hofmeister. Mr. Lorch and Mr. Hofmeister are the members of the firm of A. T. Lorch & Co., carnation growers at Allison Park, Pa., where many visiting growers received a hospitable welcome this week.

OBITUARY.

Joseph A. Dirwanger.

Joseph Anton Dirwanger, who was at one time among the leading florists of Portland, Me., but who had been laid aside by illness for a number of years, died January 14, at his home, 145 High street, Portland, from a complication of disorders which had sorely afflicted him for a long time.

Mr. Dirwanger was born in Bavaria, Germany, eighty-three years ago and learned the trade of a florist in the royal gardens of the king at Bavaria, then a separate country. He came to America in 1851 and was first employed as private gardener by John M. Wood, of Portland. On closing this engagement, Mr. Dirwanger went into business for himself, with greenhouses in the rear of the old Dow mansion at 717 Congress street. He was located there for a long time, nearly forty years in all, and was highly successful. Of late years, since age and infirmity grew upon him, he had withdrawn from business entirely, and for a considerable period he had been almost a helpless invalid.

He is survived by his widow and several children, including Miss Elizabeth Dirwanger, Mrs. George N. Coyle, Mrs. J. E. Richards, all of Portland, and a son, Joseph A. Dirwanger, Jr., whose home is in California. He is also survived by his brother, Albert, who has also been a florist in Portland for many years.

John J. Kuratle.

John J. Kuratle, of 1613 Franklin street, Wilmington, Del., died at his home January 14, after a year's illness, as the result of a cancer. Mr. Kuratle was 51 years of age and was one of the best known florists of his city.

He was born in Switzerland and came to this country in 1883 and located at Edge Moor. Later he removed to Wilmington, where he had lived for the last fourteen years. He is survived by his wife and three children, Eleanor, Richard and Henry Kuratle.

George Milne.

George Milne, a well known florist of Winchester, Mass., died recently at his home in that city and the funeral took place Thursday, January 13. Mr. Milne was formerly in business at Marlboro, Mass.

Richard Shannon.

Richard Shannon, long a prominent florist of Greene avenue, and of Parkway avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home, 172a Clifton place, Sunday, January 16. He was born in Ireland in 1837, and had been a resident of Brooklyn for nearly fifty years. He was a member of Hill Grove Lodge, F. & A. M.; Evening Star Chapter, R. A. M.; Clinton Commandery, K. T.; the Brooklyn Masonic Veterans; the Aurora Grata Bodies of the Scottish Rite, of Brooklyn, and Kismet Temple, of the Mystic Shrine, in all of which he was prominent and popular. He was also a member of the Unqua Corinthian Yacht Club, of Amityville, L. I. He leaves a widow, Margaret, and six children.

John Pugh Burn.

The funeral of John Pugh Burn, aged 49 years, took place at Philadelphia, Pa., Wednesday, January 19. Mr. Burn was a well-known member of the firm of Thomas Meehan's Sons, florists, of Germantown, and died suddenly January 14, of acute indigestion while riding on a train near Columbia, S. C. On the train with Mr. Burn were his wife, son and daughter and Boyd Lanning, a friend. Mr. Burn was destined for Melbourne, S. C., where he owned property. A physician on the train was summoned, but Mr. Burn died before he could be taken to a hospital, having burst a blood-vessel. He was a son-in-law of Thomas Meehan and resided at Chew and Phil-Ellena streets, Germantown.

George P. Bloomer.

George P. Bloomer, of Bellmore, L. I., was making his way through the storm of January 14, when he became exhausted and died on the veranda of a hotel. He was 82 years old. For many years Mr. Bloomer lived at Herkimer and Sackman streets, Brooklyn. He was a builder and had been prominent in politics in the East New York section. For some years he had been in business as a florist at Bellmore.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Business was extremely good last week, at least extremely good by comparison with the supply of roses. It was not possible to fill all orders in this department. The way the orders poured in by mail and wire indicated that the shortage in rose crops was general from the Alleghenies to the Rockies, and between the shipping demand and the needs of local buyers prices advanced rather sharply. Beauties, which have been more nearly equal to the call than other roses, advanced rather more abruptly than did anything else. Orders for white roses were most difficult to fill. The largest part of the demand was for short stock, and the price on this grade went up to where the local buyers refused to pay it and resorted to other flowers. The

VIOLETS

We Handle the Cream of the Crops

In Large Supply for St. Valentine's Day

Last year every retailer who had our Violets did a big Valentine's business, and we expect a fine trade again this year. No one can do better than we can, either on Fancy Hudson River Doubles or Fragrant Home-grown Singles. Better write us at once for prices on the quantity you need and INSURE yourself by placing your order with us now.

Carnations

You will find our Carnations splendid stock—the best varieties in each color—and the quantity sufficient to take care of the largest orders. We want to hear from large users of Carnations who have not previously bought of us. We can make it interesting for all such—not the cheapest, but the best Carnations on this market, and the largest supply.

Killarney and Richmond

Rose crops are light at present, but we still have a splendid supply of Killarney and Richmond finest extra special grade, but the bulk of the cut is the special and select lengths, the grades all stores use in greatest quantity. No better roses anywhere, whatever length you need.

Beauties

Beauty crops are light just now, but our supply is fair, fine quality, and we are filling our orders in good shape.

Sweet Peas

Large quantities of long-stemmed fancy Sweet Peas, white, pink and lavender. Last year we did an enormous business because of the quality and quantity of our Peas. They will be as good and as plentiful this season and as popular, judging from the way the buyers are taking hold. Let us put some on your next order.

Miscellaneous Stock

Jonquils, plenty of Easter Lilies, Callas, Freesias, Mignonette, Paper Whites, Romans and Tulips, white, yellow and Proserpine. Green goods of every kind; finest Fancy Ferns.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

We handle the "Chicago Market Brand" exclusively. From the recognized leading commercial grower of Valley in the west. Many leading stores will use no other. We can supply any quantity.

medium lengths of roses were in greater demand than the extra long grades, but there was a sale for everything in the rose line at good prices.

Early last week the call for carnations was so good that prices became exceedingly stiff, but it appeared that the growers only had been waiting for word that carnations were in request, for after a couple of days the receipts increased so rapidly that prices receded to a point where they were nothing else than weak. On the whole, the average prices of carnations throughout the week were not higher than ordinary, for the setback fully counterbalanced the increase during the few days of scarcity.

This week opens with the rose situation changed but little. There are slightly larger receipts, but the difference is more apparent through the slackening of demand; there is a distinct limit of prices; and when prices are forced too high it shuts off buying. Carnations are abundant. Though the prices are considerably below those of the early days of last week, they are not lower than usually have prevailed at this date; indeed, the carnation market can be called seasonable. McKinley day, January 29, has been ignored as a factor in the carnation market, because it always has been a disappointment when any effort was made to push it; growers held back stock, created an impression of shortage, then flooded the market, and everybody was dissatisfied, grower, commission-man and retailer. But a number of houses have some good orders booked for shipping January 27 and 28. It looks as though McKinley day might easily be developed if growers would let the wholesalers push for business at moderate prices.

There are considerably more tulips than heretofore, mostly white, but they are selling slowly. Paper Whites enjoyed a boom last week during the shortage of other stock. Prices did not go above quoted rates, but there was brisk business. Callas, Harrisii and valley also shared in the demand. Violets had a bad week; fair business in the first half and a heavy overstock the latter part.

The green goods market is steady, but there is a shortage of asparagus in bunches. Little of this useful article is now grown locally, the bulk of the supplies coming from Florida.

Various Notes.

A. L. Randall calls attention to the great increase that is shown in the shipment of violets from this market. Only two or three years ago practically all the violets received in this market were sold locally, but now a large part, possibly half, are shipped to out-of-town buyers. Mr. Randall looks for an extremely large volume of violet business for Valentine's day, but no fancy prices.

The funeral of John Farson last week called for one of the largest displays of flowers ever seen in this vicinity. All the leading retailers had a share in the work.

The Workers' Magazine in last Sunday's Tribune had an article, "Flowers Grown by Electricity," credited to Leonard Kill. It was descriptive of experiments said to have been conducted at Peter Reinberg's establishments.

The West Park Board seems to think that separation from Jens Jensen will be painless if it is gradual. From general superintendent he was promoted to be consulting landscape architect, with a salary of $2,400 per year. Now his salary has been fixed at $1,000, with special pay for special services.

E. C. Amling says he deplores any such sudden boost as carnation prices received at the first of last week, when orders were coming in freely. He says the result of such an advance always is that when the buyers receive their shipments and find what prices are charged they at once stop ordering, and the market reacts to a point where both growers and commission-men are losers, even the retailer being out of pocket because he does not have the stock to do business with.

The stockholders of the Flower Growers' Market corporation held their postponed annual meeting January 21 and elected directors as follows: Alex. Henderson, Walter Tonner, Hertha Tonner, John Sinner and Frank Beu.

Wietor Bros. are preparing to rebuild eleven of their houses, each 265 feet long. This section contains the only wood-gutter houses there now are on the place. After the rebuilding is completed the entire establishment will be built on Garland's iron gutter.

F. C. Struvy says that for twelve years he has conducted his two flower stores on a strictly cash basis. Purchases are

MADISON, N. J., January 20, 1910.

APHINE MFG. CO., Madison, N. J.

Dear Sirs:—Having just made comparative tests between Aphine and fumigation for our own information and benefit, we think you will be interested in the results.

For Green Fly on our rose plants we used Aphine as directed, 1 to 40, applying with an auto spray; choosing sunny days and using a fine spray. We carefully sprayed the plants early in the morning. In a few minutes the fly began to drop and later when we syringed with the hose we found the plants well rid of fly. In addition we found no discolored buds as in fumigating, but what attracted our attention, the foliage seemed to be improved and invigorated.

From a financial standpoint it costs us $3.00 and $4.00 to fumigate 2000 lineal feet of rose houses each time, whereas we would use only a half gallon of Aphine for the same purpose.

The results have shown us that Aphine is higher in efficiency and lower in cost than fumigation.

Yours very truly,
A. H. & W. S. SCHULTZ.

The manufacturers of Aphine guarantee a uniform product at all times, and (if used strictly according to directions), that it will do all that is claimed for it and more.

John Kruchten's business is growing to the extent that he plans to take on more help and enlarge his facilities.

John Zech predicts that the scramble for roses will continue for at least two weeks, unless the demand falls off because of the higher prices which the shortage necessitated. He says the cause of the shortage is that all the growers forced their crops for Christmas without thought of the following weeks.

The store formerly occupied by the Benthey-Coatsworth Co. has been leased from May 1 to an office supply concern, so that flowers will no longer be handled there.

C. M. Dickinson, of E. H. Hunt's, was in Springfield for a couple of days last week.

E. F. Kurowski, president of the John C. Moninger Co., recently was at Geneva, N. Y., to attend the annual convention of the salesmen and territorial managers of the Herendeen Mfg. Co., makers of the Furman boilers, for which the Moninger Co. is agent for the greenhouse trade. Mr. Kurowski was much impressed by boiler tests he saw in progress there.

The E. F. Winterson Co. last week received a solid carload of canna roots from Arthur T. Boddington, New York. The pile of boxes, each containing 250 roots, makes an imposing showing.

Frank Pasternick says the Wienhoeber force is being kept busy with table work.

Kyle & Foerster have put in an extension telephone to the order desk, thereby saving many steps each day.

The Illinois Heater & Mfg. Co. manufactures self-watering window boxes, flower pots, etc., and has recently opened a branch at 717 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., with a full line of stock to take care of their Pacific coast trade. This firm recently shipped a carload of these goods to the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., who are the distributing agents for New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Vaughan & Sperry report that many growers of daffodils are meeting with disappointment, an extremely large proportion of the stock coming blind.

Mr. Fink, of Kennicott Bros. Co., was on the sick list last week. The Kennicott corporation had its annual meeting January 22.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has placed an order with the Moninger Co. for the roof material for five more 350-foot houses, the glass for which was bought of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. some weeks ago.

Joseph Ziska is negotiating for the sale of the Libertyville plant of the Chicago Rose Co., with the intention of devoting all his attention to wire work.

Bassett & Washburn supplied the Hinsdale waterworks with coal for ten days during the famine.

Carl Thomas was on the sick list all last week.

Henry Wensel, of Anglen, Mo., is in town this week buying material for three houses to be erected by Wensel & Hecht, who recently have purchased the establishment of George Hecht.

J. A. Valentine, Denver, spent a couple of days in town this week on his way to Pittsburg to the carnation convention.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business since the first of the year has been quite satisfactory, and with several firms has been in excess of last year. Cloudy weather, following the several days of storms, had the effect of somewhat curtailing the supply, but there was no actual scarcity. Funeral work has been heavy, which, combined with numerous parties, receptions and other social functions, has kept the florists on the move, and stock of all kinds is practically cleaned up daily.

Carnations and roses continue in good demand and prices range about normal. Violets are plentiful and, notwithstanding the cut rates by department and drug stores, prices are normal. Bulbous stock is beginning to come in, yellow daffodils and tulips moving well at $3 to $4 per hundred. Stevia, narcissi, peas, valley and white hyacinths are in good supply. Potted flowering azaleas are about the only thing that is too scarce to meet the demand.

Club Banquet.

The fourteenth annual banquet of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held Monday evening, January 17, in the private dining room of the Westminster hotel, and was the most successful and enjoyable in the history of the organization. During the evening the newly elected officers were installed, and the retiring president, Charles S. Macnair, was presented with a gold fountain pen. There were about fifty members and guests at the tables, and a roast turkey dinner, with accessories, was served.

After the dinner Michael J. Sweeney, of this city, was introduced as toastmaster. His introductions of the several speakers were original and witty. Responses to his call were made by ex-Presidents William Appleton, James B. Canning, William Chappell, Alex Macrae, James Hockey and Joseph F. Schellinger, and by William S. Pino, Dr. Holland, H. Howard Pepper, Owen McManus, Cornelius G. Hartstra, Eugene Appleton and William H. Mason. Others present included Joseph Kopelman, Charles H. Hunt, Edward Brooks, Eugene McCarron, Frank Collins, Joseph Appleton, William Dillon, Edward Forbes and John Roth. The addresses were interspersed with barytone selections by William P. Lynch, tenor selections by William R. Warburton and piano selections by Raymond P. Tully.

Prof. H. J. Wheeler, of the Rhode Island College and Agricultural Experiment Station, referred to his recent trip across the continent and his visit to the home of Luther Burbank. He contrasted the conditions in the west with those in New England and prophesied that this section of the country had a greater future before it, agriculturally and horticulturally, than any other.

The new officers of the club are: President, Robert Johnson; vice-president, Eugene Appleton; secretary, William E. Chappell; treasurer, William Hill; anniversary banquet committee, Eugene Appleton, Alex Macrae and Harry Clark.

Horticultural Society.

Edwin H. Burlingame was reëlected president of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society at its annual meeting, held Wednesday evening, January 19, with a large number of members in attendance. The other officers elected were as follows: Vice-presidents, Col. Robert H. I. Goddard, Senator G. P. Wetmore, Thomas Hope, Prof. H. J. Wheeler, Rev. George Massie, Joseph E. C. Farnham, Henry F. Manchester and Charles W. Bayer. Exhibition committee, Dr. H. W. Heaton, of Olneyville; Thomas K. Winsor, of Greenville; Frederick C. Green, of Providence; Miss Addie F. Holland, of Providence; L. S. K. Clarner, of Arnold's Mills, and Joshua Vose, of Pontiac. Lecture committee, Thomas Hope, Prof. A. E. Stene and Prof. J. Franklin Collins.

Prof. A. E. Stene was appointed by the society to coöperate with the legislative committee of the Rhode Island State Grange in its effort to secure legislation providing for the inspection of seed.

Besides the election of officers, the principal business transacted was the reading of the officers' reports. That of the secretary was a recital of the work done by the society during the year. According to the treasurer's report, the total receipts of the society during the last year were $1,437.46, including $1,000 received from the state for premiums. The expenses amounted to $1,396.27, leaving a balance of $41.19. The permanent funds of the Horticultural Society are as follows: B. A. Holbrook fund, $1,000; Mrs. B. A. Holbrook fund, $1,000; Charles W. Smith fund, $100; life membership fund, $566; a total of $2,666.

Various Notes.

S. J. Reuter, of Westerly, has completed the filling of his ice houses at White Rock, where he has a sufficient quantity of ice to carry him through the coming summer.

George W. Williams, of the W. E. Barrett Co., has been reëlected a director of the Warwick Club, of which he is the oldest member, and for years he has been its vice-president.

H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Garden Co., of this city, received 2,000 rose bushes last week for outdoor propagation during the coming summer.

Joseph Reynolds, with T. J. Johnston & Co., who has been in the Rhode Island hospital since last October with a broken arm and blood poison, is improving and expects to be discharged in a short time.

Charles H. Hunt recently completed two hotbeds, 12x12 and 12x36, in which he will force bulbs. He already has about 20,000 bulbs potted for Easter.

Harry P. Clark was unable to attend the Florists' Club banquet last Monday evening, because of a family occurrence. He has since been passing out cigars on the increase in his family circle.

Mr. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., was in town January 15, calling upon the members of the trade.

Lawrence Hay was one of the guests at the annual banquet of the East Providence Business Men's Association on Monday evening, January 17.

quite plentiful and they say that stock cleaned up nicely all last week.

Roses have been scarce, and will be for some time, as all the shippers to this market, as well as the local growers, are off crop. All the Kirkwood growers have had a big supply of carnations and violets, and the chances are that a glut is on for this week in these. January 24 the market was oversupplied with these, many more in evidence than the demand called for. There are also too many Paper Whites, as well as Romans. Harrisii and callas are coming in freely. Sweet peas seem to have a good call, but there is a good supply in pink, white and lavender. Wild smilax is selling well, also all other greens.

Various Notes.

L. A. Gieger, who is running the old stand of Michel Plant & Bulb Co., on Maryland avenue, says he is well satisfied with the business now being done.

Among those of our suburban florists who called last week were J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; Henry Johann, Collinsville, and Adolph Fehr, Belleville. All were much pleased with the business since the first of the year.

Miss Mathilda Meinhardt left for Fort Wayne, Ind., last week on a visit to Mrs. W. J. Vesey. Miss Meinhardt will spend about two weeks at Fort Wayne.

Henry Lorenze, who runs the Park Floral Co., was taken to a sanitarium last week.

The sale of the Michel Plant & Bulb Co.'s bankrupt stock to Jules Bourdet Monday, January 17, did not hold good, so Receiver Frank Coleman advertised it for sale at auction Monday, January 24, for the second time. This time it was sold in lots, and did not bring nearly as much as the Bourdet price. The greenhouses are held under a deed of trust by the Jefferson Bank for $6,000.

The Florists' Bowling Club, with John Connon as president and W. C. Smith as secretary and treasurer, has been revived, and a number of florist bowlers were out Monday night, January 17, for a good time, at Sarah and Delmar alleys. They bowl there every Monday night.

The Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis Seed Co., Plant Seed Co., D. I. Bushnell & Co., and Tinsley Seed Co. are making preparations for a big spring business and are making improvements to handle the trade.

Walter Retzer, of the Plant Seed Co., returned recently from a western business trip for his firm.

C. Young & Sons Co. has issued the spring catalogue of plants, seeds and bulbs. A large shipping trade in this line is done.

The St. Louis Horticultural Society held its annual meeting at the Odeon building, January 20, and reëlected the old officers. The executive committee will meet soon and decide as to the advisability of holding a spring flower show.

Visitors last week included F. J. Farney, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia; Fred Lembke, of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; J. White, of R. M. Ward & Co., New York.

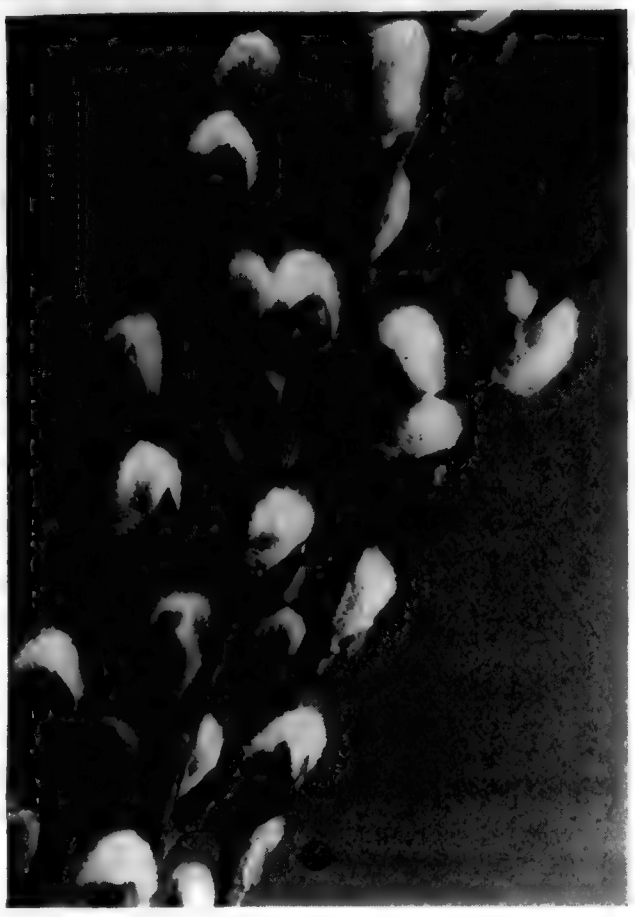
PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Beauties are shortening rapidly, fancy stock being often difficult to obtain. Carnation conditions improve with the approach of McKinley day and Easter lilies are abundant at moderate prices. Cattleyas are more plentiful than at any time since the fall, with prices lower. Violets and sweet peas have receded a little. There is heavy trading in Paper Whites at extremely low figures. Tulips have been reinforced by a few pink and red, although yellow is the predominating color and by far the finest, with white next. Daffodils and white lilacs are abundant and good. There is a brisk demand for the former, while the latter goes in with the fancy orders.



A Philadelphian, a leader in the world of finance, gave a ball in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel on the evening of January 14, to which 1,000 guests were bidden. The floral decorations for this ball were elaborate. A thousand of this variety, 2,000 of that, 3,000 of the other, running through a dozen sorts, were used, besides many foliage and flowering plants and greens galore. That even such a ball would be felt in this market seems absurd. Many such have passed with scarce a ripple in the wholesale district, yet this ball made a tremendous impression, not so much from the quantity of flowers used as from the fact that it marked a change. Social festivities increased in number; the supply of flowers decreased. The market is buoyant.

The changed conditions today, compared with two weeks ago, are principally evident in the rose market. The crops timed for the holidays are over. There were so many crops so timed as to make a decided shortage. Prices have advanced sharply. Fancy grade Richmond, Mrs. Jardine and Killarney are in active demand, with few obtainable. Cheaper grades of Bride and White Killarney are selling briskly for design work. The shortage in the rose market has affected every other variety of flower, the dealers turning from roses when possible to anything else attractive that can be used as a substitute. Prices in the other flowers have not advanced as in roses, but the average sales are better. There is little or nothing left. Gardenias are also weak, although many, in fact far more than ever before this season, are being sold at listed quotations. Quality is an important factor—"in the price of everything," you were going to say. Certainly, but I mean especially in the price of sweet peas. Bright, fresh flowers of substance, with long stems, bring double the price of ordinary or tired looking stock. The orchid class is in two sections at present, cattleyas and mixed orchids, in which you get dendrobiums, oncidiums and the rear guard of the cypripediums, with possibly a few others. Greens are in irregular demand; even smilax of the tame variety is thankfully used one day and rejected the next. There is an excellent shipping demand for good flowers.

The Rose Mrs. Jardine.

W. E. McKissick laid his hand caressingly on a jar of Mrs. Jardine roses, asking an opinion on their quality. The really magnificent blooms were enhanced in beauty by the midwinter scarcity of fine roses, and the sight of these highly colored, large flowers, with their luxuriant foliage, recalled vividly the history of Mrs. Jardine. Heralded as a pedigreed Irish rose and backed by the best judges as a meritorious novelty, Mrs. Jardine proved too capricious for all but two of the Philadelphia growers; one the introducer, the other the man who grew these flowers. A visit was immediately planned and promptly executed, for such stock was worth going many miles to see.

J. Stephenson, of Oak Lane, has something over 30,000 feet of glass devoted chiefly to roses, with a few carnations as a side line. There are three separate houses or ranges of glass. The last one, completed September 10, 1909, is a model Lord & Burnham house, 35x210, with the ridge thrown just far enough back to avoid shading the last of the five beds; in other words, a carefully planned three-quarter spanned house, in which cement walls, cement walks and cement beds add strength and durability, to say nothing of neatness. This new house and an older one are planted entirely with Dickson's hybrid tea rose, Mrs. Jardine, and despite the late planting of the new house, the plants showed excellent growth and are beginning to sucker freely. The blooms were highly colored and of substance, and the plants bear out Mr. Stephenson's statement that Mrs. Jardine produces few thirds. The claim has been made by growers of this rose that it must bring anywhere from one-half more to double as much per flower as the freer-blooming varieties in order to make it pay expenses. Mr. Stephenson believes this is excessive, stating that one-third more is ample. Mrs. Jardine, at Oak Lane, last year produced only one and a half less per plant than Richmond under the same conditions; surely a remarkable showing.

Grafted Jardines are being tried in comparison with own-roots, but it will take another season to make a thorough test. The grafted appear to produce more flowers, but do not sucker so freely as the own-root stock. Mr. Stephenson is so pleased with his venture that he is giving an entire new house to Mrs. Jardine. He believes it a great mistake to limit the number of varieties of roses to three or four, claiming that an excellent demand can be readily developed for meritorious novelties like Mrs. Jardine.

Various Notes.

F. S. Stimson and Mrs. Stimson, of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, Wash., were here recently. While here they captured W. R. Gibson, who left with them to manage Mr. Stimson's store.

Frank P. Rine and Mrs. Rine, of Lewisburg, Pa., were here in the interests of the new firm of Rine & Kerstetter, who will open a flower store in Milton, Pa.

Among the Philadelphians who have signified their intention of attending the carnation meeting at Pittsburg this week are: Robert Craig, William P. Craig, Edward A. Stroud, Charles E. Meehan, J. L. Pennock, Israel Rosnosky and William Swayne, of Kennett Square. A. B. Cartledge was unable to go, owing to the death of his uncle.

Henry F. Michell is enjoying a well earned fortnight's vacation at Aiken, S. C.

John Burton has just purchased a 6-cylinder car.

William Geiger, grower for J. Stephenson, of Oak Lane, says that Mrs. Jardine is a great rose when you can get the knack of growing it.

Victor Groshens has received the building material for his new house. It is to be 29x500 feet.

Tastefully gotten up McKinley day cards in the shop windows remind the passerby to wear a carnation January 29.

Philadelphia flower shop on the Century type last week. Thomas Holland, first lieutenant of one hundred twelve, is in charge.

William Berger, it is understood, will have an entirely new and modern store built on the site of the old one, at Germantown avenue near Chelten avenue, next summer. Fred Berger has built up a splendid business here among the best people of Germantown.

Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., have, as stated in this column several months ago, built five new houses. It may seem a funny statement to make at this season of the year to one unfamiliar with Alexander B. Scott's building method—posts planted, roofing material put in position in the fall, glazing done before winter, steam pipes and beds put in position at odd times during the winter, soil wheeled in at earliest possible moment in spring, before rush is on, so that plants get the full benefit of the growing season.

Joseph E. Trouncer, representative of the Winona Carnation Co., Winona, N. J., has a promising white seedling; some fine blooms, large and fragrant, were on exhibition at the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

Cheery letters have been received in this city from Edwin Lonsdale at Lompoc, Cal.; the air has happily proved beneficial to Mrs. Lonsdale, but either the air or something else has, alas, queered the victrola.

Edward Reid has returned from a few days' trip south.

J. Otto Thilow, secretary of the Henry A. Dreer corporation, was in Chicago last week.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. have an effective novelty basket made of cycas leaves, caught up by a long, slender handle of cycas and palm stems twined.

Herman Schoenfeld, who has been ill, suffered a crushing loss in the recent snow storm, when his four greenhouses at Eighty-seventh street and Cruthers avenue went down. The stock is a total loss.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons are credited with using thirty-four cases of wild smilax for the decoration at the automobile show. They had elaborate decorations for the Widener and midwinter balls last week, besides many smaller affairs.

M. Rice & Co. have a pretty novelty in their gold ribbon and tassels, that interests retailers.

Among the visitors to this city recently were J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.; W. A. Hammond, Richmond, Va., and T. J. McCarty, of the Connelley-McCarty Co., Charleston, S. C.

Dennis T. Connor has landed the order of the Joseph Heacock Co. for one greenhouse, 55x600, to be erected by the Lord & Burnham Co., at Roelofs, Mr. Heacock's branch farm. Roelofs is on the line of the Philadelphia & Reading railway, between Philadelphia and New York and about sixty miles from the latter city. Building will commence as soon as spring opens. PHIL.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is a steadiness about the market, now and during last week, that is encouraging. The demand has been steady, the volume of trade satisfactory and prices hold a reasonable average. The retailers are uniformly busy. Many large funerals and weddings, banquets and receptions have kept the ball rolling, and until Lent begins the outlook is for an excellent winter business. The weather has been mild and clear and the week opens with a temperature several degrees above the freezing point. Shipments are increasing in volume, and there is enough daily to meet any possible demand.

Beauties sold well all the week, and the best of them touched 60 cents to 75 cents at times. Immense quantities of these and orchids were used at the Gould reception in the new residence at 857 Fifth avenue. The best Maid and Bride brought 10 cents Saturday, and Richmond, Killarney and My Maryland 15 cents, so the rose market may be fairly quoted as in sound condition. The demand for the lower grades was insistent, and prices were reasonable.

This is carnation week, and they are arriving in larger numbers. Prices will do well to hold at present quotations. Quality never was better. The orchid supply is enough for all inquiries and prices are reasonable, notwithstanding last week's extra call, which depleted the market completely for a day. The market is filled with daffodils, narcissi, freesias, sweet peas and tulips, the latter being short-stemmed and slow of sale. Valley and lilies are abundant and prices hard to maintain at present quotations. Violets do not get above 50 cents, and this is likely to be top for some weeks to come. Lent is near, though of late years its mournful influence has been but slight in the cut flower market.

Various Notes.

The second annual banquet of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will be held at the Hotel Astor, February 2, at 7 p. m.

J. F. Sharkey had a unique wedding decoration last week at the Hotel Gotham, with cottage effects and elaborate floral display in Beauties and orchids.

fine store at Eighty-fifth street and Broadway, and will occupy it February 1.

The Forster-Mansfield Co., 145 West Twenty-eighth street, manufacturer of the quaint mission work extensively used by the leading retailers at Christmas, makes a specialty of florists' ice-boxes and store decoration. At present the company is completing the work in the handsome new store of H. Hoffmeir, on upper Broadway. Andre Beauplan is the proprietor, and an adept in his line.

Kessler Bros. had the misfortune last week to have a wagon-load of palms come in collision with a Madison avenue trolley car. The wagon was entirely demolished and two men, one a brother of the members of the firm, were painfully injured. The horse escaped. The younger Mr. Kessler is still confined to the house. The company has settled for the damage to the firm's satisfaction.

Samuel Woodrow has left the Fernwood Nursery Co. and is now traveling for Bobbink & Atkins.

H. Kenney, Brooklyn, finds the demand for wire workers in excess of the supply.

The annual reception of the Florists' Social Club of the West Side will take place Saturday evening, January 29. The lieutenant of Mr. Brown, the Belnord florist, is master of ceremonies.

Much sympathy is felt for Thomas Jones, of Short Hills, N. J., in his serious loss by fire. Two of his greenhouses were completely destroyed.

T. Mellstrom, the representative of Sander & Son, sailed for home January 26.

John Cleary, of the Fruit Auction Co., is in Europe, arranging for plant and bulb importations for his plant auction season, which begins in March.

W. J. Badgley, of Chatham, has purchased the entire stock of the Wilson Plant Oil & Fertilizer Co.

William Elliott & Sons have renovated their store and are ready for the opening of the auction season. The firm has just issued its sixty-fifth annual catalogue.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be ladies' night, the date of which is February 14. It will also be carnation night and all the novelties and prize winners of the east will be there. The president of the S. A. F. and others will tell of the Pittsburg convention and a fine musical program will be given. All in the trade, whether members of the club or not, are cordially invited.

Saturday, January 29, is McKinley day and Carnation day and New York should set the pace in honor of the memory of President McKinley. The Carnation League of America, through Gen. Kennedy, has sent out a strong proclamation, urging the people everywhere to show this tribute of affection.

To commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Manhattan island, a world's fair is projected in 1913. A company has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $200,000. If the scheme is consummated that will be a good year for the meeting of the S. A. F. in New York, with all the auxiliary societies and the national flower show, and we can house the whole of them successfully.

The street was blocked in front of the store of the Kervan Co., Saturday, January 22, with an immense shipment of wild smilax. The firm handles an enormous quantity of this and other southern novelties. Mr. Kervan has a ranch in the south, and knows Florida like a book.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, exhibited last week at the store of Traendly & Schenck a fine stock of his new begonia, Gloire de Cincinnati. Wednesday, January 26, in closing an estate, the building now under lease to Traendly & Schenck was sold at auction.

Andrew Wilson, of Summit, who has sold his retail business there to William Death, is now representing the Wilson-Hoyt Co., manufacturers of cement benches.

C. W. Scott left for Grand Rapids, Wis., Friday, January 21, because of the serious illness of his father.

Charles Loechner, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., is rapidly recovering from the accident of a few weeks ago and is at the Norwegian hospital, Brooklyn.

The new catalogue of the Stumpp & Walter Co. is a work of art this year. Mr. Sperling, of the firm, is now calling on his eastern clientele.

MOVING NARCISSI IN FLOWER.

I am in a position to obtain a large quantity of narcissi that are growing in an old pasture or field and are in full bloom now. This place will be used for a manufacturing site at once and I can have these bulbs for the taking. What I want to know is the best method for taking care of them while in this condition. I have never handled bulbs before and am therefore at a loss how to proceed. I do not want to lose this chance of getting such a lot of bulbs for nothing, if they can safely be moved. I live in southern Louisiana. H. M.

While it is not a good or safe time to move narcissi while in flower, if you will dig them carefully, preserve as many roots as possible, keep them protected from the sun as far as possible and then lay them in shallow trenches rather thickly, and sufficiently deep so that the bulbs and roots are covered four to six inches, you will be able to save a large part of them. The trenches can be two feet apart, and if in a slightly shaded location, so much the better. After the foliage has all died down, you can then lift the dormant bulbs and store them in flats in a cool shed or cellar until planting time in the fall, which with you would be from the end of October to the end of November. The bulbs should be covered three to six inches, according to the variety, the largest bulbed sorts requiring the deepest covering. W. C.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysantnemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER.

Will you please tell me the proper amount of commercial fertilizer to use for lettuce, radishes and cucumbers? I noticed that a recent issue of the REVIEW stated the proper proportions, but did not give the amount for a dressing. An article on the subject of greenhouse fertilizers, and how to use them for the different kinds of vegetables, would be interesting, I think, to many of the readers of the REVIEW. C. J. J.

It is hard to state the exact amount of fertilizer to use for any crop without knowing the condition of the crop or the amount of manure used in preparing the soil, or how much of the manure has been exhausted by crops since preparing the soil. A crop that is sickly may be likened to a person in the same condition, in that they both require little food and are better off without much.

Either liquid or dry feedings should never be put on when the plants are too dry, or they will take up too much at the first watering. The fertilizers should not touch the stalks or leaves, and it is better to use only a little at a time and oftener than to overdo it at once and expect miracles in a day or two.

For cucumbers I would use the following amounts to a row or bench 100 feet long, never using more than one of these fertilizers at a time: Bone meal, six pounds; potash (muriate or sulphate), two pounds; nitrate of soda, three pounds; pulverized sheep manure, ten or twelve pounds.

Complete fertilizers, having nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid in them, vary in quantities of each, but as a rule two or three pounds, dusted over evenly and frequently, make a good feeding. None of these can take the place of an occasional mulching with good, short stable manure, but they are quite beneficial to use in addition to the mulchings.

For quick crops, like lettuce and radishes, nitrate of soda is about the only commercial fertilizer used and can be used about the same as for cucumbers, but not so often, and must be sifted and put on carefully and evenly, and watered to dissolve it soon after.

In using commercial fertilizers, one must study what the plants are most in need of. The three ingredients which plants take from the soil, and which are renewed in manures and fertilizers, are nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid, and each serves a different purpose in the plants. Nitrogen is helpful to the foliage, phosphoric acid to the blooms and potash to the stalks and fruit. All are necessary, but in different proportions, according to the particular crop. For instance, an insufficient supply of nitrogen in the soil will hinder the plants from making a good start, and will cause small leaves and poor growth, particularly of foliage crops, like lettuce, parsley, cauliflower, etc., or cucumber vines. Insufficient phosphoric acid will cause tomatoes and cucumbers to make their growth without enough blooms and fruit set on them, and a lack of potash will be made apparent need no introduction to wide-awake market gardeners. A score of the best standard varieties were introduced by us and the name "LIVINGSTON" stands as a synonym for good Tomatoes. The enormous demand for our high grade tomato seed obliges us to grow tons of it every year. And still we never have enough of it to go around! The reason? We grow the best tomato seed on earth! All seeds of Livingston's varieties grown by ourselves. Sold only under our "True Blue Seal."

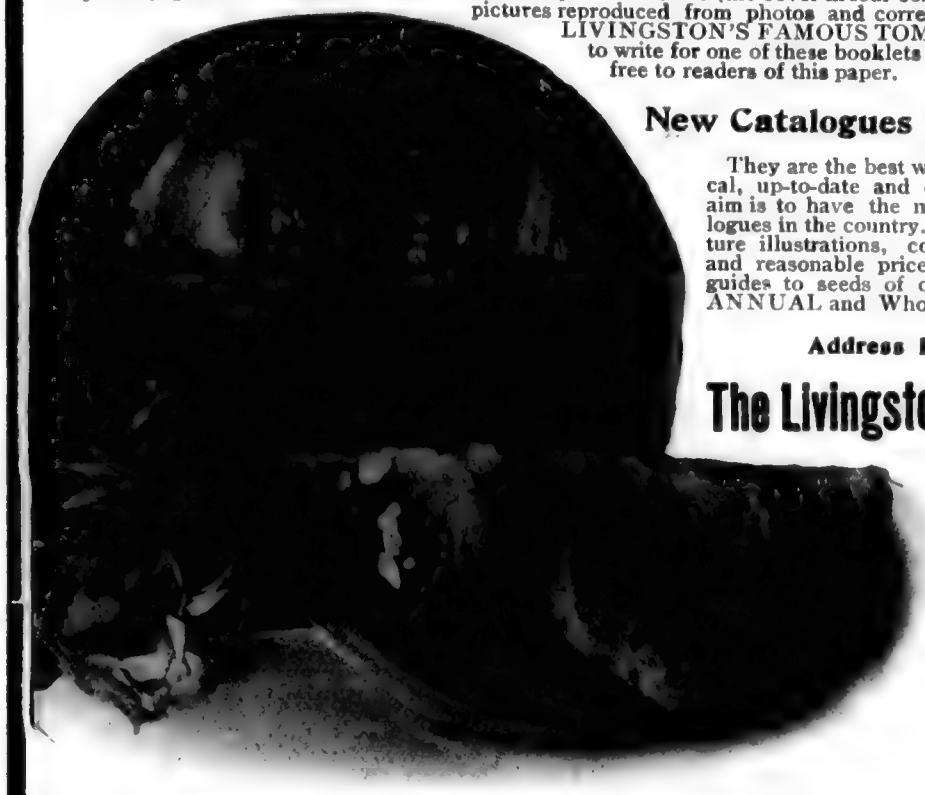
Livingston's Globe First early, round, large, purple. Of finest quality! Great favorite in southern states. Pkt., 10c; ¼ oz., 20c; oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00. Postpaid.



Livingston's Hummer Early, ball shaped, bright red. Free from cracks, of desirable size and best quality. Pkt., 10c; ½ oz., 20c; oz., 30c; ¼ lb., 80c.

Livingston's Beauty (See illustration below.) The standard purple market tomato. Early, productive, fine for garden or greenhouse culture. Best quality. Oz., 20c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.85. Postpaid.

Livingston's Stone Finest main crop bright red sort. Greatest canning tomato in the world. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.60. Postpaid.

Comet Tomato is a superior forcing variety of fine quality. Produces handsome clusters of from 6 to 10 perfectly ball-shaped fruits which average two inches in diameter. Extra selected stock grown on our farms. Pkt., 10c; oz., 40c; ¼ lb., 80c; lb., $3.10. Postpaid.

All the above varieties and 16 others are fully described and illustrated in "TOMATO FACTS"—a unique 24-page de luxe booklet. Printed beautifully in two colors (the cover in four colors), it gives true pictures reproduced from photos and correct descriptions of LIVINGSTON'S FAMOUS TOMATOES. Be sure to write for one of these booklets today. They are free to readers of this paper.

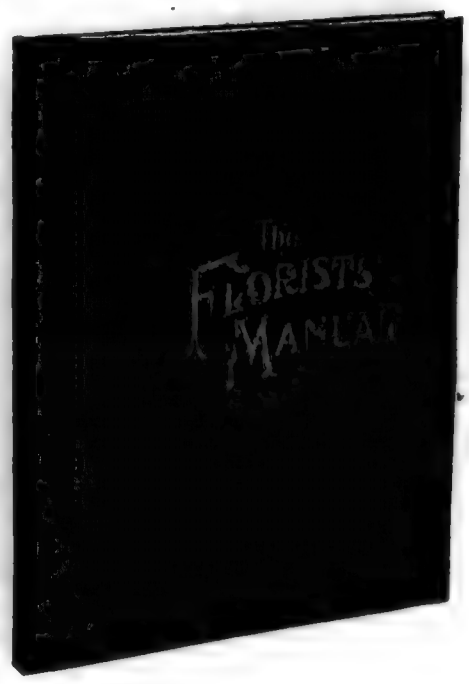
by small stalks and poor shaped or small fruit. Of course each one helps the other, but it is often the case that we see a lot of fine looking cucumber or tomato plants with little fruit on them, and they fail to produce half a crop. Although plenty of nitrogen helped them to put up a good front, lack of the other chemicals caused failure to produce the crop in proportion. H. G.

BUILDING A MUSHROOM HOUSE.



I have had excellent success in growing mushrooms under greenhouse benches, but now wish to build a house exclusively for mushrooms. Any information, therefore, about the best and cheapest way of constructing a mushroom house will be greatly appreciated. J. D.

A cellar or dugout is much better for mushrooms than a house above ground, because it can be kept cool later in the spring than a house above ground, and thus the mushrooms can be kept bearing much longer and will be of good quality. Most mushrooms are, however, grown in houses above ground. There are many styles of mushroom houses, but the most common are built of lumber, like ranges of greenhouses.

The houses are narrow, with a wide aisle down the center, to allow the use of wheelbarrows, and with benches on both sides. Beds are also made under these benches, and in some cases, where the houses are high enough, another bench is made above the regular one. A house twelve feet wide answers the purpose well. Where several houses are built together, the regular greenhouse gutter should be used between them, just as in a range of short-span, connected houses.

Mushroom houses must be built warm. The walls are usually built by setting rows of fence posts and boarding them up on both sides. The rafters consist of 2x4 scantlings, on which matched lumber is laid, with prepared paper roofing nailed on top of the lumber. The under side of the roof is sealed up with matched lumber, also, like the upper side. The matched boards are also used on the inside of the walls, but on the outside of the walls cheaper lumber is used and then banked up to the eaves with manure or soil. Cupolas are placed along the peaks for ventilating the houses. A door wide enough for a large wheelbarrow is placed in each end.

I believe that the common practice could be much improved on by using pipe posts, an inch and a half in diameter, for supporting the eave plates and gutters, setting the posts two and one-half feet deep, filling the holes with concrete, and then making a concrete wall from the ground to the eaves. The wall would be about four or five inches thick and would be banked up with soil in the ordinary way. This would be a permanent wall, which would never need repairs and would cost little or no more than a wooden wall. Such houses could be easily turned into greenhouses, if desired, at any time in the future. If on high and dry ground, the floor of the house could be made below the level of the ground by scooping out the soil first. Then the walls, not being so high outside, would not require so much banking up and there would be plenty of soil to do it with. It is important, however, that the floor of a mushroom house be dry. Mushrooms will not do well in a wet place. H. G.

LEE, MASS.—John Connors, superintendent of the greenhouses on the Westinghouse estate, is seriously ill with pneumonia, at his home on Summer street.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—L. S. Spencer announces the removal of his wholesale cut flower growing business from Pesotum and Tolono to R. R. 4, Champaign, corner of McKinley avenue and the Bloomington road. He will have better facilities in his new location and expects to provide for his growing business.

LENOX, MASS.—A. H. Wingett exhibited his new carnation, Lady Algy, before the Lenox Horticultural Society, January 15, and received a first-class certificate. It is pure salmon pink in color, a sport of Beacon, and Edwin Jenkins says it is one of the most promising new varieties in sight.

A GREAT CUCUMBER.

Theodore Roosevelt is being paid $1.00 a word for his remarkable articles on hunting in Africa. We are sure, had he run across a vine of Salzer's Green Cross Cucumber in that far away clime, he could easily have used 10,000 words, or $10,000 worth of description in extolling and setting forth the many merits of this wonderful cucumber, and then some more! Look at the illustration. We had, in a small field with ordinary cultivation, hundreds and hundreds of cucumbers larger than here illustrated, attaining this enormous size within 20 to 25 days after setting! It is the most remarkable Cucumber and surely the most beautiful cucumber mortal eye has ever seen. It's infinitely ahead in beauty and appearance and quality of any hot house cucumber—each one a picture!

The Market.

All last week the weather was ideal, and this had a tendency to fully restore business to normal conditions. Locally it was quite a busy week, especially in funeral work. This caused a brisk demand for roses and carnations, which consequently held their own and were kept cleaned up all the time. This would not have been the case if the receipts in lilies, both callas and Harrisii, had been heavier. The extremely cold weather in December, which generally comes during January and February, is the cause given for the shortage of bulbous stock at this time. "Couldn't get at them," is what the growers state.

The supply of Beauties in the medium grades was equal to the demand. This was true, also, of roses in the darker shades. As already stated, carnations were kept cleaned up all the time, with the colored stock giving way to the lighter shades. Violets arrived in good supply and moved well.

This week opens with a heavier supply in all lines, except roses. Callas and Harrisii lilies are also more in evidence.

as private gardener on the Pfister place, located on the Port Washington road, has purchased ten acres of land north of North Milwaukee, thus becoming a near neighbor of A. Groth, Manke Bros. and Nic Zweifel. Mr. Valom is a regular attendant at all meetings of the Florists' Club, which he has served as trustee for the last three years, and he is one of the few who voice their opinions during the sessions. He does not contemplate putting up any glass for the present.

Nic Zweifel and H. V. Hunkel joined the Chicago party on their way to the Pittsburg convention. After the convention they intend to visit several eastern cities, including New York.

Guy French, carnation foreman at the plant of Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, came up Tuesday, January 18, to inspect some of the stock which of late made Milwaukee famous.

O. F. Coryell called on the trade last week, soliciting orders for some of the new stock being disseminated by the Charles Knopf Floral Co., of Richmond, Ind.

Mr. Miller, of the Racine Floral Co., Racine, Wis., was a caller for a day last week.

Mrs. J. T. Hinchliffe, of Racine, Wis., spent Sunday, January 23, in our midst.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is making extra efforts to remind folks of McKinley, thereby trying to increase the sales of carnations.

Dorothy Gordon

Being disseminated by

Joseph Heacock Company

Grow this Carnation for Big Profits in 1910!

After two years of careful watching and tending—giving it every opportunity to show its defects, if it had any—

After putting it on the cut-flower market and seeing it produce a sensation in the retail field, and after hearing it highly praised by every prominent grower who saw it—

After all this, we are ready to PROVE that our new Carnation Dorothy Gordon, of which you have heard so much recently and which is illustrated on the preceding page, is a real, genuine success — and that the grower who has it will make money!

Carnation Dorothy Gordon has a rapidly widening circle of friends; you'll surely begin to grow it for your trade sooner or later. This is your opportunity to get in NOW. Here are some of the noteworthy features of this new Carnation:

Vigorous constitution—freedom from disease.

Very large size and excellent form of flowers; these average over three inches in diameter. See illustration on facing page.

Wonderful profusion of bloom—one-third more flowers than Enchantress.

Excellent color—a trifle darker than Rose Pink Enchantress and more uniform in shade. Delightful fragrance.

Long, stiff stem and a bud with unusual keeping qualities.

Let's take these matters up in detail. Here is a Carnation that bears solid, lasting flowers of good standard color, three to three and a quarter inches in diameter. That's a big thing in itself, but add to it the fact that plants of this variety bear 130 good, commercial buds where the best sorts—Enchantress, for instance—bear only 100, and it looks bigger yet, doesn't it? But even that isn't all: buds of

Carnation Dorothy Gordon

Bring a price fifty per cent higher than buds of Enchantress, according to our actual experience for two years in the markets of Philadelphia. In other words, we have made Dorothy Gordon show up double the profits of Enchantress under the same conditions and with equal care. Here is a little table of figures based upon our own sales, that explains it:

100 Enchantress, worth say	$6 00
50 per cent extra realized for Dorothy Gordon	3 00
	$9 00
One-third more Dorothy Gordon from same number of plants	3 00
	$12 00

We're enthusiastic, to be sure, but in Dorothy Gordon we have something to support it, as the above table will show.

Up to October, 1909, without a particle of advertising, we had sold 60,000 rooted cuttings of this Carnation on its own merits at the prices given below. While we have now greatly enlarged our facilities, it is still evident that our present supply will not be adequate to meet the demand. Dorothy Gordon is in the hands of an experienced propagator at our plant, and we quote strong rooted cuttings at the following popular prices:—

$10 per 100, $75 per 1,000

That we are maintaining these figures is shown by our books, which are open to inspection at any time.

Our plant is likewise open to you—we urge you to come to Wyncote and investigate this worthy new Carnation for yourself. "Seeing is believing," and if we cannot sell Dorothy Gordon on its own merits we do not want to sell it at all.

We are easily reached from Philadelphia—twenty-five minutes from City Hall on the "Reading," with a service of 100 trains a day through the week. We're open every day except Sunday, and will welcome you at any time.

But don't put it off—you owe it to yourself to investigate Dorothy Gordon. If you cannot do it in person, drop us a line for full particulars.

Again — don't put it off!

Extract from the minutes of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, January 5, 1909

Your committee on Novelties visited the establishment of Joseph Heacock Company and examined their new Carnation, "Dorothy Gordon," on December 30. The variety resembles Rose Pink Enchantress in color and form, but it is superior to that variety in being of a more uniform color, and is also larger and of greater substance. It is of stronger constitution and has a stiffer flower stem. Your committee tested the keeping qualities and find them to be good. The flowers were kept in an ordinary potting shed, and were salable four days after being cut.

The greenhouses are covered with a heavy weight of snow and stock is exceedingly scarce.

Miss Thekla Baur has returned from a visit in Welland, Ont.

The following were visitors in the city lately: Wm. J. Smith, of Boas & Co., Philadelphia; F. W. Bannister, of H. D. Mann & Co., Syracuse; Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and M. J. Beatus, of Dayton, O.

Miss Hazel Shade has taken a position as saleslady in Baur's flower store and Miss L. Gardener one at the greenhouse office.

John Kaltenbach and John Gleichsner, who have been on the sick list, are convalescent.

Mrs. Maggie Lindgren, of Youngsville, Pa., has returned to her home after a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Baur.

The Bachelors of Erie gave a dance at Scott's hall January 25. The floral decorations were elaborate and were furnished by the Baur Floral Co. B. P.

NEWELL, W. VA.—The annual business meeting of the stockholders of the Lake Newell Floral Co. was held Tuesday evening, January 11, and resulted in the election of the following directors: John Schmeltzenbach, T. B. Anderson, George W. Clarke, James Miles, R. W. Patterson, Walter L. Hill, W. W. Harker and F. B. Lawrence. Encouraging reports of last year's business were presented.

NORTH AUGUSTA, S. C.—Boatwright's Floral Co. furnished the decorations for the debut of Miss Daisy Jackson, at Hampton Terrace hotel. The affair was an elaborate and fashionable one, with arrangements for 400 guests, and the decorations, as was appropriate, were entirely of daisies. Three centerpieces were used on one 30-foot table, and at each place was a shower of daisies. This firm also had charge of the decorations for a recent reception of an unusually elegant character, where Killarney roses, carnations, Roman hyacinths, etc., were lavishly used.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; First Vice-pres., M. H. Duryea, New York; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CALIFORNIA growers report weather and soil conditions as favorable to the new crop.

JOHN R. HAMILTON, once a well known seedsman at Louisville, Ky., died in that city January 19, aged 83 years.

O. S. JONES & Co., formerly at Madison, S. D., have removed their headquarters to Sioux Falls, S. D.

AT the canners' convention at Atlantic City February 7 to 12 a place on the program has been provided for a discussion on seed peas.

J. W. JUNG, Randolph, Wis., says that when he came to thresh his aster seed crops he found that, instead of having a surplus, he was unable to fill contracts on most varieties.

THE government seed shop is making its contracts with growers for seeds for the 1911 congressional distribution. A number of growers have been at Washington in the last few days to get their share of the business.

L. W. WHEELER no longer is connected with the Braslan Seed Growers' Co. On his present trip east he represents A. J. Pieters, Hollister, Cal., Hogue-Kellogg Co., Ventura, Cal., and the Ebbert Seed Co., Rocky Ford, Colo.

BROKERS who deal in canned goods predict higher prices, stating that farmers last season made more money from field than from sweet corn, and argue from that fact that the acreage of sweet corn this year will be less if prices paid by packers do not rise.

IT is reported that Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, have established a branch at Billings, Mont., in charge of M. B. Gray. This doubtless came from an item in a Billings paper of November 12, reporting Mr. Gray's arrival there. In the trade it is pretty well understood that for the last fifteen years Northrup, King & Co. have grown more or less of their peas in the vicinity of Billings. They are slightly increasing their acreage there this year.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending January 15 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Annatto...	3	$ 45	Grass	53	$1,004
Canary ..	1,606	3,134	Hemp	10	95

Cummin ..	58	776	Sugar beet ..	250	1,940
Fennel ...	2	30	Other	..	4,149

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $13,939; peas, $14,400.

of it, and the court took the case out of the hands of the jury and directed that judgment be found for the seed trade. The case is one which will hereafter be cited as a precedent.

A. A. Geil, the plaintiff, claimed to have purchased five and one-half bushels of clover seed from the Iowa Seed Co. as medium or common red clover; that he sowed same and did not notice any difference the first year, but the second season that it proved to be mammoth red clover. He abandoned his crop. Defendant denied that it was mammoth, claiming that the unusually large growth was caused by rich soil and wet weather, but did not press this point, preferring to have the case decided on the disclaimer. It was shown that the defendant publishes in several places in its catalogue a so-called disclaimer refusing to warrant seeds; that this disclaimer is also printed on large placards posted in various prominent places in its building; that the disclaimer also was printed on the receipt given to the plaintiff for the money paid for this seed; that this is a general custom with all seed dealers in the United States and Europe, which was confirmed by an exhibit, not only of defendant's own catalogue, but the catalogues of more than 100 American seed dealers and about forty foreign seed dealers, all of which contained the disclaimer.

After four days' trial Judge McHenry ruled that there was no warranty, either express or implied, and that it was a universal custom of the seed trade, and had been for many years past, to sell seeds without warranty, and that this custom and usage had become established as a law of which the purchaser of seeds is bound to take notice.

The court, in his decision on defendant's motion to dismiss the case, discussed the non-warranty as follows:

The facts disclosed by this record are about these. The plaintiff, A. A. Geil, acting for himself, and two other gentlemen of the same name, notified the clerk of the defendant, Mr. Park, that they wanted some good red clover seed, and was told by Mr. Park that they did not have it at that time but they would have it later. Later, by some means or other, the plaintiff had knowledge that the time had come for him to come in and get the seed, and went to the warehouse of the Iowa Seed Co. And the testimony is entirely silent as to any conversation there between A. A. Geil and Mr. Park, but the fact is Mr. Park produced seed in bags and gave it to Geil as and for what Geil had wanted and asked for, common red clover seed. The testimony does not disclose a single word in the conversation between A. A. Geil and Park at the meeting, but simply the fact Park delivered the seed to Geil and Geil put it in his wagon and drove home with it. This seed turned out not to be common red clover seed, but the seed known as mammoth red clover, which the plaintiff contends is less valuable. In fact, contends that it is of no value as a crop on this soil and in this latitude.

The petition in this case does not specify whether the claim is founded upon an express warranty or an implied warranty. Simply alleges he bought the seed for common red clover seed and was delivered the mammoth red clover seed and alleges the damage which followed.

It also appears, and without contradiction in the record, that the universal custom among dealers in seeds is, and for many years past has been, not to warrant seeds to be true to name or the quality of the seeds. It also appears, and without any contradiction in the record, that all the seed houses in America practically, with one exception of a man who sells nothing but flower seed, publish this custom of the seed dealers in all of their circulars and pamphlets and in practically all of their correspondence and in their billheads and receipts. In this case, it appears it has been constantly kept in all of the catalogues of the Iowa Seed Co., besides on placards about their store and warehouse, and embodied in their billheads which they use for the purpose of making the receipts, and was in fact printed upon the receipt given in this case to A. A. Geil for the money paid for this seed. In this particular case it reads as follows: "We exercise great care to have all seed sold by us pure and reliable, but it is mutually agreed between ourselves and the purchaser of this bill that no warranty is either given or required."

I need not undertake to discuss the proof here as to the damage sustained. It will be sufficient for me to say here now that if this case were to go to the jury there would be a fair question for the jury as to whether there was damage or not and what the amount of

Rawson's World Renowned Asters

We never had a dissatisfied customer with Rawson's Asters; we need no better recommendation. Rawson's Aster Seeds are fresh, plump and of unapproachable quality.

NOVELTIES FOR 1910

ASTER, AURORA. The most unique colored Aster ever introduced. Yellow, passing to old rose. The flower-petals first appearing are shaped similar to those of the "Comet" type and are a perfect yellow, but when the flower is fully expanded it takes on a tint of delicate fresh rose, which the artist calls "old rose." The plant grows fully 24 inches high in a pyramid form and produces any quantity of double blooms 3½ inches across. Pkt., 35 cts.

ASTER, CACTUS CELESTINE. A new form of petal, resembling exactly a true Cactus Dahlia. The color is a most delicate lilac of unusual beauty. Pkt., 20 cts.

ASTER, CROWN OF GOLD. A pure, delicate yellow flower, of good size and borne on stout stems, resembling in shape the Victoria Aster. Its color is original and did not exist heretofore. Pkt., 20 cts.

ASTER, RAWSON'S NEW GLORY.

(Introduced by us in 1909.)

The most perfected type of Giant Comet that can possibly be produced. The flowers invariably measure 6 inches across and are always double. In our whole field last year we could not discover a single plant which showed the least sign of disease. The long stems are graceful and not stiff. Colors are distinct and most desirable for commercial use.

	⅛ oz.	¼ oz.	oz.
Pure White	$0.60	$1.00	$3.50
Delicate Lavender	.60	1.00	3.50
Shrimp Pink	.60	1.00	3.50
Finest Mixed	.50	.80	3.00

ASTER, TRIUMPH OF PARIS. The nearest approach to a yellow aster. The form is a single comet with a quilled center. The petals consist of two rows of glistening white, while the quills are a clear yellow. Stems range 2 feet in height and produce the giant blooms singly. A grand aster for the florist. ⅛ oz., $1.00.

THE CREGO ASTER. This aster is the nearest approach to a chrysanthemum of any flower grown. It is unusually large in size, running 4 to 5 inches in diameter when well grown. The petals are about double the length of those in the older varieties, and are twisted and curled in such a manner as to give the blossoms an exceedingly beautiful fluffy appearance. The plants are large and vigorous, producing their blossoms on very long stems. The central stalk is very short, the branches breaking out very near the ground, are generally clean their entire length, needing little or no disbudding, making it the easiest variety to prepare for market I have ever seen. Our seed is direct from the originator.

Colors:	Pure White	$1.00	$3.50	$6.00
	Shell Pink. (Exact shade of Enchantress Carnation)	1.00	3.50	6.00
	Dark Pink	1.00	3.50	6.00

ASTER, RAWSON'S PINK BEAUTY. Unquestionably a grand and valuable florist aster and mainly so on account of its color and massive flower. The form of flower is a perfected Victoria which never shows a center. The color is so intensely beautiful that a graphic description can never do it justice. Delicate peach-tinted pink with a glowing shade of rich pink towards the center. No other aster can boast of such a pleasing combination. The stem of this flower is fairly tall and very erect. The plant branches from the bottom. ⅛ oz., 60 cts.; oz., $4.00.

ASTER, GEISHA. This strain originated in Japan and this can easily be seen in the formation of the flower. We were so much impressed with the attention the visitors to Rawson's Dahlia Farm paid to this fantastic type that we were actually forced to catalogue it and now believe it has a great future. The plant is extremely robust and produces stout stems growing very erect and carrying their gigantic flower formed of fine needle-shaped tubed petals around a conspicuous central disc. The very open center of this flower has an immense charm which appeals to the public, and as we must first of all please them, this is a point in its favor.

STANDARD VARIETIES

DAWN OF DAY

(Novelty, 1908.) The earliest flowering Aster in existence. Fine white, perfect in form and growth, long branching stems and flowers; often three weeks ahead of Queen of the Market. It is of branching habit and very full and if freely cut will continue to bear blooms until late in fall. See last week's Review, page 8. ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

RAWSON'S NEW MIDSUMMER ASTER.

This is our own introduction. We have received high praise from all growers. It has most graceful formed flowers, which are borne on immense long stems full two weeks ahead of the Late Branching Aster, and the plants will continue to bear flowers as late.

STANDARD VARIETIES—Continued

The colors are true and hardly any open-centered flowers among them.

RAWSON'S DAYBREAK. This variety must not be compared with the strain offered elsewhere and a trial will convince the ever-so-critical of its superiority. ⅛ oz., 40c; oz., $2.50.

RAWSON'S PURITY. (Pure white.) Of the same type as Daybreak, differing only in color, which is a pure glistening white. Just as free-flowering and symmetrical as Daybreak and undoubtedly unsurpassed as a white bedding variety. ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

ASTER. RAWSON'S LATE BRANCHING. Flowers are very large in size and borne on long, stiff stems. It is one of the best and most popular varieties for late flower markets.

RAWSON'S IMPROVED HOHENZOLLERN ASTER.

This type was introduced several years ago, but has never been offered to such perfection as we offer it now. It will, when known sufficiently, outrival the best florists' aster on the market today. Graceful formation of flower, of large dimension, borne on two-foot stems, well branched and good colors, are a combination of good points that can hardly be equalled by any other variety.

TWO NEW SALVIAS FOR 1910

ZURICH. The best salvia yet introduced. Plants grow very compact, show little foliage and bear heavy flower spikes, which are thickly laden with bright scarlet flowers. Flowers early in July and remains in bloom with later varieties, ⅛ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00.

SALVIA SPLENDENS. KING OF CARPETS. The best dwarf bedding Salvia on the market today, outrivaling even "Zurich." The plants branch from the bottom and to such extent that the main stem is never visible. All side branches droop completely to the ground, making the whole plant a perfect half ball of fire. The plant grows but 15 inches high and flowers even earlier than "Zurich." ⅛ oz., $1.00; oz., $6.00.

The veteran Salvia grower, Mr. F. Bedman, says: "About the Salvia, 'King of Carpets.' It has done very well considering the dry weather that we have had, and I consider it one of the grandest dwarf salvias that I ever saw."

it was. I will not undertake to pass upon that now because it was not raised to me properly within this motion. I would not pass upon it if it was because that is a question of fact.

There are questions of law raised to me here upon the undisputed facts in this case. A warranty as we know it in the law is always a contract. An expressed warranty is a contract either written or spoken which shows a mutual understanding between the seller and the buyer that the seller guarantees the goods sold to be of the kind named, or of the quality specified. Is there any express warranty in this case? Certainly not. On the contrary, a contract which must be a mutual meeting of the minds assenting to the same proposition at the same time between the two parties to that contract never could have been made in this case because it is certainly true under the record in this case, that the Iowa Seed Co. would refuse to execute a warranty on the quality of these goods. Further than that the record absolutely fails to disclose a single word spoken or written that might be construed or tortured into a statement of a warranty. Was there, then, an implied warranty? And here you strike a field where there is wind blowing in every direction as bad as this clover fell down in that field. There are decisions of the supreme courts of the states as badly diverted as the stalks of this clover were out in Geil's field.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania holds that whoever sells an article—whoever sells seeds, we will limit it to that. Whoever sells seeds by a name where the seeds are open to the inspection of the purchaser cannot be held to an implied warranty. And this decision was held in the case of seed wheat in which the court of that state recites the facts to be that nobody can tell the difference, by inspection, between spring wheat and winter wheat. An exact parallel of this case, in which the supreme court of Pennsylvania held, not only once but three or four times, that there was no implied warranty in that case because of the fact that the seller did not manufacture the article he sold nor grow it from the ground, that he was without power to distinguish by looking at the article as well as the purchaser was, without power, and therefore there was no implied warranty.

The supreme court of Montana has held the same thing and cited this case from Pennsylvania and followed it, at the same time quoting from learned writers on the subject of sales in which the writers disparage the opinion of the Pennsylvania supreme court.

The supreme court of the State of California has followed it without those comments.

The supreme court of the United States has said in substance that where there was a sale of personal property which is subject to inspection that are not manufactured to order nor produced by the vendor that there is no implied warranty.

The supreme court of Iowa has, upon other subjects than the sale of seeds, said substantially the same thing.

The supreme court of New York holds that there is an implied warranty in exactly the same transactions here produced.

The supreme court of Wisconsin says that such a transaction where a man sells seeds that are called for under the name of rape seed and sold mustard seed that he has committed a fraud. In other words, that there is an express warranty. The case from the supreme court of Wisconsin is not a well considered decision, does not decide the difference between an express and implied warranty and holds there was an express warranty in this case, which is absolutely wrong.

Now in the face of that I am required to say whether the law implies a warranty where this defendant purchased these goods in the open

"NOT HOW CHEAP— BUT HOW GOOD"

Horseshoe Brand Products

Horseshoe Brand Giganteum, size 7 to 9 inches, are imported to sell at $75.00 per 1000. There are thousands imported to sell at $60.00 to $65.00 but they are not worth more, and not always that. Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are raised from seed bulbs of prime quality, taken from only the healthiest plants in the fields. The difference in price is from 1 to 1½ cents each (not much, is it?), and one more flower from every 5 bulbs will pay it; so considering the risk taken in buying cheap bulbs, don't you think it is better to buy the best the market affords?

market from farmers and dealers who produced them, and sold them where this defendant could not possibly, by any care that he could exercise or any inspection that he could make, determine whether this seed was mammoth clover seed or common red clover seed.

Counsel for this plaintiff has contended that in morals and right the plaintiff ought to be permitted to hold this defendant to an implied warranty. That question of what is right and just and moral under these circumstances might receive a hundred different answers from a hundred different men. There is no rule, no guide. We are left here without guide marks from our own supreme court, and I am to choose between these two rules. Between these two rules, when we come to choose, we must take into consideration all the other facts and circumstances disclosed by the record in this case. One is that the defendant in this case has continuously and persistently refused to sell under a warranty and has persistently and continuously advertised to the world that it would not sell its goods under a warranty. Would it be right, moral or just under those circumstances, against the often and continuously published denial of its willingness to warrant, would it be fair or just or right by a construction of law to foist upon this defendant a warranty that it never would have made or never intended to make? I do not know what the average mind might think about it, but it does not seem to me that the circumstances of this case would justify the court in saying that there is an implied warranty in this case. I do not believe there is, and if the case depended solely upon that point I would hold there is no implied warranty in this case.

But it does not depend solely upon that question. Even though the transaction of this sale might have justified the holding that there was an implied warranty there are still other facts in this case that would control.

One of these facts is this, that there is a universally established custom among the seed dealers to sell without warranties, and to refuse to warrant, which custom has not only become generally known by their habits and conduct in specific cases, but by their publishing the fact to the world in every possible way. The supreme court of this state has held that when a man deals with the principal of a certain trade as, for instance, a railroad shipper, and there is a well established custom as to contracting for the shipment of freight, where they by custom, and by custom alone, limit a carload of freight to 20,000 pounds, that the snipper is bound to know that custom. Not only presumed to know it, but bound to know it, and his contract is read in the light of that custom and he is bound by it. What different is that from this case? Not any. But the plaintiff in this case contends that even though there was that custom they must bring home notice to this plaintiff of that custom. That is not the holding of our supreme court. They hold he is bound to know it, but even if the law should be held to be that they are bound to give him notice of it then what position is he in? He is confronted here with a receipt; he took what was given to him, and which he received for the money he paid for these seeds, containing this stipulation I read to you. He is exactly in the position of a man who took a receipt for money and was handed a notice in print. That notice is handed to him. If it was on a separate piece of paper and handed to him and he should read it, he would be bound by it, and I do not think even Mr. Allen would dispute it, although I think he tried to qualify it in some ways. If you serve notice on a man you are selling the goods without a warranty, he is bound by that, and in this case that is what happened, they gave him a receipt which read on its face there was no warranty, and they would not sell goods under a warranty.

E. S. MILLER

There is only one conclusion, whether or not there would have been an implied warranty without these other facts, this plaintiff was notified by the Iowa Seed Co. in this sale there was no warranty, and under those facts there is no question, when we come to the question of custom and the effect of custom and notice, we are not without guideboards even in our own state. The rule is well established in this state on those subjects.

It follows therefore, however unfortunate this may be to the parties who are plaintiffs in this case, which I regret as much as they do or anyone else, it follows under the law of the state, which I am bound to maintain and support, the same as you are, gentlemen of the jury, that this plaintiff cannot recover in this case.

Therefore that the motion to direct a verdict in favor of the defendants will be sustained, and it will be so ordered.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
Officers for 1909-10: Pres., F. H. Stannard, Ottawa, Kan.; Vice-Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-fifth annual meeting, Denver, June, 1910.

THE business in conifers in 1909 beat all previous records, but the present year is expected to be even better.

AT the date of the last report not one Rochester nurseryman had taken out a license to ship stock into the state of Texas.

THERE is a gathering of nurserymen at Rochester this week, for the meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society.

THE Port Arthur Nursery Co., of Port Arthur, Tex., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $40,000, by Fred Clark, R. H. Woodsworth and C. E. Smith.

WITH its latest addition to its storage facilities, the new building being 112x240, the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., feels pretty well equipped.

THE Richland Nursery Co., of Richland, Wash., has been incorporated, with a capital of $25,000, by C. F. Breithaupt, J. H. James, W. J. Breithaupt and J. C. Breithaupt.

THE J. W. Brandt Nursery Co. has been incorporated, with offices at Upper Falls, Md. The capital stock is $5,000, divided into fifty shares at $100 each, and the incorporators are John W. Brandt, Henry J. Raphel and Thomas S. Nichols.

WM. PITKIN, who has many years' experience in legislative matters, is of the opinion that the nursery interests will have a hard fight before them to secure an acceptable measure when congress gets around to the bill regulating the importation and inspection of foreign nursery stock.

HARRISON'S NURSERIES.

To most of those whose upbringing has brought them into contact with northern people and ways there is a great attraction in the people and customs of the south. One may long seek to gain this contact, but few more wholly delightful places could be found, perhaps, than Berlin, Md., the home of the nurseries of H. G. Harrison & Sons. Here, indeed, one receives a doubly pleasing experience, for the nurseries themselves are so well known that everyone who is in any way interested in growing trees feels that his experience is somewhat incomplete until he has visited this establishment.

Harrison's Nurseries cover somewhat more than 2,000 acres, on which millions of trees and plants are annually grown. The most excellent system prevails everywhere, and the hundreds of men who are constantly employed the year around are handled in the most business-like manner imaginable. Thorough cultivation is the watchword, and in the favorable soil and kindly climate of the Maryland peninsula the trees and plants make a wonderful growth. No pains is spared to produce the best roots and most shapely tops.

Visitors are always welcome at this big plant, and to those who have enjoyed the kindly hospitality of the management the recollection will always be a pleasant one. When possible, the officials of Harrison's Nurseries request that notice be given in advance of the coming of visitors, in order that arrangements may be made for escorting them about the plant.

Berlin is conveniently reached by the Pennsylvania railroad via Philadelphia, and also by way of Baltimore, including a delightful trip by steamer down Chesapeake bay for nearly fifty miles. Ocean City, Maryland's attractive shore resort, is nearby, and combines with the other resources of the locality to offer the traveler a tempting inducement to visit this justly famous garden spot of Dixie.

These illustrations show how we grow California Privet here at Harrison's Nurseries—and the way our Privet looks when planted as hedges along driveways, walks, etc.

We have the right soil and climate here for growing California Privet, and take unusually good care of our plants. We cultivate the blocks each week, and during the dormant period last year we cropped the smaller sizes—one- and two-year—back to the ground. These plants developed a wonderfully bushy growth in 1909 and are now in prime shape.

The upper view represents a block from which tens of thousands of plants will be dug this spring. This is the kind of Privet you'll be proud to furnish your customers—fine, vigorous, well-rooted and branched plants, every one. In fact, Harrison's California Privet is so strong and thrifty as to be almost a distinct and separate variety in itself.

California Privet Plants for Hedges

By the Rod or by the Mile

Whether you want enough Privet to plant a rod or a mile, we want to supply you; write us NOW for particulars and prices. Owing to the mild climate of our locality we dig our Privet only as ordered; this does away with the necessity of digging and storing through the winter. When shipments are to be made, the roots are carefully protected and wrapped, and in this condition, Harrison's Privet can be shipped to any distance without drying out.

Try us on an order for California Privet; we have nearly 300,000 plants in sizes varying from 4–5 feet, down to 12–18 inches. We offer in addition very attractive stocks of Barberry, Arborvitae, Colorado and Koster's Blue Spruce, Norway Spruce, etc., also Fruit and Shade Trees of all kinds. Particulars on request. PACIFIC COAST.

MARYSVILLE, CAL.—J. W. Evans, Jr., has leased, for a term of years, the Karr property on F street and at an early date will erect a large greenhouse and otherwise improve the grounds to facilitate his business.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather has turned somewhat warmer than it was for a couple of weeks, and although we are greatly lacking in sunshine, flowers are not as scarce as they were one year ago. There are plenty of carnations of all kinds, at from $4 per hundred down to half that price. Roses, especially Bride, Maid and Liberty, are in good shape and quantity, but Beauties continue to be scarce.

Bulbous stock that is outside grown shows the results of the heavy frosts, and many patches of Paper White narcissi have been practically ruined. Freesias have made their appearance and, although rather short of stem, bid fair to be better in a few days. The early varieties of daffodils are rather plentiful, and the same can be said of Roman hyacinths. Valley has been scarce since the first of the year and, from present indications, will not be plentiful for some little time. Violets still show the results of the cold spell in short stems and small flowers, but they are daily becoming better, and if we do not have another frosty snap they should be at their best in a few days.

Business continues to be only fair, with funeral work the best asset of the local dealers at present.

Various Notes.

Jas. P. Taylor is away on a trip to southern California. He will be gone for several weeks.

R. D. Hunter, recently manager of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, is in town.

S. R. Lundy, representing W. A. Manda, Inc., was interviewing the local dealers last week.

J. J. Kegley, well known around the bay cities, is at present residing in Los Angeles, Cal.

James Nevin, gardener to H. E. Bothin, of Ross Station, is showing some extra fine orchids in his houses at present. Two new orchid greenhouses will be added to this place during the coming season.

The May Seed Co. has issued its garden annual. It is one of the best publications of its kind on the coast. G.

C. C. Johnson and John Olsen, Jr., have entered into partnership and are carrying on business under the name of the Eureka Floral Co., at 2197 Union street.

SAN FRANCISCO POINSETTIAS.

Kindly let me know how poinsettias are grown in San Francisco, what soil they favor, and if you think they can be profitably handled without heat in the greenhouses. F.

In the vicinity of San Francisco it is necessary to have plenty of heat to grow the poinsettia with any degree of success. In fact, this is one of the chief requisites if the plants are expected to produce flowers of marketable size. In southern California, in the neighborhood of Los Angeles and San Diego, the poinsettia is looked on as a hardy shrub and treated accordingly, but this point of view does not hold good in the neighborhood of San Francisco. If F. is so situated that he can apply heat late in the fall, he will have no trouble in handling the young stock up to that time without it.

The method pursued here is as follows: The cuttings are taken from the old plants in several successions, the first about the end of May and from that time up to early in August. They are easily rooted in sand if kept shaded and well watered. When ready, they are put first into 2½-inch pots and allowed plenty of moisture, air and sprinkling. They are given a second potting about six weeks later, into 4-inch pots. This is followed by the same treatment as before, for about the same length of time, and they are then ready for the final shifting into 6-inch or 7-inch pots or pans. By this time they will need some artificial heating, and, with the advent of cool nights and short days in October, the house must not be allowed to get below 60 degrees at any time, if the best of blooms and foliage are desired. If the weather be excessively warm in the daytime, see that the plants are properly shaded, syringed and given plenty of air. There is little else to add, except to see that no mealy bug or insects of any kind infest the bracts or leaves. These are easily kept down if the foliage is kept sufficiently moist.

Properly cared for, the poinsettias have proven to be, during the last few years, the most profitable plant handled by the growers. Without artificial heat, however, it would not be possible, in the vicinity of San Francisco, to produce flowers sufficiently large or showy to make the growing of them profitable. The usual mixture of soil for poinsettias is about two-thirds fairly heavy loam and one-third well-rotted cow manure. G.

COLUMBUS, GA.—William H. Sauls, formerly in the florists' trade and for the last forty-five years a resident of this city, recently celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday. Though so far advanced in years, he is still hale and hearty.

READING, PA.—E. H. Beears & Son have purchased some property, consisting of a lot, 40x122½ feet, and a two-story building, at the northwest corner of Ninth and Court streets. The price paid is said to have been in the neighborhood of $20,000. The new owners have taken possession of one of the two store rooms in the building, where they are handling flowers and confectionery.

NEW ORLEANS.

Club Meeting.

The last meeting of the Horticultural Society was like the weather, a little chilly; still, the small attendance was made bright by two beautiful bunches of flowers spread on the tables—one of cut roses, sent by the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., and the other a few pots of Cattleya Trianæ from James Newsham. Some interesting remarks were made on these productions, proving without a doubt that New Orleans is coming to the front as one of the best flower centers of the United States.

Secretary C. R. Panter, in presenting the annual report of the finance committee, said that the society had never been so flourishing since its organization, the membership being nearly fifty strong, with a good surplus of dollars on hand. H. Riefeld was elected a new member.

Various Notes.

A. Alost, who has some of his houses planted in cucumbers, reports a good crop of this fancy vegetable, the price being a little lower than last year.

We had lately a visit from W. Rehm, who is going to travel the western part of the country as representative of W. A. Manda, Inc., Short Hills, N. J. Mr. Rehm was formerly established in New Orleans, where he had been all his life identified with the flower business. He is also a relative of several prominent florists in the city. He is certainly well qualified for his new position and his many friends in New Orleans wish him the best success on the road. M. M. L.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Trade is about the same as usual here. Carnations are of good quality; they retail at 60 cents and 75 cents per dozen. Roses bring $1.50 and $2 per dozen. Violets sell at $1 per hundred blooms, retail, and sweet peas at the same price. Paper Whites bring 50 cents per dozen. Some nice freesias are coming in, and these help out finely in funeral work. Greens are rather scarce just now. Funeral work is good.

Various Notes.

R. E. Nofftz is showing some nice Beacon carnations.

Wm. P. Peirce is still getting those nice, large violets from Harvey Briggs, near Dighton, Mass.

Wm. H. Davenport reports a good demand for Boston and Whitmani ferns.

Peter Murray will soon build another house, 30x160. Mr. Murray reports business as fine. This new addition will greatly help his increasing trade. Besides carnations, he grows large quantities of bulbous stock and flowering plants.

ADMIRATION

This carnation we offer to the trade as being one of the finest Carnations of any color that we know of up to date. Being a beautiful shade of pink, somewhat lighter than Winona, having that beautiful satin finish, always showing up well either in natural or artificial light. Plants benched in August are now coming into full crop, carrying from 10 to 20 buds. We have been cutting since September 10th. As a money maker you will find no equal.

The size of the flower is 3 to 3½ inches, excellent form, well built up in the center, with the petals so arranged as to make it stand the general requirements of a good fancy commercial variety. A grand keeper and shipper.

The habit is ideal, upright with no surplus grass and every shoot going into flower. Its freedom and earliness make it nearly the ideal carnation. The calyx is very tough and seldom bursts. Can be handled with great success either from the field or grown inside all summer. No one has to be an expert to handle this variety. It scored 86 points at the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis, January 27 to 28, 1909.

Price, $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.
250 at 1000 rate.

Send for catalogue of all other new and standard varieties of carnations. We are always pleased to have visitors come and inspect our stock and varieties.

DENVER.

The Market.

Trade last week was good, partly on account of the large amount of funeral work. Stock is not any too plentiful, especially in roses and carnations. Beauties are scarce and the quality is not to be compared with the stock of a few weeks ago. There has been a good crop of lilies and the demand for them is brisk, owing to the scarcity of other flowers. Other bulbous stock is not arriving in any large quantities. Tulips are short-stemmed, and as yet there are not many of them. Sweet peas are not plentiful; neither are mignonette or freesias. Daffodils are fine, but not enough are cut to go around. In fact, all kinds of stock were scarce Saturday, January 22.

Various Notes.

J. A. Valentine and Emil Glauber left Friday, January 21, to attend the carnation convention at Pittsburg.

The Colorado Florists' Club held its January meeting at T. M. A. hall Thursday evening, January 20, where they had refreshments and also listened to an interesting paper by William Horlacher, of the Barteldes Seed Co., on "Engelmanni and Conifer Spruce of the Rocky Mountains."

Mrs. Benson, wife of N. A. Benson, is very ill.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—Thomas Russell is the first to own an auto wagon here. He says it is the best investment he has made since branching out some ten years ago.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.—The Yuess Gardens Co. has given a contract to Mitchell for a compartment greenhouse, 35x152 feet. This completes a block, and will be followed by a range of larger size. The firm reports seed orders as most encouraging.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—The Lake View Rose Gardens have not completed the three-story building intended for both wholesale and retail purposes. Lawrence Cotter says they have passed through a most strenuous season, keeping everyone feeling cheerful. Welch Bros., of Boston, are New England agents for a large quantity of this firm's stock.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—It is said that Frederick Kuhnert, a florist on Pink street, is engaged in the construction of an airship built on an entirely new plan, which will carry considerable weight and yet will be comparatively small and will not be liable to accident from falling. Mr. Kuhnert is less than 32 years of age. He has unusual mechanical ingenuity, of which he has made practical use in the solving of difficulties in greenhouse heating.

Rooted Cuttings

SCARLET GLOW. (New) an extra good bright scarlet, a large flower and exceptional keeping qualities. It is in perfect health, and has that early and free flowering habit that characterizes a paying commercial variety. $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

PINK DELIGHT. Clear waxy shell pink. The variety that won over Enchantress at the A. C. S. meeting, Indianapolis, January, 1909. It has all the good points to make it the leader and with its unequaled substance, the best keeping and shipping carnation in the light pink class.

In 1909 we had no surplus stock to offer. With our large stock this season we are in a position to take care of all orders. $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

We have large stocks of White Perfection, Rose-pink Enchantress, White Enchantress, Winona, Enchantress, Aristocrat, Beacon.

Selected, healthy, well rooted cuttings, $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

We do not supply the cheapest, but the best.

FLORIST PETUNIAS

Every florist having a design trade has felt the difficulty of getting suitable flowers for the work during hot weather, when roses and carnations are barely presentable. After years of selection we have found three varieties of Double Petunias, No. 1, Pure White; No. 2, Clear Shining Pink; No. 3, Pure Lavender, which have made us more money for the labor expended than anything we have ever handled. The flowers are large, 4¼ to 6 inches in diameter, and as a keeper during hot weather beats anything we have ever tried, while the enormous quantity of blooms they produce makes the cost practically nothing. We find indoor culture suits them best. Price, 2-inch pot plants, $1.50 per doz.; one dozen of each of the three varieties for $4.00.

DETROIT.

The Market.

For the last week the whole city has been talking automobiles, and flowers had to take a back seat. It was auto show week, and there was not much evidence of its creating a demand for flowers. No doubt there were some flowers worn at the show in the evenings, and there were a few little social gatherings that called for flowers, but not enough to cut much figure.

Bulbous stock is now arriving in larger quantity and this has somewhat relieved other stock. Roses are quite a scarce article on this market at present. Some fine carnations are now seen, and the supply is more nearly equal to the call than a few weeks ago.

Various Notes.

Holland is well represented in America just now, by its many bulb salesmen. Many of these are still very young men, and one cannot help but wonder how they get around so well in a strange country, among people speaking an entirely different language. They are, on the whole, a most intelligent class and deserve credit.

There is less talk of disease among lilies this year, and the demand for Easter will no doubt be well met by the supply.

The president of the Detroit Florists' Club, Charles Plumb, has not been feeling well for some time. While the club can hardly afford to lose him for even one meeting, still we are pleased to hear that our president is planning for a long rest this summer, perhaps in Europe. Mr. Plumb is sending in some fine La Reine tulips, as well as a general lot of bulbous stock.

The palms and other plants used in decorating the beautiful fountain at the auto show were from the houses of Charles Warncke.

Olean, N. Y.—Dana R. Herron is growing a fine stock of rooted cuttings in the new range, completed last year. He says he can sell all he can grow through the medium of the Review.

Pittsburg, Kan.—Julius C. Steinhauser, of the Pittsburg Nursery Co., has decided that he needs more space under glass and is contemplating the erection of three 200-foot houses, one for carnations and two for lettuce. He is also largely extending his operations in the nursery department.

The Market.

A week of everything mean that winter has to offer did not prevent a fair business; it was not a big week, but there always was something doing. Stock of some kinds was scarce, Beauties and roses being the worst, but not short enough to put prices up any. Other flowers, such as tulips, trumpets, narcissi, lilies, freesia, carnations and valley, were plentiful, with violets a little overdone, so that the week did not give much trouble anywhere.

Various Notes.

Considering the fact that there are only a few carnation growers in this vicinity (you can almost count them on one hand), it is wonderful the amount of enthusiasm there was in advance of the A. C. S. convention; all seemed to want to make it a success.

Wm. Lauch, of New Galilee, Pa., celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday January 20 by visiting his old home in Carrick, where he used to grow the big carnations.

Chas. Crall sold his chicken farm, which was claiming a portion of his time, and will now give his full attention to the retail department of the I. S. Crall Co., Monongahela, Pa.

Frank Faulk has been a sufferer with the grippe.

Edward McGrath has assumed the management of the downtown store of H. L. Blind & Bros. He is well known to the trade, having been for years with R. C. Patterson and Breitenstein & Co.

The Zieger Co. is adding a thirty-five horse-power Winton auto, to be used as a van for decorations. This will make three machines for this firm.

Miss A. L. Wells, of Steubenville, O., has gone for an extended trip to California. Hoo-Hoo.

Hornell, N. Y.—The Wettlin Floral Co. reports good returns from its advertising in the Review, and is making up a choice stock for the coming season.

Peoria, Ill.—J. S. Brockway, an employee of Cole Bros., has become a public issue. He was so dissatisfied with the way the fire department handled a recent fire in which four lives were lost that he denounced the department on the spot and was arrested, which brought the matter into court.

SELECT FERNS For Fine Store Trade

We offer a grand lot of exceptionally well-grown plants of the different varieties of Nephrolepis, which will be found one of the best selling and most profitable plants that florists can handle. Our stock is in unusually fine shape, and we will guarantee it will please the most exacting, as it is exceptionally good value at the prices quoted.

Improved Elegantissima. The finest of all this type. It was introduced by us in 1905. This form of Elegantissima has been greatly improved, and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston, making it the most valuable fern of this type. Strong plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 to $9.00 per doz.—according to size; 8-in., $12.00 to $18.00 per doz.—according to size.

Superbissima. Introduced by us in 1908. A very unique and distinct novelty. Its distinguishing characteristics are its dark green foliage and dense growth. Fronds are very heavily imbricated, making them very dense and compact. Strong plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 to $9.00 per doz.—according to size; 8-in., $12.00 to $18.00 per doz.—according to size.

Bostoniensis, Piersoni, Whitmani, Scottii—Extra fine plants, 6-in. pots, $6.00 per doz.; 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

NOXALL FLORISTS' HOSE

Furnished in any length up to 500 feet, without seam, joint or connection, ½ and ¾-in. sizes. An exceptionally high grade greenhouse hose, manufactured with a double woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover. The double woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking. Noxall Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 lbs. per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this. Noxall Hose is made by the latest and most improved methods and its construction is the most important improvement made in the manufacture of rubber hose since Goodyear discovered the process of vulcanizing rubber 75 years ago. No hose made will give equal service for greenhouse use.

Greenhouse Heating.

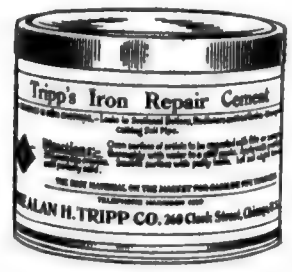
Now that the fuel famine is broken, it will be a pretty good chance to fill up the coal bins against another time of need.

A SIX-SECTION HOUSE.

I recently put up a greenhouse on Long Island. The owner claims that there is not enough heat. Although I did not design or estimate the radiation, but only did the work and followed plans, I am getting the experience of being the cat's paw. I would like to have you tell me what is wrong and how the trouble can be remedied.

The main greenhouse is 17x115 and runs from northeast to southwest. The north rafters are eight feet long and the south ones thirteen feet long. The north wall is eight feet high, entirely of concrete; the south wall is five feet high, and consists of three feet of concrete and two feet of glass. This house is divided into six sections.

Section No. 1, beginning at the east end of the house, is 17x24 feet, is for grapes and requires a temperature of 75 degrees. It contains fourteen runs of 2-inch pipes, twenty-two feet long, arranged in four coils, as follows: Two coils of one flow and three returns, and two coils of one flow and two returns; each is valved, as well as the two 5-inch mains. All these are placed in a grated pit, as the gardener said he could not have them above the floor, either in the center or against the walls. A heating engineer said, however, that they would not heat so efficiently as if placed in the ordinary way. This section has glass to the ground in the gable.



In the next four sections the coils are under the benches, and each of these four sections requires a temperature of 65 degrees. Section No. 2, fourteen feet long, for tomatoes, contains a 4½-inch main, two coils of four 2-inch pipes and two coils of two 2-inch pipes, each coil thirteen and one-half feet long. Section No. 3, twenty feet long, for cucumbers, contains a 4-inch main, two coils of four 2-inch pipes and two coils of two 2-inch pipes, all seventeen feet long. Section No. 4, twenty feet long, for asparagus and rhubarb, contains a 3½-inch main, two coils of four 2-inch pipes and two coils of two 2-inch pipes, nineteen feet long. Section No. 5, seventeen feet long, for strawberries, contains a 3-inch main, two coils of four 2-inch pipes and two coils of two 2-inch pipes, fourteen feet nine inches long.

The last section, No. 6, at the west end of the house, is twenty feet long, is for mushrooms and requires a temperature of 45 degrees. It contains a coil of three 2-inch pipes, nineteen feet long at the north wall; also three coils of two 2-inch pipes, sixteen feet eight inches long. The gable in this section is glass to three feet above the floor level, and is banked to the glass line.

There is also a violet pit in dispute, running across the gables of existing houses. It is divided into two parts by an entry, which has some heat. One section is thirty feet long, the other sixteen feet long, with a glass gable exposed.

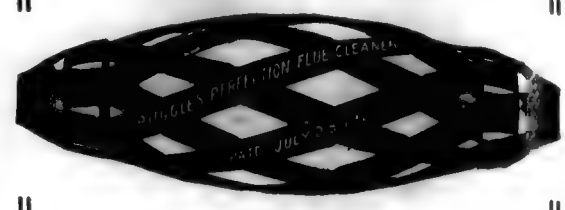
The house is reasonably sheltered, but, for the sake of argument, you might consider it exposed. The heating engineer formed his estimates on what he terms a "heat unit basis," instead of the accepted standards. H. G. M.

So far as can be judged from the data given, the amount of radiation is well adjusted to the requirements of the different houses, with the possible exception of the cucumber and strawberry houses, in which a part of the coils are two to three feet shorter than the houses and the radiation is deficient to nearly that extent, although, with the radiation mentioned, there should be little difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 65 degrees in the comparatively warm climate of Long Island. The flows and returns also seem to be of ample size.

Had the nature of the difficulty been stated it would have been easier to detect the cause, but in the grapery it is evident that the trouble is largely due to placing the heating pipes in a pit. Locating the coils above the surface, four feet from either wall, would greatly increase their efficiency.

While the details of the other coils and the connections with the mains are not quite clearly shown, it is evident that in each coil there is one 2-inch flow pipe and from one to five 2-inch returns. All of the pipes appear to have the same grade; that is, the flows are parallel with the returns and hence run uphill. This is evidently one cause of the trouble, as it impedes the circulation. The proper way is to use all of the pipes in a coil as returns, connecting the higher end of the coil as short as possible with the main flow; or, if it is preferred to use one of the pipes as a flow, run it downhill. The easiest way out of the difficulty is to raise the end of each flow pipe in the different coils three or four inches, or enough so that it will have a slight fall from the boiler. Of course, the air valve should also be changed to the highest point in the flow pipe.

If the remainder of the piping is properly arranged, this change alone should be sufficient to give a good circulation.



BOILER STEAMS POORLY.

We are in a dilemma with regard to our boilers. We have two boilers, each supposed to be eighty horse-power, internal fired, about thirteen feet long and similar in construction to the Scotch marine boilers. Both are installed exactly alike and have splendid draft. The newer of the two boilers has twenty tubes more than the old one, which has a water fire-box, whereas the new boiler has a brick box. The old boiler develops nearly two pounds of pressure per minute, thrown open to the whole plant of 50,000 feet, while the new boiler develops only three-quarters of a pound under similar conditions.

We should like to know how many feet an eighty horse-power boiler should heat, and also what is the proper way to test a boiler as to its capacity, under the conditions described. A. R. C.

It is customary to figure that a boiler will carry 100 square feet of radiation for each horse-power, and one foot of steam radiation will heat six square feet of glass to 60 degrees. Of course, this is altogether too high for very small boilers, but it should be safe for one of the size mentioned, and on this basis an eighty horse-power boiler should carry about 50,000 square feet of glass to 60 degrees in the latitude of Kentucky. One of the simplest methods of testing the capacity of a boiler is to find out the amount of water it will evaporate in an hour. In the case of horizontal tubular boilers, about four gallons is required each hour per horse-power.

From the data given it is not possible to tell what the trouble is. Although a boiler with a water jacket around the fire-pot will make steam more quickly than other kinds, it would not count materially in its efficiency, and as the other boiler has a larger number of tubes it should be even more effective.

J. B. Keller's Sons, of Rochester, N. Y., used up more than half a ton of newspapers around the holidays, owing to the cold snap, which made lots of wrapping necessary. Plants never sold better. They disposed of 5,000 poinsettias, showing the continued popularity of this plant. Begonia incarnata sold well. It is strange that this plant is not more largely grown, as it is a free and shapely grower, a free bloomer and of a pleasing shade of pink.

Colin Ogston, gardener at the Kimball Conservatories, at Rochester, has some grand specimens of Lælia superba in bloom. Cypripediums with double flowers are abundant here. A splendid collection of varieties, many showing the parentage of Spicerianum, are in bloom, and well worthy of a study. He says he is going to have more around exhibition time next season, nothing being too good after the grand success of the last show. Carnation O. P. Bassett is showing up finely here.

BUFFALO.

Charles Sandiford, gardener to J. J. Albright, at Buffalo, has a grand display of cyclamens of Excelsior type. When H. A. Barnard, of London, saw them recently, he acknowledged that the famous Bush Hill strain was equaled. The grapery and peach house are being started up.

Charles Hewson was giving the fine lot of cattleyas at the Wm. Scott Co.'s Buffalo place their weekly dip. They are his pets and, as he says, though he cannot spend so much time as when he cared for them years ago at the magnificent place owned by the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, they pay when blooms bring $1 each, as they did this season, with not enough of them to fill the demand. The Corfu establishment will be increased ere long, as the best stock seen at Cold Springs is being shipped from Alec. Willie Scott says the American grown ramblers were never finer than this year. They have a house potted up and trimmed back, starting up quite evenly and promising well for Easter.

Chas. H. Keitsch, of Buffalo, says wedding decorations are on the increase, denoting good times.

E. J. Spiess, of Buffalo, had the improvements to the Peach street place completed before the holidays, and is well pleased with the good job done.

John B. Milley is one of the largest growers of bedding plants in the Bison City. His stock of S. A. Nutt geraniums is running up into thousands.

WAYSIDE NOTES.

Thomas Mansfield, of Lockport, N. Y., is building concrete benches in place of wood, using cement and sand. He says ashes accumulate dirt and moss. His next house will be 25x100, of King construction.

Robert Ballantyne, gardener to Mrs. J. J. Thompson, at Canandaigua, made an exhibit at the show that called forth much praise for the houses by the lake.

Bellamy Bros., of Syracuse, N. Y., are getting into shape after several drawbacks. It was a case of hustle or Jack Frost threatened to close them up for the winter. It was a close call. Harry Bellamy is sick, but hopes soon to be around again.

Gustav Bartholme reports an excellent season, and is preparing for a banner spring trade. M.

Insure Yourself Maximum Crops of Excellent Quality by Feeding and Nourishing your Plants with

Evergreen Brand Fertilizer

Specially manufactured for growing Flowers, Ferns, Palms, Etc.

Its recommendation is based upon careful, extended and disinterested experiments, showing that this material is a nourishing, easily-available food for crops.

It consists of about half animal matter and half minerals, treated and refined; thus it is free from all deleterious substances and will not burn or injure the most delicate plant root, unless an extraordinary amount is applied at one time.

It is immediately available, and its effect upon most crops may be noticed within six days after its application.

It prevents the onslaughts of plant diseases or insect pests.

It will greatly benefit all greenhouse crops, notwithstanding the richness of the prepared soil, since it furnishes all the plant food elements in available forms and sufficient quantities to meet the needs of the plants.

It should receive careful attention, because its right use permits not only an economical utilization by the plant, but a control of its growth; it may be used in such a way as to change the natural tendency and thus improve it for specific uses; thus, in addition to the increase in yield which it produces, it enhances its market value.

Its uniform action seems to be to stimulate the capacity of the plant for absorbing water and developing foliage and stem growth, and to bring out numbers of new shoots, hence with roses and other flowering plants the best results are secured when this fertilizer is applied during the early growing period, as the energies of the plant are immediately concentrated upon developing its growth.

Can be used at any time during the growing season, dry or in solution.

Put up in 12-pound cans. Price, $2.00 each.

Sweet peas will be the principal item in cut flowers here, as all of the five firms here are coming along with an unusually big cut, to last well into the spring.

H. Wehrman has a grand lot of Spanish iris coming shortly.

William Amling is planning an addition to his plant, 27x350 feet. He will also change his heating system from hot water to steam, put up a water tank at an elevation of fifty feet, with a capacity of 20,000 gallons, and remodel the place generally.

The A. F. Amling Co. intends building an addition to the houses put up last summer. The addition will include four houses 25x300 feet each, and two houses 25x157 each; also a packing room and general service building, 36x135 feet, and a water reservoir, built of concrete, 20x50x6 feet, to collect all rain water and condensation from the greenhouse roofs, to be used for general watering. The new houses will be planted to Beauty roses when completed. This firm has 15,000 giganteum lilies coming along for Easter; they are at present about eight to ten inches high, and are expected to be ready just in time.

HOPKINS, MINN.—W. P. Cooper says the present winter has been an unusually hard one for vegetable growers, on account of the long continued cloudy weather. Crops which ought to have been on the market at Christmas were not ready for harvesting till about the middle of January. Now, however, the weather is becoming brighter.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

"Nothing doing," is the cry everywhere. There is no demand for flowers, except occasionally for funeral work, but stock is also scarce. Roses are at a premium. Good daffodils and colored tulips are rare, carnations and violets being the only stock which is at all plentiful. Sunshine favors the blooms, but slush underfoot keeps the people indoors, thereby decreasing transient business.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association took place on the evening of January 18, at the hall on Snelling avenue. The meeting was well attended and a little business was brought up, the chrysanthemum show of next November being the chief subject under discussion. The final report of the committee will have to be in for the next meeting, with the guarantee fund closed, and then we will know what we have to work on. The same committee was reappointed to look into the betterment of conditions at the state fair, namely, E. Nagel, Aug. Swanson and T. Wirth.

A committee was formed to appoint delegates each year to the yearly meeting of the State Horticultural Society.

The florists' ball, scheduled for February 16, has been changed to February 7, and will be held at the Arc Lodge hall, Thirty-first street and First avenue south, one of the finest and largest halls in the city.

M. E. M.

The Minneapolis Market Gardeners' Association held its midwinter picnic January 22, in Masonic Temple. The program was a most enjoyable one, including moving pictures, music and speaking in the afternoon, and a picnic supper and dancing in the evening.

WABASH, IND.—The Northern Indiana Association of Florists held its annual convention in this city, January 19. The members met in the Tremont hotel, as the guests of J. D. Conner, of the Conner-Ulsh Floral Co. John H. Shelton, of Rochester, Ind., who is the society's secretary and treasurer, had arranged a good program.

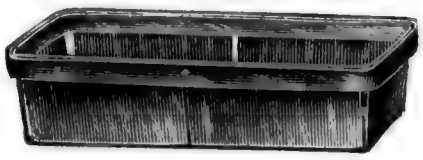
Paper Pots For Carnations



If you will root a part of your carnations in our Paper Pots, and after transplanting them watch the potted plants get ahead of the others, you will never be without paper pots again. In a potted plant the thin, almost invisible rootlets are neither bruised nor torn, and the plant keeps right on growing with absolutely no check in its growth. Let us ask you three questions: 1st Wouldn't you, other things being equal, rather buy potted plants? 2nd. If you advertise potted plants, other things being equal won't you get the business? 3rd. Can you, at the following prices, afford to do without paper pots? 2 inch pots, 75c per 1000; $3.00 per 5000; 2½-inch pots, $1.00 per 1000; $4.00 per 5000. Freight paid on 10,000 east of the Mississippi.

UP-TO-DATE GROWERS SPRAY

TO-BAK-INE LIQUID

And Are Not Troubled With

Thrips on Carnations

TO-BAK-INE Liquid in cans: ¼ pint, 60c; ½ pint, $1.10; 1 pint, $2.00; 1 quart, $3.95; 1 gallon, $15.00. Also put up in 10, 20 and 40-gallon casks with locked faucet, for large growers.

Directions for Use

Mr. A. F. J. BAUR, the well-known Carnation expert, writes: "If I had a carnation house ever so badly infested by Greenfly or Thrips, I would spray with To-Bak-Ine Liquid not stronger than three teaspoonfuls to a gallon of water, and six gallons of this solution would spray a house 25x100 feet thoroughly. I would rather spray with this strength every day for a few days than to make it stronger. Ordinarily one spraying in two days is enough for the first week, and thereafter once or possibly twice each week will be sufficient.

"I am satisfied that spraying is most effective in destroying these pests, as well as the least harmful to the plants or blooms.

"In order to derive the most benefit from the use of To-Bak-Ine, it should be used regularly throughout the season, as a preventive. We begin to spray our carnations with it regularly once each week as soon as they are well-established on the beds in the houses, about September 1 (or sooner if any insects show themselves), and we find that this will keep away Aphis, Thrips, and in addition to intelligent syringing it will keep down Red Spider. The number of blooms usually lost through the ravages of these pests can be reduced to a minimum by the use of To-Bak-Ine. These blooms saved will easily pay for the cost of spraying and have a good balance over. It is surprising how many blooms are discarded by growers, which could have been saved by the use of this preparation; when you figure them at 3c to 5c each during midwinter it runs up into money quickly.

"No grower can afford to be without this preparation and it will take merely a fair trial to convince anyone of its value. When I begin on To-Bak-Ine I find it hard to stop. I feel that I could not possibly say too much in its favor, especially as a remedy for Aphis and Thrips."—Signed, A. F. J. BAUR.

CENTRALIA, ILL.

As announced briefly in a recent issue of the Review, the business of J. W. Ross has been incorporated, under the name of the J. W. Ross Co., with a capital stock of $40,000.

The object of the incorporation is to secure capital for the accommodation of the flower and seed business of this concern, which has been growing rapidly since Mr. Ross located in Centralia six years ago. At that time only a local business was attempted, but the popularity of Mr. Ross's products was such that the business spread out rapidly, until in the year 1909 Mr. Ross sent out flowers, plants and seeds into twenty-seven states and made some shipments into Canada. Consequently he has found it necessary to make extensive additions to the plant, and for this purpose and the necessary advertising the additional capital provided will be used.

The incorporators are J. W. Ross, J. E. Karnes and John J. Bundy. The first board of directors comprises J. W. Ross, A. J. Ross and J. E. Karnes.

A downtown office and store have been established on East Broadway, for the more convenient handling of the business.

UTICA, N. Y.

Holiday trade was the best ever, in the opinion of Frank C. Baker, of Utica, N. Y. Combination baskets sold well. Flowering plants never sold better and Designer Wilcox was kept busy making up floral pieces.

William Mathews, of Utica, says that were he to begin over again, he would cover his place with glass for cattleyas alone. The demand is so good that never has a bloom gone to waste. His son, Harry, recently took to himself a bride, one of Utica's fairest blossoms, and is receiving congratulations from all sides.

William Pfeifer, of Utica, reports a good business, with plenty of work ahead.

Charles H. Roney was a caller at Utica in the interests of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia. Being a veteran grower and an expert at that, he makes himself entertaining with the boys.

West Hoboken, N. J.—The greenhouses of Oscar Boehler, at Summit avenue and Du Bois street, were seriously damaged by fire December 30. The loss was over $2,000. The fire, it is said, was caused by an overheated boiler.

that if, for any purpose, you desire NICOTINE SOLUTION containing more than 40% Nicotine (the percentage in our "Nico-Fume" Liquid, price $10.50 per gallon), we shall be pleased to supply same as follows:

45% NICOTINE SOLUTION at $11.81 per gallon
50% NICOTINE SOLUTION at 13.12 per gallon
60% NICOTINE SOLUTION at 15.75 per gallon

When ordered in lots of 5 gallons or over, SPECIAL DISCOUNTS are allowed from the above prices, as with our "Nico-Fume" Liquid.

Compare these prices with those of competing products! If you are paying more than the above basis for your Nicotine,

YOU ARE WASTING MONEY!

Also remember that the NICOTINE SOLUTION we offer is exceptionally free from impurities.

Among the many prominent users of "Nico-Fume" Liquid and of our NICOTINE SOLUTION are such experienced growers as the following:

Poehlmann Bros.	Dailledouze Bros.
Bassett & Washburn.	Julius Roehrs Co.
A. N. Pierson, Inc.	Cottage Gardens.
A. F. Amling Co.	Emil Buettner.

EASTERN NEW YORK NOTES.

There is good business at Albany, N. Y., but collections are rather tight, owing, no doubt, to the extremely cold weather. A thaw will loosen everything up.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, is planning a model farm on his eighty-acre range just inside the city limits, one of the finest locations on the trolley line.

H. G. Eyres, of Albany, does not propose to stay out next year at the annual chrysanthemum show. There will not be sufficient space to accommodate prospective exhibitors, judging by the plans already being made. "It was the best ad we ever had," is the general opinion of all who were there.

J. G. Barrett, of Troy, N. Y., is looking around for space to expand. Each year finds him crowded, and growing all the time. He says there is plenty of room at the top. (He means the top of the hill, of course.)

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, say it is a good thing to have the window frozen up now and then, especially when one cannot help it, as of late. Passers-by drop in to see what is inside, and the contrast cannot fail to appeal to them.

T. J. Totten, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., reports a big demand for his seedling red carnation, with the possible sale of the stock to a leading dealer. It will bring a good figure.

Henry Schrade, of Saratoga Springs, says Canary Bird is a whistler, or, in other words, a taker. It is a fine flower, and can safely be termed a yellow Enchantress.

Christian Dehn, of Saratoga Springs, is planning to assist again in beautifying the open spaces here next season. He is a hustling member of the civic committee.

M.

MUNCY, PA.—John P. Ring, who for a number of years had charge of the large establishment of Evenden Bros., at Williamsport, Pa., has purchased the Rose Hill Greenhouses, lately owned by A. B. Herbst & Son, in this place, and is now busily engaged in overhauling the boilers and getting the houses in shape for spring stock. Mr. Ring will do a general florists' business, dealing in plants, flowers, seeds and vegetables.

RAMBLING JOTTINGS.

E. A. Baker, of Ilion, N. Y., is completing the erection of a fine office and show room. This work was interrupted by the busy holiday season, which cleaned him right out of stock.

W. D. Snell, of Herkimer, N. Y., says he was never so busy as during the holiday season. He grows most of his stock at the branch plant at Mohawk, where he expects to add to the 30,000 feet now completed.

J. O. Graham, of Little Falls, N. Y., says Santa was extra good to him. Since the rush he has been kept busy receipting bills — some are not so fortunate. A promising son is learning the art of growing Lorraine begonias with Joseph Traudt, of Canajoharie, who is renowned beyond the valley of the Mohawk for his success in the culture of this plant, which was even more popular this season than ever before. It is a climb up to Mr. Traudt's place, but one feels well repaid with a visit, and the grand scenery surrounding his snug place is worthy of note.

H. C. Hatcher, of Amsterdam, N. Y., will dispose of his place across the river to a prospective wholesale grower, who can find a good market here for everything grown. The increasing plant at Hoffmans, situated between Amsterdam and Schenectady, necessitates this step. George Hatcher says he finds the demand for orchids steadily increasing. At the time of my visit he was putting up a corsage bouquet, consisting of violets, valley and cypripediums, that would bring smiles of pleasure to the cheeks of the fair wearer.

Thomas Barson, of Johnstown, N. Y., has the sympathy of the craft with him in his sickness. He was down with bronchitis just at the busy time. His better half did herself proud, putting in her best work, and pulled through in good shape.

Robert Main, of Gloversville, N. Y., expects to retire from our attractive profession after the spring rush. The southern fever has a strong hold on him at this season of the year, but old Boreas will soon let up and, as Fred Goldring remarked at Slingerlands, N. Y., a day or so previous, while testing a new Lord & Burnham boiler with the thermometer 10 degrees below zero and a biting wind blowing at the same time, "If we had no winter we would not know what summer was." Perhaps he has a relative in the coal business and rejoices at his success.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A greenhouse on the grounds of Trinity College, at Harewood and Michigan avenues, has been destroyed by fire. The house was erected last fall and was well stocked with plants.

Get the Benefit of Big Prices in the early market

The secret of success in market gardening is earliness. The Sunlight Double Glass Sash makes it easy to have the earliest and best plants. They will be ready as soon as the field is ready to receive them. The resulting crops will get the top-notch prices.

Sunlight Double Glass Sash lets in all the light all the time. Mats and boards for covering are no longer needed saving expense and labor.

Throughout the entire day the plants get benefit of the stimulating sunlight and earlier, better crops result.

The two layers of glass do the work. A 5/8-inch cushion of dry air between acts as a transparent blanket over the plants and protects them even in zero weather.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

VALENTINE'S AND THE FLORIST.

Business Comes to Those Who Plan for It.

One of the special flower days which has developed rapidly in the last few years is February 14, Valentine's day.

It is worth while noting right at the start that the increase in Valentine's business, like the increase in Christmas trade, and the increase in sales in season and out, has come to those retailers who have worked for it. An advertiser recently remarked, "You get out of a business just about what you put into it." There is more truth than poetry in that, and it seems specially applicable to the retail flower business. The retailer who puts thought and effort into his business, takes out of it not only profit but satisfaction. A good many people are content with profit, but those who get satisfaction as well as profit find business is a pleasure instead of drudgery.

To get profit out of the Valentine's business, thought must be put in right now; don't delay another day: Lay your plans for advertising. Figure out your window decoration. Take account of the boxes, ribbons, violet ties and other requisites you have in stock and get off an order at once for those you need. Make sure of your supply of seasonable plants and cut flowers. Consider your delivery facilities.

When these things are in shape, then, and only then, are you ready for the selling end.

The Violet the Flower of the Day.

These special flower days mean much to those who prepare for them and advertise them, and they mean little to those who simply sit with folded hands. First of all we must have something to sell, and for special days it must be something suitable to the occasion. There has been a wonderful increase in the sale of violets for valentines. Last year all the leading stores in every city through the country sold thousands of violets, and as a general thing found their supply inadequate to meet the demand. The better class of stores now put up their violets in most elaborate fashion. Reproduced on pages 8 and 9 are illustrations showing one of the ways in which the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, puts up its corsage bunches. Fleischman calls the dress shield a lacette, which is as good a name as any and a great deal better than calling it merely a shield. One of the illustrations shows the back of the bunch made up for delivery. This is the back of the shield and it will be noted that the Fleischman name appears on it. The other picture shows the front of the bunch with the lacette just peeping over the edges, with the ribbon and corsage pins, all complete, ready for going into the special violet box.

George Wienhoeber, manager of Fleischman's, claims the credit for having invented this corsage shield that he calls the lacette. He says the first one he ever saw was made in the Fleischman store to meet the needs of their trade, but now practically every ribbon house carries a large line of these, just plain shields and more elaborate ones with lace edging.

Trade-mark Your Work.

When the supply houses began offering these corsage shields to florists, offering to stamp the florists' name in gold letters on the back, a good many of the better-class stores were afraid to take advantage of the advertising opportunity. They were afraid it would not please their hightoned patrons to find an "advertisement" on the back of the bouquet. Mr. Wienhoeber, when asked about this feature, said that the name on the lacette is just like the name on the box, or the uniform on the messenger, or like the fancy delivery outfit; the same thing which prompts many people to send flowers from the best known society florist of the town makes the leading florist's name or "trade-mark" a satisfactory addition to the dress shield. In other words, if the florist has established a reputation, people who send gifts are glad to have the florist's name associated with them.

Use Special Violet Boxes.

Of course, it is not every store that sells high-priced flowers for St. Valentine's day, but the special violet boxes are so cheap that any florist can afford to use them, and they never fail to add to his trade. People who send gifts as valentines insist that they must be delivered in the most attractive shape. A special box that will hold fifty violets can be bought for $2 to $3 per hundred, and from those prices the range goes upward to where the boxes cost as much as you please and cannot be "thrown in" with the sale of a bunch of flowers. Last year possibly the most popular box was the red heart-shaped one, which is available in several sizes. As the box-makers do not care to carry these over from one season to another, the use being practically limited to St. Valentine's day, not many were made up in excess of early orders, so that at the last moment it was impossible to find these heart-shaped boxes. This year a large early business has been done in them. While the combination of red with the blue of violets may not appeal to the color critics, it seems to touch the public eye, and there is no box which is more effective for trimming St. Valentine's day windows.

Advertise If You want Business.

Every retail florist ought to do more or less regular advertising in the best newspaper in his town. Gradually retail florists are coming to appreciate the enormous power of well directed advertising and, as they awaken to its possibilities, they are coming to employ the newspapers more and more. S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, is one of those who prefers to use liberal spaces at special seasons, instead of regular daily or weekly advertisements. Reproduced on page 7 is his 1909 St. Valentine's day advertisement. It appeared in the best newspaper in Buffalo for a couple of days before St. Valentine's and W. A. Adams, of the Anderson establishment, says it aided materially in increasing the business for that day, which exceeded all previous records. The Review commends the advertisement not only for its good display, but for the fact that it contained a price list. It often is argued that the people who buy flowers are persons of means and are not so much interested in prices as are the customers of the department stores. This may be true of the trade of a few high-class stores, but the average florist will find that he cannot increase his business so fast in any other way as by educating the people to the fact that flowers are not prohibitive in cost. Where one customer may be turned away by any "cheapening" of flowers through advertising their prices, there are hundreds who will be awakened to the fact that they can afford these best-of-all valentines.

Valentine's day is February 14. This year it falls on Monday, a little disadvantageous for selling, but counterbalanced by the fact that many valentines will be sent on Sunday, as well as on Monday. Plan to do something toward exploiting flowers as valentines, and plan it now. Then when St. Valentine's day arrives devote your best energies to seeing that the customers get their flowers in absolutely the best condition of which you are capable. When customers are pleased, the florist finds satisfaction in his business, and with satisfaction comes profit.

McKINLEY DAY.

Since McKinley day, January 29, has ceased to be considered by florists as a flower holiday justifying a raise in prices it has been growing steadily in value to those who make an effort to increase their sales that day at regular prices; indeed, quite a few stores that usually get 75 cents a dozen for carnations have found it good business to sell them at 5 cents each January 29. This year, as usual, Gen. Robert P. Kennedy, head of the Carnation League of America, sent out notices to the press calling attention to McKinley's sixty-eighth anniversary and the custom of honoring his memory by wearing "the people's flower." This, with what advertising the florists did and the work of some other patriotic bodies, made a quite noticeable call for boutonnieres, more in some places than in others, but welcome business wherever it showed. In no wholesale center was the carnation business last week any the less because of McKinley day, and it is in poor taste to belittle the day just because it didn't amount to as much as was expected the first year or two. Have it understood that carnations can be had at wholesale at not over $3 per hundred, and the retailers will in a few years work up McKinley day to a point where there will be a demand for every flower available.

BOSTON RETAIL BUSINESS.

Now that the activities of the social season are at their height, it is interesting to note one thing in which the winter of 1909-10 is achieving a record which has not been equaled by any other winter of the past ten or fifteen years. This is with respect to the increase in the use of flowers for personal adornment at house affairs, at the opera and the theaters and at large balls and parties. William E. Doyle, Thomas F. Galvin, Hoffman, Newman, and, in fact, all the leading florists, declare that more orchids, for instance, and the same is true of other expensive varieties of flowers, have been used this winter than in any preceding two; that bouquets in general are on a grander scale as to size and richer as to blooms used. Good flowers constitute the rule, and, of course, the cost is enhanced. But as a compensation for the additional outlay in money there is the decidedly enhanced esthetical gain. The custom of floral New Year's remembrances is growing year by year. The opening day of the present year witnessed greater activity among Boston florists in filling such orders than any former one within their memory. The gain was in the best varieties, such as orchids, lily of the valley, gardenias and other like choice flowers. Good roses also have been much used. It is expected that Valentine's day will see another large increase, violets and sweet peas sharing in the gain.

DELIVERING CEMETERY ORDERS

In the Review of January 13, page 5, J. Dunstan asks the readers of the paper for suggestions regarding the delivery of cemetery orders in cases where there is no regular attendant to take care of the grounds or receive the flowers, and where the florist, after losing valuable time in hunting for the right lots, is not unlikely to discover, after all, that the flowers have been misplaced or afterward stolen. In reply I have the following idea to offer:

Provided a record has been kept of the burials, I would suggest that Mr. Dunstan go to the superintendent or person having the cemetery in charge, borrow a map of the grounds and make a copy of it or have one made, to be retained for his own use. Then his customers could give him their lot number or point out the lot or grave to him on the map. If no record of the burials has been kept, however, then Mr. Dunstan is in serious trouble. R. GRAY.

DEPARTMENT STORE SCHEME.

Baltimore retail florists are feeling the competition of a department store that is pushing for business for its florists' department at prices which can not possibly afford a profit, to itself or anyone else. Few department stores are in a position to sell flowers, quality for quality, any cheaper than the average florist can, so that florists would not object to the big stores' flower departments were it not that in not a few instances they are run without thought of profit, merely to show how cheap their prices are, for advertising. Where the flower department is run solely for profit, as it is in a few high-class department stores, the florists welcome such competition, for the department store is an educator of the public. The Baltimore store referred to, however, comes pretty near crape chasing. All death notices in the local papers are followed up by mailing a circular headed, "Plants and Flowers Within the Reach of Everyone; if advertised elsewhere, it's cheaper here." Then there are prices on some staple articles, like "palms, 9c up," but the real meat in the cocoanut is the list prices under the head, "Leave your order for funeral designs of artificial or natural cut flowers." These are some of the prices: "Crosses, $1.50 up; gates ajar, $2.50 up; anchors, 75c up; wreaths, 39c up; crescents, $1.50 up; pillows, $1.29 up; chairs, $2.29 up; sago palm bouquets, $1.50 up; palls, $5 up."

Think of a wreath at 39 cents! What a credit to the florist it must be! And a pall at $5! The Baltimore florists wonder what people think when, after receiving this circular, they visit a flower store and are asked from $5 up for a wreath, or from $50 to $300 for a casket cover. The REVIEW ventures the opinion that, with the majority of flower buyers whose trade is worth having, whatever the people think is disparaging to the department store. Of course some of the smaller stores may be hurt, but not the leaders. Any person of sense knows that a 39-cent wreath is not worth having, and no one goes to a notoriously "bargain-counter" store when wanting something good.

NOVEL ADVERTISING.

E. R. Tauch, a retail florist of Marquette, Mich., sends the REVIEW the following new plan for advertising, which he uses in addition to the daily papers:

He has had printed 1,000 picture postcards for each month of the year (12,000 cards in all). Each thousand cards carries a picture that is particularly applicable to the month for which it is issued and a sentence or two calling attention to the name, address and telephone number of Mr. Tauch's store, which is printed at the bottom of the card.

These postcards are distributed in the dormitories of the Normal school, and, as they are quite attractive, the students are glad to send them to their friends, thus giving pretty complete distribution to the advertisement at no cost for stamps.

The high schools might easily be used in such cities as have no normal school.

EARLY ASTERS.

I intend to grow some asters in the greenhouse and want to have the flowers by June. When must I put in the seed? What varieties are best adapted for culture under glass? What distance apart should they be planted? How many flowers should be allowed to the plant to produce first-class blooms? H. S.

I am afraid you cannot get any of the asters to flower satisfactorily as early as June. Sow seeds at once of such varieties as Queen of the Market, one of the most reliable; Hohenzollern and Early Comet. I have found the first named the most generally satisfactory. Plant in the beds or benches ten inches apart each way. For general retail trade we would not disbud or reduce the number of flowers at all, except in the case of Comet or American Branching. All depends on how fancy a price you can get. I have grown one flower to a plant, as you would mums, and retailed them at $1 per dozen, but this does not pay as well as having a larger number of smaller flowers.

When disbudded to a single flower, of course, plants can go as close as six inches apart, but the undisbudded ones will give you the most money. Treat as you would chrysanthemums in regard to soil, watering and general culture.

C. W.

[In the REVIEW for January 20, page 8, there was a note telling how a reader planted in February and had asters in bloom in May.—Ed.]

SEED FLATS.

The time is rapidly nearing when quantities of seed flats will be needed. Do not wait until the seedlings are ready to prick off and then wish you had remembered to make a lot of flats while the weather was inclement and work less strenuous. Probably a large part of last season's boxes will be all right if they have been kept under cover. Some may need a new end or side to make them as good as ever.

Get lumber to make as many boxes as you think you will require. From three to four inches is a suitable depth, with twenty-four to thirty inches for length and twelve inches as a suitable width. Everything depends on the sort of shelf there may be. In some cases they can go wider, but it is unwise to make them so long as to be needlessly heavy to handle. Leave a half-inch space each side of the middle bottom board, for drainage. This is better than making a tight bottom and then having to bore drainage holes. All flats should have ample drainage. The better they are drained, the healthier will the plants be.

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—George Batty, of the Beebe greenhouses, has opened a branch store on Main street. The new store is conveniently located and will be a great aid to Mr. Batty's business.

CONVENTION AFTERMATH

THE PITTSBURG BANQUET.

A Milestone in Trade Annals.

Pittsburg is a town where things never are done by halves. It was only a few days ago that the newspapers of the country were full of the banquet of the steel kings, that cost $100 a plate. Well, it was the same room in which the steel men dined that the Pittsburg Florists' and Gardeners' Club selected for the dinner to the members of the American Carnation Society, January 28, marking the close of the nineteenth annual convention. The Carnation Society is accustomed to being received with open-handed hospitality, and the Pittsburgers were anxious that their welcome should not suffer by comparison with what other cities have done, so they planned their banquet on a scale that set a new milestone in the annals of the society. The flowers from the exhibition tables were still in perfect condition, having kept in a way that was the marvel of many, and the Pittsburg retailers employed the prize-winners in decorating the twenty-five or thirty round dinner tables, each seating ten. Of course each store did its best, using one variety of carnation to a table, with an abundance of stock for use at the ends of the room, and the result was not only the most elaborate decoration the carnation men ever had seen, but probably the most elaborate decoration ever put up in which only this one flower was used.

There was hardly a vacant seat in the room, the local florists attending in numbers to welcome their guests, many being accompanied by their wives and daughters. The presence of the ladies added greatly to the brilliance of the scene and the enjoyment of the occasion.

Having provided so bright a setting, an elaborate menu was served. The copper-plate cards were examples of the best in printers' art, and the courses as follows:

MENU.

Blue Points
Celery Radishes Olives
Cream of Chicken
English Sole Tartare
Sweetbread Patties French Peas
Punch Benedictine
Filet Mignon Bearnaise
Roasted Potatoes French Mushrooms
French String Beans
Pittsburg Salad
Biscuit Tortoni Fancy Cakes
Cheese and Toasted Crackers
Coffee Cigars

While the dinner was in progress the Carnegie Tech Glee Club, a chorus of some thirty-five voices, sang a long program of college, drinking and popular music. Interspersed among the three minute talks which followed the cigars were solos by Miss Robinson and Mr. Mason, the former especially having a voice so pleasing that Toastmaster Wm. Falconer was forced to forbid further encores in the interest of adjournment before breakfast. The musical program merits closer attention than is possible when "It's always fair weather when good fellows get together."

The Toasts.

The program of talks was as follows:

"The Carnation Society; what it is good for and what it has done," by President Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.

"The S. A. F.; what it has done for us all," by ex-President J. A. Valentine, Denver, Colo.

"Our Boys; what are we going to do with them?" by P. S. Randolph, Pittsburg.

"The Pittsburg Club; what it has done for us," by E. C. Reineman, Pittsburg.

"The National Flower Show; what it will be and what it will mean to the craft," by F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.

"Carnations; an experience in politics," by Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

"The Trade Press; its importance, its aims and its uses," by H. B. Howard, Chicago.

"Our Ladies; whatever would we do without them?" by W. J. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind.

"The Pittsburg Press; what it did for us and what we should do for it," by Arthur G. Burgoyne.

"Our Ambitions, or what are we aiming at?" by Fred E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind.

"Canada; hands across the border," by J. A. Brashear.

"The Old Boys; what we owe to them," by Robert Craig, Philadelphia.

"The Advantage of Science Coupled with Practice," by L. B. Judson, Ithaca, N. Y.

"Our Visitors; we are loath to see them go," by T. P. Langhans, Pittsburg.

Report of the committee on final resolutions, by Wm. P. Craig, Philadelphia.

Presentation of Medals.

Before the introduction of the toastmaster, President Herr presented the A. C. S. medals to the winners; the gold medal to F. Dorner & Sons Co., who had won it on Hoosier Lad; the silver medal to R. Witterstaetter, on President J. A. Valentine, and the bronze medal to Dailledouze Bros., on White House. Fred Dorner said the pleasure of getting the premier award at an A. C. S. show is something you must experience, as it cannot be described. Mr. Witterstaetter said he really did not get the medal he was after, and Eugene Dailledouze said it was some consolation to know the others had to go a bit to get their gold and silver medals and that there were some splendid entries that got no recognition at all.

A telegram was read, as follows:

The Boston Florists' and Gardeners' Club, at its annual dinner, congratulates the American Carnation Society on its successful convention. We have put the pork and beans to soak and look forward to the meeting in 1911.

The Three Minute Talks.

The speakers were asked to talk no more than two or three minutes, which precluded any serious attempt at speech-making. F. R. Pierson made some little attempt to show the scope of the Second National Flower Show, the success of which he has so deeply at heart, and said that he sees in the exhibition to be held at Boston in March of next year an opportunity to lift horticulture to a higher plane than it heretofore has occupied in the United States. He said the committee is gaining the hearty coöperation of all the horticultural interests and has a guarantee fund of over $10,000, but wants all the assistance it can get. The Chicago show he characterized as ably managed to make a profit in the face of expenditures aggregating $25,000. He said the cost and work incidental to a big show demand much united effort. At Boston, he said, we can get together a larger and more diversified collection of plants than at any other place in the United States, and give the public and the trade a higher appreciation of the dignity of horticulture; demonstrate that it is a calling any man may be proud to follow.

President Herr said it was seventeen years since the Carnation Society first met in Pittsburg, with a show about one-third as large; he hoped in another seventeen years his boy would be occupying his shoes and able to report as much progress.

J. A. Valentine said it is impossible to separate the work of the S. A. F. and its kindred societies, but that the greatest good arising from them is the improvement in the ethics of the trade; the better we come to know one another the more we think of each other.

In introducing A. G. Burgoyne, of the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, Mr. Falconer said the Pittsburg papers had been kind to florists and things horticultural. "Newspaper reporters write a lot of nonsense about us," he continued, "but it is our own fault; the newspaper prints what the reporter is told; fill him up with nonsense and what he writes will be ridiculous; tell him facts and what he prints will be a credit to us." Mr. Burgoyne said that in his mind music, poetry, painting and flowers are inseparably associated, but with one difference: Day by day we see the public prints full of the entanglements of this or that great musician, of the matrimonial infelicity of some poet, or the scandalous conduct of a well-known painter—but we never by any chance read of the elopement of the millionaire florist with the chorus girl. This the speaker credited to the refining influence of flowers. "The man in the greenhouse seems to be safe," he said. Mr. Burgoyne then read the poem he had written for that day's paper, as follows:

Where the sign, "Fort Pitt," suspended
From a palace vast and splendid,
Offers standing invitation to the traveler to step in,
If today you chance to enter,
Guided by some knowing Mentor,
You will find a bower of loveliness to Paradise akin.
There in friendly contest meeting
And for honors high competing
Are the kings of horticulture, with ambitious pride aglow,
Each his best endeavor making
To achieve a record-breaking
And astounding grade of merit at the Prize Carnation Show.

Oh, the gems that they're displaying,
By their wizardy essaying
To excel the work of nature, as apparently they do,
Since their art today discloses
Blooms as fine as Beauty roses
And with nuances of color which Dame Nature never knew.
There's the glorious Perfection,
With its snowy-white complexion,
And the Mrs. Thomas Lawson, with its rose tint, and, oh,
There in all its gay bravado
Is the golden El Dorado,
And the scarlet Craig illuminates the Prize Carnation Show.

There's the pink Enchantress beaming,
And the Daheim darkly gleaming;
There's the Victory, the Manley and the daint Queen Louise,
And a host of new ones render,
By their fringed and penciled splendor,
Joy unbounded to the connoisseur who raves o'er blooms like these.
And our town is in the running;
Hands that never lose their cunning
Vindicate the fame of Pittsburg and let all our neighbors know
That we're up in floral science.
Hence with joyous self-reliance
We bid welcome to all comers at the Prize Carnation Show.

We must make carnation growers of our boys, said P. S. Randolph, for the flower is perfect and all the younger

And with nuances of color which Dame Nature never knew.
There's the glorious Perfection,
With its snowy white complexion,
And the Mrs. Thomas Lawson, with its rare tint, and, oh,
There in all its gay bravado
Is the golden El Dorado,
And the scarlet Craig illuminates the Pittsburg Carnation Show.

There's the pink Enchantress beaming,
And the Daheim darkly gleaming;
There's the Victory, the Manley and the dear Queen Louise,
And a host of new ones render
By their fringed and penciled splendor,
Joy unbounded to the connoisseur who sees o'er blooms like these.
And our town is in the running,
Hands that never lose their cunning
Vindicate the fame of Pittsburg and let all neighbors know
That we're up in floral science,
Hence with joyous self-reliance
We bid welcome to all comers at the Pittsburg Carnation Show.

We must make carnation growers of our boys, said P. S. Randolph, for the flower is perfect and all the young generation will have to do will be to take things easy in the finest business in the world. But the toastmaster said the real reason why Mr. Randolph was making florists of his boys is that out of his greenhouses and store he is making more good, clean money than half the lawyers and doctors in Pittsburg are able to make at their professions.

E. C. Reineman said every town, no matter how small, should have a florists' club, to make for better acquaintance and put an end to petty jealousies. He gave Mr. Falconer a large part of the credit for the success of the Pittsburg club.

According to W. F. Kasting, the carnation is a potent political argument. He told of the Buffalo man who gave carnations and won the nomination, but did not give them afterward and lost the election, referring also to Peter Reinberg's fame as the carnation alderman of Chicago.

W. J. Vesey told some stories about the ladies and said their presence is one of the pleasantest things about the A. C. S. banquets.

F. E. Dorner said that what we are driving at, other than gold medals, is gold dollars, and that the greatest stimulus the trade has is the reward to be won by pleasing critical women.

Prof. Judson, of Cornell, took occasion to pay his respects to Burbank in a fashion that would have made the occasion a pleasant one for Patrick O'Mara, had not that gentleman's business engagements compelled him to continue his journey.

Silver-tongued Robert Craig, one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the trade, spoke of the past and the men who are gone, and T. P. Langhans, of Pittsburg, expressed the pleasure the local people had felt at having so many and so appreciative guests, and their regret that the meeting, so long in anticipation, was so soon over. The applause he received showed how well the evening had been enjoyed.

W. P. Craig presented the final resolutions, setting forth in due form the society's sense of obligation for the many courtesies extended it and its members during their stay in Pittsburg.

Jottings.

Wm. Nicholson went west after the convention, visiting the Dorners and others. Mr. Nicholson has a daughter living in Chicago.

Nic Zweifel and H. V. Hunkel, the Milwaukee delegation, did not wait for the banquet, but made an early start for New York after they found they would have to wait till 1911 for a carnation convention for the Cream City.

C. L. Washburn said he seldom had seen such a showing of carnations as he found in the greenhouses of the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co. Mr. Burki told him that they cut 50,000 flowers—one flower per plant—Christmas week, and an average of about two flowers per plant for the month of December.

P. O'Mara made the carnation meeting an incident on his way to Springfield, O.

It is stated that the Robert Craig Co. has propagated 25,000 plants of its white seedling, Norwood, which is to be introduced next year. That would seem to indicate a fair degree of confidence in the variety, for one can meet a pretty good demand for cuttings if he has 25,000 plants to work from.

E. G. Hill was missed. He has been troubled with lumbago this winter.

Most of the convention visitors found time to call at the leading retail stores, of which Pittsburg has several that compare favorably with any in the country. The third-story salesroom of the A. W. Smith Co. seemed to impress people as much as anything they saw. Mr. Smith told some of his visitors that the Bride rose can no longer be sold while White Killarney is in view.

Geo. W. Jack, of Springfield, Ill., went to Baltimore after the carnation meeting, to spend Sunday.

Peter Olsem, of the Chicago Carnation Co., went from Pittsburg to Waynesboro, Pa., to visit the establishment of Henry Eichholz, whose pink sport of Enchantress named Washington will be the Joliet concern's next year's introduction. It is the exact shade of Lawson as staged at Pittsburg, and the Chicago Carnation Co. thinks it will be in wide request.

W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, went to New York after the carnation show. He is enthusiastic over the new Retail Florists' Delivery Association, of which he is treasurer.

It is futile to discuss color as seen in the carnations on exhibition at Pittsburg, except with the understanding that reference is made to the varieties as they show up under artificial light. The judges took one fine looking pink seedling out to natural light and thereby knocked it out of a certificate.

There are those well qualified to judge who say the banquet saves the financial life of the society; a considerable number of absent-minded men fail to call on the treasurer until they find that without a membership ticket banquet tickets are uncomeatable. A lot of new memberships, and dues, always come in at the last minute. When meeting in towns where everybody was extended the same courtesies as society members, it has been the experience of the officers of all trade societies that dues and new memberships came in slowly; too many people forget.

TRIP TO BAKERSTOWN.

Friday afternoon, January 28, nearly 100 of those who had remained from the convention of the American Carnation Society made a trip to Bakerstown as the guests of the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co., to inspect its large greenhouse plant there. Guides were provided to explain the details of culture, etc., and it goes without saying that the visitors found the place in first-class condition, with much to interest and much to learn, for it is widely recognized that Mr. Burki is able to take as much from each square foot of bench space as any grower in the country. Luncheon was served. The visitors were taken to and from the train on bob sleds.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Resignation of Treasurer Beatty.

Owing to impaired health, H. B. Beatty, treasurer of the S. A. F., tendered his resignation at a meeting of the executive board held at Pittsburg, January 26 to 28, 1910. The resignation was accepted by the board. The appointment of Wm. F. Kasting, of Buffalo, N. Y., as the successor of Mr. Beatty, was confirmed. Wm. F. Kasting, having been duly qualified according to Article II, section 3, paragraph (d), is now treasurer of the society.

The following are the resignation of Visitors at the Plant of the Pittsburg Rose & Carnation Co., Bakerstown, Pa., January 28, 1910.

Mr. Beatty and the resolutions passed by the board:

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 27, 1910.

F. R. Pierson, President,
Society of American Florists,
Fort Pitt Hotel, City.

Dear Sir: I hereby tender my resignation as treasurer of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, to take effect as soon as my successor can be elected and qualified.

As a large majority of the directors of the society are in the city, I trust that you may be able to get them together today or tomorrow, to elect my successor, as I desire to turn over all funds of the society as soon as possible.

Yours very truly,
H. B. BEATTY.

WHEREAS, The Executive Committee of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists has received the resignation of Mr. H. B. Beatty, as treasurer of the society,

Therefore, be it resolved, that in accepting this resignation we desire to place on record our appreciation of his long and valued services to the society and his unbounded liberality with the office.

We part with him with the greatest regret, which we feel sure will be shared by every member of the society.

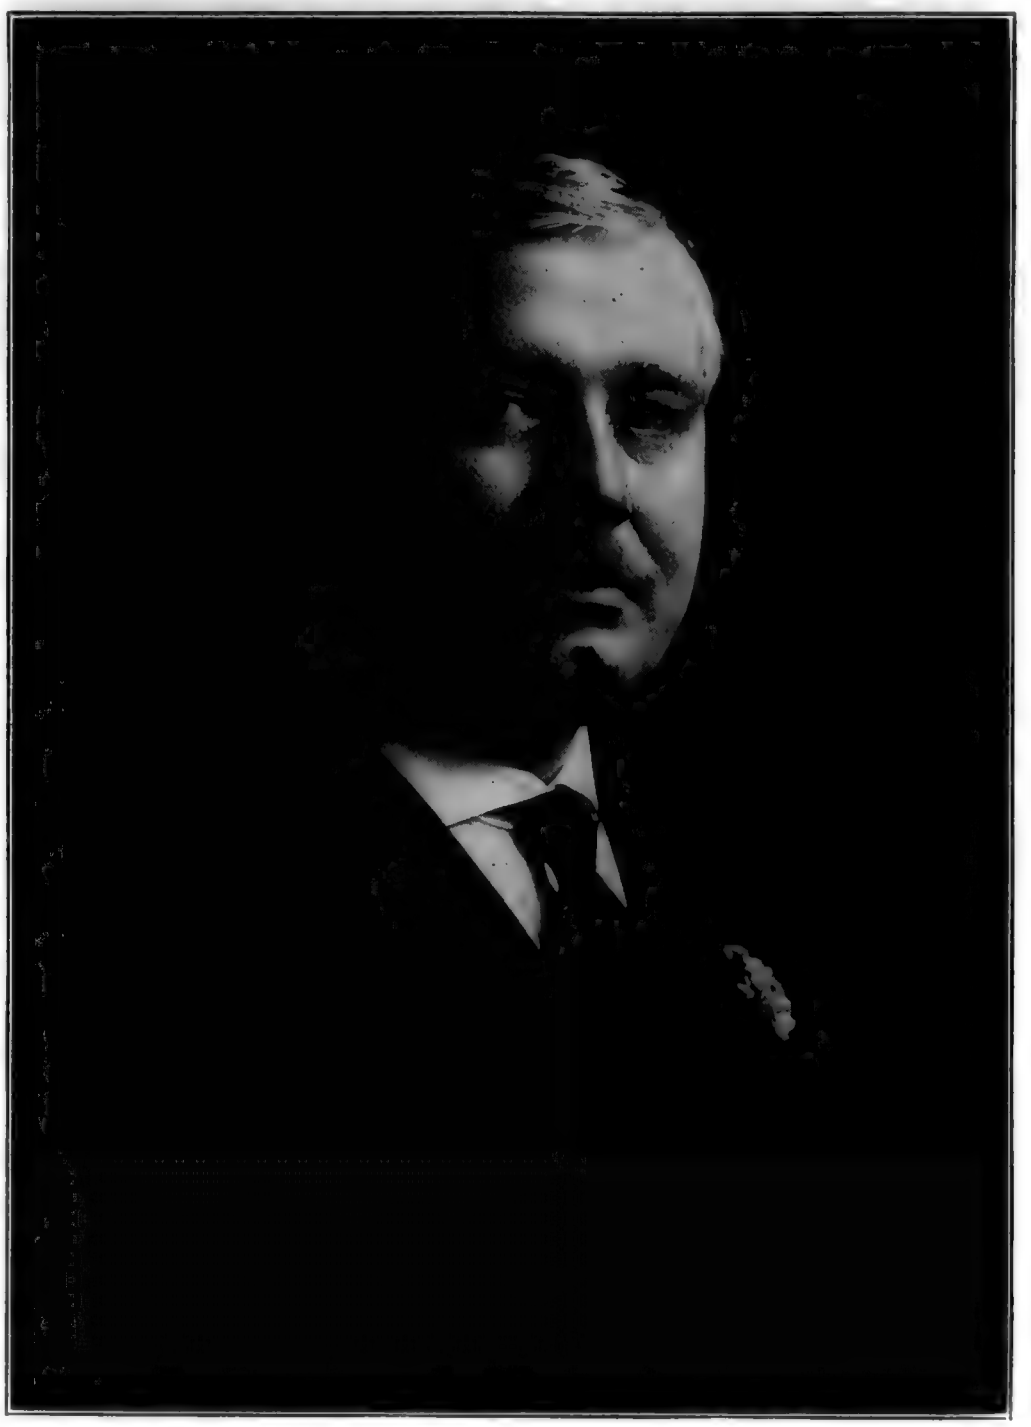
It is only our consideration for his impaired health, which we are assured is due to overwork in his many interests, that compels us reluctantly to accept his resignation at this time.

H. B. DORNER, Sec'y.

GREENHOUSE PESTS.

We have always plenty of greenhouse pests to contend with. In winter some are more destructive than in summer. Roaches are in their element when fire heat is at its maximum. They do great damage to roots, flowers and tender foliage, being especially damaging where orchids are grown. It is about impossible to exterminate them, but their numbers can be reduced by trapping them in glass jars sunk in the ground to the brims and using slices of stale bacon or molasses as bait. Snails are also troublesome where adiantums are grown. Baits, such as lettuce and cabbage leaves or slices of potato or carrot, laid where they are working and examined once or twice a day, will soon decrease their numbers. Mice are sure to appear at this season, when seed sowing commences, unless you have extra vigilant cats. Traps will account for many, but some burnt shorts or meal moistened and mixed with white arsenic or potassium cyanide will make the speediest clearance.

ASTERS UNDER GLASS.



In the REVIEW of January 6 a question was asked in regard to asters for Memorial day and the reply by C. W. was that it is now too late to sow for that. I would like to know how early the varieties mentioned can be brought into bloom under glass, also whether the large branching varieties can be grown successfully indoors. How early can seed be sown and to what extent will they stand forcing? Scott's Manual states that for growing on greenhouse benches the seed should be sown in the middle of February and gives one the impression that these are to be brought into bloom but little earlier than out of doors.

F. H.

Asters for flowering under glass can be sown at once. The impression you have gained that they do not flower much earlier than the outdoor crop is to a large extent correct. I have not succeeded in getting really good flowers before the early part of July. The varieties which have done well under glass are Queen of the Market, Comet, Hohenzollern and American Branching.

Greenhouse culture, it is true, does not forward the asters much over outdoor ones. The advantages to be noted, however, are clean flowers at all times, the certainty of an excellent crop and the excellent quality of the flowers. If extra large blooms are wanted, disbudding should be done, but for ordinary purposes it is just as well to allow every shoot to carry all it will. The grower who has a bench or house of nice asters is independent of long, damp, sunless spells of weather, as well as of storms of wind and rain, which speedily ruin the outdoor crop. Asters like much the same treatment as chrysanthemums and do not take kindly to forcing. They want an abundance of fresh air all the time.

VISITING THE FATHERLAND.

M. Stauch, formerly general manager for the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., but now visiting his native country, Germany, writes interestingly as follows, under date of January 7:

"Thank you for your promptness in forwarding the REVIEW. I arrived at my old home—Kallstadt, Rhein-Pfalz—on Christmas eve and found everything lovely. The weather here has been remarkably mild. Thus far, there has been no snow and hardly any frost. I am having a fine time; nevertheless, it does not feel like America and I am beginning to get homesick.

"I have seen some of the large places at Hamburg and a few at Berlin. They are nothing compared with our American greenhouse places, though there is no one in America, I suppose, who grows as much valley as Neubert, at Hamburg. I shall leave this vicinity soon and try to see some of the ranges where cut flowers are largely grown. Berlin and Hamburg get practically all their roses and carnations from southern France. They make a poor show in comparison with American flowers. Yet I saw some nice begonia plants, as well as Dutch hyacinths and some others. The Dutch hyacinths are grown in southern France and show good spikes. There is also a considerable quantity of lilac forced for Christmas."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Easter Lilies.

It is now time for the lilies intended for Easter to commence showing their buds. It should be possible to count the buds on the shoots by February 15, in which case, if given a night temperature of 60 degrees, they will be in season. It may be possible to bring in quite a number that do not show buds thus early, but such should be afforded more heat at once; 70 to 75 degrees at night for the more backward ones is not too high. It may make them a little more leggy, but the extra price to be had at Easter will compensate for a little special effort. In answer to inquiries as to whether plants now four to six inches high will flower for Easter, our answer will be decidedly "No." Better hold these cool; they will come in for funeral work from time to time after Easter.

Keep the pots well watered; spray the backward ones several times a day and use manure water to keep the foliage in a dark green, healthy condition. The plants will require considerable moving around during the next few weeks to have them come in uniformly. Be sure not to crowd the plants unduly, or poor foliage will result.

Deciduous Flowering Shrubs.

Lilacs can be flowered in a brisk heat within a month. To have plants with nice foliage for Easter, start them now. Deutzias, wistarias, prunus, pyrus, Magnolia stellata, Azalea mollis and other varieties should all be placed in heat now. Syringe freely until the shoots break. Any hard forcing is better done before the flowers start to open. At the latter stage they should be moved into a lower temperature, to give the flowers substance.

Cyclamens.

There is some sale for cyclamens at Easter, and this year, owing to its early date, March 27, there will be some nice plants in flower. It will be necessary to keep the plants cool and well ventilated, and after the middle of February the best place for them will be a north house, where they will be effectually screened from the sun's rays.

Little plants intended for flowering next Christmas, or later in the season, will want some attention now. Cyclamens do not succeed in widely fluctuating temperatures. A night reading of 54 to 56 degrees is a happy medium, with a 10-degree rise in the daytime with sun heat. Any seedlings still in flats will require potting off, if this has not already been done. In potting, be sure to always leave the upper part of the little corm above the ground. For soil at this stage a mixture of loam, leaf-mold and sand will suffice. To grow cyclamens well, these points should be considered: Constant heat, a moist atmosphere, free drainage and an ample water supply. Air should be applied, but not in the nature of a draft. Insect pests should never be given any quarter. A spraying once a week with a reliable nicotine solution will keep the plants clean.

Rambler Roses.

With only about seven weeks until Easter, the ramblers should now be pushed along if at all backward. A light, sunny house, kept at about 60 degrees, will bring them along all right. Any which are apparently a little early can be retarded in a cool room. The pots should now be well filled with roots, and a top-dressing of Clay's fertilizer or liquid manure once a week will add to their vigor. Let the plants stand so that they will not be crowded, and thus they will be much more salable at Easter. Crimson ramblers were at one time the plants par excellence. Nowadays the pink forms, such as Lady Gay, Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon and Farquhar, are much more popular.

Sweet Peas.

The early batch of sweet peas, now at the height of their flowering season, will require some feeding to keep them in good condition. A top-dressing of a good brand of pulverized sheep manure is a safe stimulant to use. We say "a good brand" advisedly, as there are some on the market of low quality. If you are buying two or three brands of sheep manure, put an equal amount of each in a pail or tub and allow them to stand a day or two. You will be able to form a tolerably accurate idea then as to which is the best.

All the sweet peas are now growing faster with the lengthening days, and it will not do to neglect running the strings around them every few days. At this season any of the outdoor varieties can be sown for a late crop under glass. Among these, such sorts as Miss Willmott, Helen Lewis, white and pink Spencer, Lady Grisel Hamilton, Frank Dolby, Dorothy Eckford, Gladys Unwin and Helen Pierce will be found popular colors. The call for scarlet, crimson, purple and maroon shades is light. A night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees will answer well for plants in flower.

Verbenas.

As between propagation of verbenas by cuttings or from seed, we have a decided preference for seedlings. They possess greater vigor and give a better account of themselves when bedded out than plants propagated from cuttings. In the case of special varieties, as, for instance, that charming pink, Miss Willmott, recourse is usually had to cuttings, but seed of good quality is procurable in separate colors, and if a really good strain is bought the number of rogues are surprisingly few. Verbenas and petunias are the two most satisfactory bedding annuals, owing to their persistent flowering qualities. Where stock plants have been carried over, now is the time to get in plenty of cuttings. Seed can also be sown, but, as the seedlings make rapid growth, there is no danger of being too late if the sowing is delayed until even the last of February. Not only are verbenas good for beds and borders, but they are useful in vases, window boxes and baskets, in which they will flower the whole season through.

CARNATIONS

CARNATION NOTES.—EAST.

Propagation.

Conditions will be such, from now on through February, that propagation should occupy the attention of every carnation grower. The plants, if in the shape they should be at this time, are well established, mature, strong and healthy, and are therefore capable of furnishing prime cuttings. The low temperature outside and the consequent steady firing combine to produce conditions exactly suited to the work.

Every effort should be made to secure the required quantity of stock before the sun's higher position necessitates more frequent spraying or increased shading, for while cuttings may root under this treatment, their stay in the sand is prolonged and there is usually some loss of vitality.

The Natural Cutting.

The natural cutting is essentially a side shoot, and the most desirable of these are found on the stem of a flowering branch. Varieties differ in the development and number of these shoots, some presenting several in prime order when the bloom is in condition to cut or even before, while others give but few and these must be left on the plant to gain size.

Not all side shoots borne on flower stems, however, furnish desirable cuttings; generally speaking, those farthest removed from the bud or flower approach nearest the ideal. We reach this conclusion by observing the increased tendency to run to bud in the uppermost side growths.

There might, with good reason, be objections to using some shoots growing at the very base of the plant, owing to their long-jointed or rather spindling nature, but this is a condition brought about by present-day cultural methods—that is, bushy plants, closely set. If commercial culture would permit more space to the plant, it would become at once apparent that these lower shoots, for use as cuttings, left nothing to be desired.

Plants From Which to Propagate.

It is, of course, the desire of every grower to produce blooms of the highest grade possible, and there is no better time to start than at the propagating season, when we may be said to be laying the foundation of next season's work.

The observant grower cannot fail to notice the wide difference in behavior that exists between plants of a variety treated identically, and it is probable that he can select from the number in his care those which from the start have grown sturdily, preserved a neat habit, become reëstablished quickly after housing, and have given bloom, continuously but not too profusely, of first-class quality. Propagation from these would be termed improvement by selection, and, with a large stock of plants, little difficulty is experienced in securing in this way a supply sufficient for ordinary needs.

Propagation of New Introductions.

It is when the desire is to increase stock of a new variety that we are liable to encounter the difficulty of maintaining rigid selection, by reason of the natural inclination to utilize every cutting produced by the plants, of which, as a rule, there is only a small stock at hand. There is, however, even more reason for careful selection here than in the case of an old, standard sort, as the introducer is compelled to confine his attention chiefly to the production of vigorous growth during dissemination year, his work of selection having been carried on during previous years. It would be unreasonable to expect the disseminator of a new variety to send out cuttings selected with the care a grower would exercise in propagating stock for his own use, as the cost of producing such cuttings would render their selling price prohibitive.

True propagation consists of more than increasing stock by the greatest number possible. Quality, rather than quantity, should be the first consideration. Then we would hear less about the running out or breaking down of varieties, which is no doubt largely due to promiscuous propagation under high pressure.

GEO. S. OSBORN.

Adolph Farenwald.

WHY JOIN THE ROSE SOCIETY?

[A paper by Adolph Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., read February 1, before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia.]

I have often wondered why so many small rose growers give the Rose Society the cold shoulder. The large rose growers all seem to be members. Why should this be so? Have the small growers no benefit to expect from membership in the American Rose Society, or are they prejudiced against it? Surely there is no cause for either of these reasons. The most of them have not come near enough to see and understand. It is time, then, that they make an earnest effort to see and understand, and by doing so they will soon recognize the value of this organization in the many tasks which it endeavors to fulfill, every one being of vital interest to every rose grower.

As I said before, the large growers are all members. Now, did you ever stop to think why they are? Surely not for the fun of it. They are all too shrewd business men. The money they invest this way must bring them some interest. "Light your pipe," as they say, and think this over; it is worth while.

It is high time that we, as rose growers, took notice that the carnation is pushing the rose into second place in the favor of the public.

It is impossible for me, in this short paper, to go into all the different subjects of usefulness of the American Rose Society, to pluck them apart and hold them up to the searchlight. I will merely confine myself to the yearly exhibition and convention, their value as an education and inspiration.

March 16, 1910, the yearly exhibition and convention will be held in New York city. Now, fellow members, this gives you a fine opportunity to realize the value of such an exhibition as an education and inspiration. Most of us think we grow better roses than the other fellow. An exhibition will open our eyes. Roses that at home we thought wonderful, often diminish decidedly in our estimation when placed in competition with others. Here is the education, if we want to see it. We are in this business for money. If roses are not up to standard, we will not realize on them as we should. This may be a bitter pill to swallow, but it should be the inspiration for a greater and continued effort, which will easily pay in the future for the little time and money it took.

At the exhibition we also have an opportunity to see alongside of the old standards the new varieties. The originators of these new varieties are sure to be at hand, each man eager to explain the strong points of his particular favorite, his rival only too eager to point out the flaws. There, too, you will see many of the brightest lights in the rose-growing profession, from whom you can get valuable pointers. You have the great pleasure of meeting old friends. Besides, the social side of these gatherings has a charm which no one who has ever attended can forget.

While we can read in our trade paper the essays read at the convention meetings, yet we miss the after-discussions and criticisms, which are a most important and essential part of such meetings. Then, too, the enthusiastic arguments of some members, the hair-splitting arguments of others, the sound advice of those who confine themselves strictly to business, so that one fairly sees the dollars sticking out, all combine to make these meetings serve as food for thought for many a day thereafter.

To make this Rose Society a success, it needs the interest and enthusiastic support of all rose growers, large and small, over the entire country.

Every one who grows roses for a living should feel it a sacred duty to belong to this society; in fact, every one interested in roses should belong and help bear out the motto of the society, "A rose for every home, a bush for every garden." Then anyone growing roses for a living who cannot or will not be interested in the work of this society, will be the one who continuously kicks about bad times and prices, and howls about the "good old times." He is a dead one. "Peace be to his ashes."

KANSANS WILL ORGANIZE.

It is announced that the florists in the state of Kansas will organize and shortly will hold a meeting in Topeka for that purpose. Ed G. Bass asks all florists in the state to communicate with Philip P. Willson, 514 Kansas avenue, Topeka, who will act as the attorney in perfecting the organization and incorporation.

THOMPSONVILLE, CONN.—While driving recently to Westfield, Mass., to secure a large boiler to be used in the new greenhouses of the Brainard Floral & Nursery Co., Michael Nash was overcome by the intense cold, but soon recovered.

BEVERLY, MASS.—Mrs. Evans, the owner of the place known as the summer White House, is planning to erect a first-class greenhouse and fernery, besides making other improvements to suit the needs of the President and his family.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business is good and all are busy. Roses and carnations are fine and not too plentiful. Green goods are only in fair supply. Funeral work is plentiful and keeps coming, and all the florists seem to get about an equal share of it. There has been a goodly number of weddings, also. McKinley day was not well observed here, not nearly so generally as it should be.

January was much warmer than December.

Various Notes.

Emil Niednagel says that his firm has been busy and has had a good supply of roses and carnations.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting some extra fine carnations, and they have a ready sale.

Ben Kramer has been busy all along.

J. C. Elsperman is getting a good share of trade. He has been sick for several weeks, but is improving.

Royston & Fenton could use a good many more roses and carnations than they are getting.

Nellie Goodge is up and about again after her illness. E. L. F.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Conditions have materially changed since the report of two weeks ago. The weather has moderated; in fact, we have been enjoying a genuine January thaw, with a moderate amount of sunshine and an immoderate amount of fog. The fog did not do any good, but the sunshine helped production to a marked degree. The demand has hardly improved in proportion to the supply and prices are a shade easier.

Business is good for the last week in January, the volume being much larger than during the cold spell of two weeks ago. The demand for carnations has improved, the market being better sustained on all grades and varieties. White was scarce at the end of the week, and reds were exceedingly scarce. Roses are in fair supply and are bringing good prices.

Violets were more plentiful last week and could be had at 50 cents and 60 cents per hundred. The singles are exceedingly fine, but local doubles are only fair. Daffodils are selling well, the supply being larger than a week ago. Freesias are arriving in fine shape. Gardenias have been selling well indeed, and it is doubtful if this market has ever seen such fine stock. Sweet peas are more plentiful; the fine grades are eagerly sought, but the poor grades go begging.

There are odd conditions in the green situation. Stated briefly, bunches of plumosus are scarce and Sprengeri is not wanted at all, and will not be extensively grown another year.

Club Meeting.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club, R. A. Vincent gave a talk on the summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society, which will be held at Harrison's Nurseries, at Berlin, Md., and after the meeting is held the members will go to Ocean City, Md., for several days.

Quite a discussion was had as to what was the cause of carnations splitting their calyxes. Some thought it was caused by too high a temperature, while others thought it was caused by too low a temperature.

The next meeting will be held February 14, which is to be carnation night. A large display of new carnations will be seen; among them will be Dorothy Gordon, Alma Ward and Mrs. C. W. Ward. A committee was appointed to look after the novelties when they arrive here.

Various Notes.

Peter Eberhart and Mrs. Wilhelmina Jones were quietly married on Wednesday, January 26, at Catonsville.

Carnation day was well observed here on Saturday and there was a heavy demand for pink, which was McKinley's favorite color. The bronze bust of the martyred president was decorated with pink carnations at the Baltimore postoffice.

Charles H. Cook has just received his greenhouse material for his four new houses, to be erected this spring on his new place at Catonsville. The material was furnished by the A. Dietsch Co., of Chicago.

Frederick Reitz has been cutting some extra fine Golden Spur. He grows about 20,000 every year.

Mathias Thau, of Govanstown, has installed a new boiler to replace the one which burst during one of our cold spells.

Q.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society enjoyed its annual banquet on the evening of January 25. President James Doty was in the chair. The vice-president is E. A. Reidenbach, and John Ingram and Oscar Addor are recording and corresponding secretaries. The attendance was the largest in the society's history. From a distance came C. H. Totty and William Duckham, of Madison, A. T. Boddington, Al Rickards, George A. Burnett, W. A. Sperling and J. Austin Shaw, of New York, Mr. Stewart and Mr. Atkinson, of the Tarrytown society, John McNichol, of Cedarhurst, and several of Glen Cove's leading citizens also attended. The decorations were by Alexander McKenzie, gardener to Percy Chubb, in carnations and novel pyramidal centerpiece of valley in wickerwork and moss, the first of its kind. There were several vases of grand carnations by William Eckles, gardener for Mortimer Schiff, and plant decorations by Henry Matz, the local florist.

The year's medals were won by Paul Reul, gold; Valentine Cleres, silver; and George Wilson, bronze, for the highest number of points in the whole season's competition. Each of the winners responded happily or proudly. John Everett, the retiring president, received gold cuff buttons as a token of the club's esteem. The presentations were made by President Doty. J. Austin Shaw acted as toastmaster and referred to the loss of the society and the Island in the deaths of John Thorpe, E. V. Hallock, John Scott, Herman Dreyer and Richard Shannon in the last year. Robert Petrie furnished selections on the bagpipes. John McNichol sang. Al Rickards presided at the piano, and while the formal banquet lasted only from 6 o'clock to 10 o'clock, the subsequent hilarity continued to the wee small hours. C. H. Totty, William Duckham and A. T. Boddington didn't go home until morning. The toasts were all ably responded to, and were as follows:

"The President of the United States," by Harry Hedger, of Glen Cove.

"Glen Cove and Its Horticultural Society," by Frank Bowne, of Glen Cove.

"Our Guests," by D. M. Munge, of Glen Cove.

"The Press," by C. W. Maynard, of New York, and Mr. Davis, of the Glen Cove Echo.

"The Society of American Florists," by A. T. Boddington, of New York.

"The New York Florists' Club," by C. H. Totty, of Madison.

"The Auxiliary Societies," by W. H. Duckham, of Madison.

"Southern Horticulture," by W. A. Sperling, of New York.

"The Commercial Traveler," by A. Rickards, of New York.

"Bonnie Scotland," by William Kinnear, of Glen Cove.

"The Seedsmen," by George Burnett, of New York.

"Tam O'Shanter," by ex-President John Everett.

"The Ladies," by President Doty.

"The Gardening Profession," by Oscar Addor, George Wilson, Alex. McKenzie, John Everett and Messrs. Stewart and Atkinson, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market conditions last week were excellent. There was plenty of everything except roses, which are still scarce, and the rose shippers to this market say they will hardly be in crop before Lent begins. According to the wholesalers, stock cleaned up well all week and at satisfactory prices, and from that the retailers must have had a busy week, especially so Saturday, January 29, McKinley day, when a large quantity of carnations was sold and the wholesalers were asking as high as $5 per hundred for the best quality. California violets are abundant and have been for some time. Other stock, such as Romans, Paper Whites, callas, valley, Harrisii and sweet peas, is in fairly good supply at the usual prices. Tulips and freesias are scarce. Asparagus, smilax and galax sell well daily.

Various Notes.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., Henry Baer, of Peoria, Ill., and Henry Johann, of Collinsville, Ill., made up a party recently and paid a visit to our Belleville florists.

A. S. Halstead, head of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, Ill., spent a day with the trade last week, showing some fine blooms of the Rose-pink Enchantress, Lawson color, of which the company has quite a stock.

Grimm & Gorly were busy all last week at their Washington avenue store. John Barnard, the buyer for the firm, says at their Cass avenue store and at the greenhouses they had plenty of work in all lines.

The Bentzen Floral Co. had the decorations and cut flower work for the Yeatman high school's midwinter graduating class.

A. Werner & Bro. are sending the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. a large cut of carnations.

R. J. Windler had some pretty window decorations last week. Mr. Windler's store is one of the attractions along South Grand avenue.

In the vicinity of Grand avenue and Olive streets, George Waldbart, the Ayers Floral Co. and Miss M. S. Newman are making window displays which attract a great deal of attention.

The Grand Leader, one of the largest department stores, was the largest buyer at the recent auction sale of the bankrupt stock of the Michel Plant & Bulb Co., which they are advertising in the daily press at cheap prices.

Our Kirkwood growers sent in large shipments of violets last week. Among the heavy shippers are Hugo Gross, W. J. Pilcher, A. G. Ahner, William Winter and F. W. Ude, Jr.

The Florists' Club meets Thursday afternoon, February 10. This promises to be an interesting meeting. William Smith has his paper on "The Troubles of a Wholesaler" ready. A large attendance is looked for.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The weather is springlike, and an increase in shipments is of course inevible. Beauties have been in constant demand. The best of them touched 75 cents at times; 60 cents would be nearer right as an average value of the specials, but all roses sold well throughout last week, and the 4-foot Killarney and Richmond brought figures occasionally that were a surprise to the uninitiated.

McKinley day and the sweet girl graduates took good care of the carnations. Anything worth while commanded 4 cents to 5 cents January 28 and 29. It was carnation week here, as well as at Pittsburg. Orchids are abundant and prices reasonable. Cypripediums, however, do not command the recognition they deserve. Prices fell last week so that they were selling at 10 cents retail in the City of Churches, low enough to make any grower of them irreligious. Valley is down; lilies are up, and violets are stationary at 50 cents and down, and will continue so, one of the authorities says, until Easter. Lent will soon show its shadow and repentance begin; sackcloth for violets and ashes for roses; but the broker and the prima donnas still are here, and marrying and giving in marriage goes on. Of bulbous stock there is no end. Spring flowers in pots already harbinger the spring, even though in the line of weather the worst is yet to come.

The Orchid Section.

The meeting of the orchid section of the Horticultural Society of New York Wednesday evening, January 26, at the Museum of Natural History, New York, was encouragingly attended and in enthusiasm and exhibits a gratifying success. Large and beautiful exhibits were made by Clement Moore, Joseph A. Manda, Lager & Hurrell and the Julius Roehrs Co., and future meetings, of which this was a preliminary only, doubtless will be well attended. Mr. Moore was in the chair and Ed Roehrs acted as secretary. Dr. Kitchen, of Orange, and George V. Nash participated in the discussions. Mr. Nash will give a lecture on the history of the cattleya at the next meeting, with lantern slides, and the following month Mr. Lager will lecture on "Personal Experiences in the Gathering of Orchids." The meetings are open at 7:30, exhibits will be made, and the lectures will begin at 8 o'clock.

Various Notes.

John P. Mallon, senior member of James Mallon's Sons, Brooklyn, was elected last week president of the Tenth assembly district of Brooklyn. What Mr. Mallon does not know about democratic politics is not worth knowing.

Wednesday, February 2, the banquet of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association took place at the Hotel Astor.

The annual dinner of the Florists' Club has been decided upon for the evening of March 17, and the place is the banquet hall in the new Fifth Avenue building at the corner of Twenty-third street and Broadway. Chairman Sheridan anticipates a large attendance. This is the week of the American Rose Society's convention, and many florists from all parts of the country will be in New York at that time. The banquet room will seat 600.

The Elberon Horticultural Society will enjoy its annual dinner next week, and the usual yearly celebration at Orange, N. J., comes Friday, February 11.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, February 14. In addition to a reception to the ladies, W. H. Taplin will lecture on "The Carnation." A good lunch will be served and an enjoyable evening is assured.

McKinley day was better observed this year than usual. The wholesale florists disposed of enormous quantities of carnations, good stock bringing an average of 4 cents easily; 5 cents was top even for the novelties. The usual notices were in many of the windows. The general public seemed slow to respond to this reasonable sentiment in honor of President McKinley's memory, but each year shows an encouraging increase in the observance of the day.

M. C. Ebel, of the Aphine Mfg. Co., was in Philadelphia January 26 arranging for a public test of his insecticide on February 12 at the new store of the Henry F. Michell Co. These public tests have proved more than satisfactory to the manufacturers, and will be continued. After Philadelphia will come Chicago.

Frank Millang, Jr., who is associated with his father in the wholesale cut flower business in the Coogan building, celebrated his twenty-second birthday Saturday, January 29.

The regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Cut Flower Exchange will be held Saturday, February 5.

O. V. Zangen, of Hoboken, N. J., has sold his interest in the wholesale cut flower business at 52 West Twenty-eighth street to Ralph Gretsch, who has been associated with Mr. Zangen for the last fourteen months and will continue the business at the same address. Mr. Zangen says the seed trade was never so absorbing as now, and he finds it necessary to give it all his attention.

The Greater New York Florists' Association announces its annual meeting February 7 and the distribution of a dividend of ten per cent.

The Greek-American Florists' Association of New York has invited the members of the Retail Florists' Protective Association to attend a beefsteak dinner Thursday, February 3, at Healey's jungle room, Sixty-sixth street and Columbus avenue. George D. Nicholas is chairman of the committee.

President James Wood, of the Horticultural Society of New York, will lecture at the Museum of Natural History on "The Ideas of Horticulture," Wednesday, February 9, at 4 p. m.

Purity continues the popular brand of freesia, and brings the highest price in the New York market. Notwithstanding Rudolph Fischer's departure for California, Great Neck, L. I., where it originated, is still its headquarters in the east, and William Mathews sends large shipments of it daily to Kessler Bros.

John T. Withers, of Jersey City, has started on his tour around the world.

It is reported that the Growers' Cut Flower Co., J. J. Coan, manager, is looking for larger quarters.

Ford Bros. are congratulating themselves on securing the big store at 46 West Twenty-eighth street. There were many applicants. They intend fitting it up thoroughly, and have a three years' lease as an incentive.

The seedsmen all over the city are beginning to reap the first fruits of the enormous catalogue distribution now completed. The demand has begun earlier than usual.

W. E. Marshall is back from a western trip that included Pittsburg and Cleveland.

Al Rickards has been touring Long Island.

George A. Burnett has been absorbing all the banquets and his share of the orders.

Harry Bunyard is back from the carnation convention and enthusiastic over its success and the business prospects.

Schloss Bros. say they are having a great demand for their latest novelty, the silk and lace bouquet holders. Emil Schloss has just returned from their distribution in Boston, Washington and Baltimore.

Wertheimer Bros. are moving this week to their new corner store on Broadway, nearly opposite their present location at 550 Broadway. The new headquarters give this enterprising house double the floor space they had before. The whole second floor over the bank is utilized, and all the conveniences are modern and up-to-date.

Lion & Co. say last year doubled their business.

Robert Wilson says he found his corsage bouquet holders quite as popular in Pittsburg as in Detroit.

David McKenzie, at John Scott's, Flatbush, says his lilies are bringing top prices in the New York market, and that he will have six houses of them for Easter, now only seven weeks away.

Alexander McConnell had the Marjorie Gould reception, the finest floral decoration seen in New York this year. In orchids alone over 3,000 cattleyas were used.

M. A. Bowe has the contract for one of the largest weddings of the season next week.

The Smart Set Floral Co. maintains daily unique window decorations, involving fountains, airships, Japanese goldfish and art vases.

Another flower shop in the Wall street district is to be opened this week, opposite Peter Henderson & Co. and in the Hudson Terminal building.

Messrs. Brant, of Chatham, and Pierson, of Scarboro, the expert rose growers, were in the city January 29, apparently well pleased with the condition of the market and the outlook. Moore, Hentz & Nash handle the Brant & Noe output.

B. Rosens has decided to sublet the store on West Twenty-eighth street and retain his headquarters on Twenty-ninth street another year.

J. AUSTIN SHAW.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—Chas. Schaumburg, of the Haggerty Floral Co., was confined to his home for a week by illness.

WALPOLE, MASS.—A. B. Dorr has bought the Williams farm, with greenhouses, located at Pine street, South Walpole, and will build more greenhouses, to be used for cucumber growing.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Pittsburg, Pa.

Annual convention, Rochester, N. Y., August 16 to 19, 1910.

Results bring advertising.
THE REVIEW brings results.

VARIEGATED carnations, quite popular in the Boston market, are seldom seen in the western markets.

N. ZWEIFEL, North Milwaukee, Wis., says he will put his new pink carnation, Bright Spot, on the market in 1911.

C. W. WARD, of Cottage Gardens, went last week to the gulf coast of Mississippi, where he will spend the rest of the winter.

AND now the new combination of window glass manufacturers is to be attacked as a trust by the attorney general in Ohio.

THE pure insecticides bill looks good for passage at this session of congress. There seems little opposition, even among insecticide manufacturers themselves.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending the REVIEW $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE average grower of cut flowers for the wholesale markets is a specialist, growing only a few things, whereas the grower for home trade must produce a great variety of stock.

THE "Want" and "For Sale" advertisements in the REVIEW are worth looking over. This department has grown, along with the rest of the paper, and there are many good offers there every week.

IT is reported that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society plans remodeling its splendid building in Boston to increase the space available for exhibitions. The contemplated improvements are said to involve the expenditure of $100,000.

THE United States Civil Service Commission announces that an examination will be held March 3, 1910, for the purpose of securing a list of eligibles to be used in filling a vacancy in the position of landscape gardener, engineer of Department at Large, and vacancies requiring similar qualifications as they may occur. Those desiring to take the examination should apply either to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or to the secretary of the board of examiners in the capital or other large city of each state.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

S. Cockburn & Sons, of Woodlawn, N. Y., make application to have the name of their chrysanthemum, previously registered as Dr. Frederick A. Cook, changed to Mrs. Jane Cochran. Public notice is hereby given of the application, and unless objections to the change are received within twenty days from publication of this notice, the change will be made.

H. B. DORNER, Sec'y.

January 20, 1910.

OBITUARY.

Elias Emery.

Elias Emery, known to the trade as a horticultural writer, died at his home in Omaha, Neb., January 23. He was born in Circleville, O., February 26, 1826. He removed to Omaha in 1862 and was a member of the territorial legislature in the early '60s. He engaged in the real estate business till 1884, when he retired from that occupation and devoted his time to horticulture, in which he took a great interest. He made a special study of the rose and wrote a number of treatises on that flower that attracted attention throughout the country. He was also the author of numerous works on horticultural subjects.

Mr. Emery was one of the founders and a charter member of the Omaha Philosophical Society. He leaves three sons, Charles J., of Omaha, and Solon and Elias, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

E. C. Burrows.

E. C. Burrows, well known in the trade in St. Louis, of the old-time firm of Pilcher & Burrows, commission brokers, and a former member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, died last week. The body was taken to the family home in Peoria, Ill., where the funeral took place Saturday, January 29.

H. W. Meek.

H. W. Meek, president of the California Nursery Co., of Niles, Cal., died at his home at Haywards, Cal., January 21. He was one of the best known orchardists and horticulturists in California and he had accumulated a large fortune from his interests. He was 53 years of age and is survived by a widow and three grown children.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There has been an excellent week's business since last report. The supply of stock has increased slightly, but not enough to affect the out-of-town demand, which has continued strong, and for the entire week there has been a good market for practically every variety of stock. About the only exception has been the violet, which has not shared in the general favor. There are those of the commission men who say the average price received for violets last week was the lowest of the season to date. At the same time, receipts were not as large as they were a few weeks ago, and the quality of much of the stock is not up to the mark.

Beauties are decidedly on the short side, some of the largest growers cutting hardly more than a single armful per day, but $6 per dozen seems to be about as high as the buyers are willing to go, even for the best stock. Of other roses the supply is slightly increased, at least by comparison to the demand, for the call has been curtailed by the general knowledge that roses are scarce and prices stiff; the out-of-town buyer is using more carnations and more miscellaneous stock and fewer roses; he hesitates to order that which he knows will cost a stiff price if, indeed, his order is filled. White and Killarney continue to have the call, with Richmond going slower than any other variety and therefore being in comparatively better supply; you can get red roses at moderate price when

WE HANDLE THE CREAM OF THE

VIOLETS

Order Now for St. Valentine's Day

WHILE we have a splendid supply of Violets, the prospect is for a heavier demand than ever before for Valentine's Day—so it is the part of wisdom for Retailers to place orders with us now. Send us your order today, or write us about it. Those who place orders now are insured—sure of their supply and protected against rise in price.

Carnations

You will find our Carnations splendid stock—the best varieties in each color—and the quantity sufficient to take care of the largest orders. We want to hear from large users of Carnations who have not previously bought of us. We can make it interesting for all such—not the cheapest, but the best Carnations on this market, and the largest supply.

Sweet Peas

We are now handling large quantities of long, fancy Peas, in white, pink, lavender, and a few of fancy colors. The way the stock is coming in indicates we are going to repeat our last season's success with this specialty. If your trade likes fine peas, better get in touch with us.

Roses

We have fine crops of Beauty, Killarney, Richmond and other Roses, but the demand is so heavy we can only promise to do our best on late orders.

Miscellaneous Stock

Tulips now are in large supply, all colors, fine quality; Daffodils are available in moderate quantity, and we have a fine lot of Jonquils; plenty of Easter Lilies, Callas, Freesias, Mignonette, Paper Whites, Romans. Green goods of every kind; finest Fancy Ferns.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

We handle the "Chicago Market Brand" exclusively. From the recognized leading commercial grower of Valley in the west. Many leading stores will use no other. We can supply any quantity.

Order Early

In times of brisk demand we sometimes have to wire "Can't fill," on a late order, when if the order had been in earlier we could have filled it with ease and to everybody's satisfaction. Order early, before all the stock is sold—give us a chance.

white and Killarney have been entirely cleaned out for the day.

Last week there was an excellent business on carnations. Nobody made any effort to feature McKinley day, but there were nevertheless some nice orders received on this account, for buyers had found they could get good stock at moderate prices. At the end of the week carnation values firmed up and the beginning of this week found a light supply and a stiff market. It is unfortunate that the market should fluctuate as it has the last couple of weeks. No sooner do the buyers become aware of the fact that there is a good supply at prices they can afford to pay than the market stiffens up and they find they are charged higher rates than they expected. The result is to bring in kicks and to shut out orders, whereupon the market falls back to a point lower than where it started. The quality of carnations has been considerably improved by a few days of bright weather. During the long month of dark days the carnations became soft, and many were the protests at the quality of stock shipped; with bright, crisp weather, we are getting bright, crisp stock, the kind that ships well.

Tulips are now in good supply, running the whole range of colors and with stems of usable length. There is an increased supply of callas, and Easter lilies once more are abundant. Not so many Paper Whites are seen, and freesia is not overplentiful. Jonquils, on which many growers scored a failure with their earliest lots, are now giving better results and are more abundant; there also are a few daffodils, and both jonquils and daffodils sell well. Valley meets with a steady demand and some splendid stock is seen. Sweet peas are not increasing in quantity as rapidly as was expected, probably because of the unfavorable weather through January, but some good, long-stemmed stock is now offered in moderate quantities. Orchids are in good supply once more, but prices are well maintained. White lilac sells well.

The outdoor hardy greens are in heavy supply and the price of ferns has been cut at a time when it usually is advancing. Indoor greens are not in large supply.

January Business.

On the whole, January made an excellent record in this market. The first part of the month the supply was unusually large and prices unseasonably low, but after ten days the reverse of the situation became true; supplies shortened more suddenly than often is the case, and prices advanced abruptly. After a week of famine, cuts increased and prices fell, the change affecting carnations more than roses, which latter were higher in price than usual for the balance of the month. In the aggregate the market seems to have done more business in January than in the same month a year ago, but it is open to question if the increase was what the increase in glass area was.

January Weather.

January was a dark month, unfavorable for cut flower production, there being only thirty-four per cent of the possible amount of sunshine. It was not a cold month, but the wind movement averaged sixteen miles per hour and increased coal consumption. The snowfall was 14.8 inches, there being only five clear days, sixty partly cloudy and twenty that were cloudy.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.

Business is good with all the retailers and all of them are showing nice window displays. There were large numbers of funeral orders in the month of January and stock of all kinds was cleaned up daily.

The cloudy weather has kept some stock back a little. We find there is a shortage on roses, especially. All kinds of bulbous stock are moving fast. Carnations have been in large demand and every florist has been well supplied with them.

The growers have been using a lot of coal, as we have had some extremely cold days and the temperature at night has occasionally been as low as 22 degrees below zero, with snow on the glass, which kept the plants back a little.

A good call comes from out of town, and Sioux City florists do a considerable shipping business. Among the florists that sell wholesale are the J. C. Rennison Co., J. R. Elder and Rocklin & Lehman. All of these firms ship and sell to a lot of florists around us.

R. E. Rathbun & Co., who began business here recently, have built 10,000 feet of glass and have a nice location for a retail place. The houses are planted chiefly with Harrisii lilies, all kinds of bulbous stock and violets, and the crops look fine for Easter. They have already built up an excellent business.

About three miles from the city there is a fine range of greenhouses, owned by James B. Bishop and planted with vegetables. He has one large house, 28x260, which is used for lettuce. It contains 2,600 lettuce plants, which present a fine appearance as the visitor looks from one end of the house to the other. He has a mechanical water system, manufactured by the Skinner Irrigation Co. It is operated by a gasoline engine and waters the whole house in ten minutes. Mr. Bishop is growing and selling more vegetables this year than ever before, and he is planning to put up more greenhouses in the near future. He has 18,000 feet of glass now.

Besides James B. Bishop, there are two other growers who grow quite a lot of vegetables under glass. One is Fred Bishop, a brother of James B. Bishop, and the other one is Peter Reard. Mr. Reard also grows carnations, under contract, for Rocklin & Lehman. Four of his seven houses are in carnations and the balance in lettuce, radishes and other vegetables. All the vegetable growers are doing finely.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The cut flower market for the week ending February 2 has been active, with widely varying conditions, as different as the varieties of the flowers themselves. Roses are still short, although Killarney has come to the front with a new crop that distances competitors, for you can get Killarney when you want it with more certainty than any other rose. Beauties, at the other end of the line, are scarce indeed, with prices high. Richmond, Bride and White Killarney are in fair supply, but there are not many My Maryland and fewer Maid. Mrs. Jardine is popular.

Carnations received a decided impetus from the combination of McKinley day and Saturday, January 29. But for the stormy weather, business would have been better still. The wholesalers got a trifle the best of it, as the retailers had to have carnations ready in case of need. Many were sold. The business has been fair since, white being especially active in the cheaper grades.

Violets have been erratic. The demand on the whole has been better than at any time since the holidays. The supply is moderate. Hudson river doubles have figured prominently in the trading. Spring flowers have been a little disappointing so far. The quality of many of the daffodils and tulips has not been calculated to encourage buying. Golden Spur leads in a decided improvement now. Good bright pink is a scarce color in tulips. Plenty of nice freesias are to be had. Easter lilies are abundant but dull. Callas have tumbled in price. White lilac has rounded into winter form, creating lively demand. Sweet peas have jumped from $1 for the best to $1.50, under the influence of such superb stock as Edward Swayne, George F. Christie and Mr. Levin are cutting. There have been heavy sales in cattleyas, mixed orchids, phalænopsis, oncidiums and lælias. Cœlogyne cristata is obtainable. Gardenias are more plentiful. Valley is rather quiet. Pansies are popular. Acacia pubescens is the novelty of the week. In greens, asparagus is brisk, adiantum scarce and smilax irregular.

Various Notes.

M. Rice & Co. are adding another story, the sixth, to their building at 1220 Race street. This means an addition of 2,000 square feet of floor space. Mr. Rice says two floors would have been added if the foundation would permit. Expansion, rapid expansion, on sound business lines.

Frank S. Jackson has severed his connection with the Thornhedge Nurseries, where he has been manager for H. H. Battles for many years.

Edward Swayne, West Chester, Pa., is producing a grade of sweet peas that are a decided advance over the stock seen here a fortnight ago. He has white, soft pink and bright pink, all fine.

Berger Bros. have made Easter lilies one of their staple flowers for every-day business.

There have been many visitors of note here lately. Among them have been A. C. Brown, Springfield, Ill.; William Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., a representative of the T. Eaton Co., of Toronto and of Winnipeg, Canada; Miss Mooney, of Mooney & Weir, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and M. A. Patten, of Tewksbury, Mass.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report five steamers in port containing nearly 1,000 cases of imperial chinaware, crepe paper pot covers and Easter goods.

Adolph Farenwald addressed the Florists' Club February 1 on "Why Rose Growers Should Join the American Rose Society."

M. Matthews has leaped into a prominent position among this city's gardenia salesmen.

Philadelphia won fresh laurels at the nineteenth annual convention of the American Carnation Society, held at Pittsburg last week. The Joseph Heacock Co., with Dorothy Gordon, and the Stafford Flower Farm, with White Perfection, were prize winners in their respective classes with fine vases of 100 blooms each. The Robert Craig Co. made a non-competitive exhibit of its new white seedling, which Robert A. Craig believes is the best commercial white today. Edward A. Stroud was one of the judges and Robert Craig responded to the address of welcome.

A new vase resembling a wheat sheaf in form, especially adapted for displaying American Beauties, is being offered by the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. It is of brass, twenty-four inches high, sixteen inches wide, with the narrowest part six inches from the top, the idea being to spread the blooms for better display.

Ladies' night will be held at the Florists' Club, February 4, with an attractive program.

Robert Jameson will be resident manager at the new place of the Joseph Heacock Co. at Roelofs Station.

Charles Jefferson, of the West Laurel Hill cemetery, has completed a range of four new houses to be devoted to soft-wooded plants for spring planting in the cemetery.

The Market.

The same dull weather prevailed throughout the last two weeks, and stock still continues to be scarce and the demand excellent. The dull weather seems to have had a great effect on the supply of roses, as there are not nearly enough to go around, while pink roses seem to be scarcer than white. While there is a better supply of carnations, still there is not a sufficient quantity to meet the demand. The supply of bulbous stock, such as Romans, Paper Whites, daffodils and tulips, is good, but none seems to suffer for want of a customer, as was the case last week. There have been a great many deaths, consequently there has been an unusually good demand for funeral flowers. There is a sufficient supply of Formosa lilies at the present time to supply all wants along that line, while with callas there is no more than enough to fill orders.

Business throughout the month of January has been most satisfactory, but stock has been scarce, consequently nothing has been consigned to the ash barrel and prices have kept up fine. The weather in general has not been the best for the florists' business, for a great deal of the necessary sunshine has been denied us.

This week, however, has started out with sunshine, and it is hoped that the sun may make up for lost time, as there are plenty of buds, which by a little coaxing will bring in stock in good supply. Taking into consideration that crops have been unusually limited, the indications are that, beyond a doubt, everything will be in good shape for Easter.

Various Notes.

George W. Bartholomew and wife were the only ones from Dayton to attend the carnation convention at Pittsburg, Pa. They were much taken up with the display in general, and complimented the various committees on their work, especially the entertainment committee, which surely made a most enjoyable time for all. The only drawback was the disagreeable weather they had while there.

Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs left February 2 for New Orleans, La., where she will spend several days and at the same time be present for the Mardi Gras. While there she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ritter will leave February 7 for a visit to Chicago.

H. H. Ritter reports that business is keeping up fine. He has several party decorations booked to come off before the lenten season opens.

Mrs. E. Young had some large funeral orders last week.

The Dayton Floral Co. had a large decoration at the Memorial hall, this week being indoor circus week in Dayton.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

The Market.

Trade is still holding its own here. There has been a great deal of funeral work and this has kept everybody hustling to get enough stock.

Roses have been a little off crop lately and the continued cloudy weather has made stock extremely soft. Everybody is in hopes we will get some bright weather to harden stock up. Carnations are coming in nicely, but the demand more than equals the supply, especially in white, which has been in heavy demand.

Violets are coming finely and the singles are showing up much better than at any time this season, both as to size and stems. Sweet peas are not any too plentiful and the demand is heavy. There is quite a demand for valley at present, with a fair supply. Tulips are beginning to make their appearance, and though the stems are rather short, the blooms are good.

The demand for potted plants has been quite heavy and a nice lot of plants are moved right along. Azaleas, cyclamens and primroses are the favorites at present. There is also a good call for ferns, in which the Boston, Piersoni and Whitmani take the lead. Greens have been a little scarce for the last few weeks, and it is hard to get enough to go the rounds.

McKinley day used up everything in the way of carnations. Although the red were more in demand, as soon as they were sold out people wore anything in the way of a carnation, and it was quite a surprise to the trade, as they were all of the opinion it would be like last year, when the demand was much lighter.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club will give a banquet on Tuesday evening, February 8. The committee on entertainment, consisting of the following members, Jas. McKellar, Wm. Metzmaier, I. D. Seibert, Jake Reichert and Bob Hessenauer, has arranged a nice program for the occasion, in music, singing and card playing. The club will give its next dance Wednesday evening, February 16.

The Munk Floral Co. reports that everything is cleaned up from day to day and it is hard to get enough to go the rounds.

E. Metzmaier says business is fine, but it is hard to get enough stock.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. has been cutting heavily in carnations, but not enough to meet the demand.

Ralph Knight has his houses well on the way to completion. He is growing lettuce in them this winter, but will use them for flowers next season.

There is a new concern starting to put up a good range of glass at Baker's Hill, a few miles below Columbus. Two houses are being erected, each 400 feet long. Mr. Halbrook, lately with the Livingston Seed Co.'s greenhouses, and Mr. Thompson, of the Columbus theater, are at the head of the new concern. The location is ideal for their purpose, as they are on the Valley traction lines and they have the use of both lines, the Lancaster and also the Chillicothe, which branches off below them. They have a half-hour service on these lines.

The Florists' Club dance Tuesday night, January 18, was well attended and everyone had a most enjoyable evening. The next dance will be given February 16. There was some talk of giving a masquerade, but that has been given up.

J. H. Williams is contemplating adding another house this spring, which will give him quite a nice range. J. M.

Plans for the fourth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association, to be held at the State University, February 15 and 16, are progressing in a way that promises the best meeting since the organization of this flourishing society. There are significant reasons why every wideawake florist in Illinois should lend a hand to make this a great meeting. Chief of these reasons is the fact that this convention is to be held at a great educational center, where 4,000 young men and women, under the instruction of a faculty of more than 400 teachers, are gathered to prepare for their life's work, and whence they go out into every nook and corner of the great prairie state and many surrounding states, carrying with them the lessons of culture and inspiration drawn from their collegiate surroundings. Who will say that this is not a supreme opportunity for the Illinois florists to advance the love of flowers and plants? A further reason why the meeting at the seat of the great University of Illinois ought to attract every progressive florist is found in what is being done at the university to advance floriculture.

On the grounds of the university, in the Department of Horticulture, four greenhouses have been built, two of them just now being completed from the appropriation made available by the present general assembly. The securing of the appropriations to do what has been done has cost some members of the association some days and nights away from home and some dollars out of pocket, which none of the officers, past or present, begrudge, if only the florists of the state will avail themselves of its benefits. Within a few days now the complete program will be mailed to the florists over the state, and it is urged by the officers at this time that all members make it their particular business to invite non-members in their home cities and immediate localities to attend the Champaign-Urbana meeting.

It takes an 8-cent stamp to carry the general catalogue of Peter Henderson & Co.

A lot of business is being held up because of the non-arrival of the European seeds.

A subscriber writes to ask where he can obtain seeds of Acacia Riceana. Who has it?

Robert McMillen, the florist and landscape gardener of Greenwich, Conn., has entered the seed business and has been compiling a catalogue, to be issued about February 15.

Articles of incorporation of Poole's Seed & Implement Co., of Tacoma, Wash., have been filed by F. S., F. L., C. A. and C. L. Poole, who are the incorporators and trustees. The capital stock is $25,000.

The Schisler Seed Co., St. Louis, has been incorporated, with $20,000 authorized capital stock, half paid in. The shareholders are: C. W. Koenig, 100 shares; Arthur W. Schisler, Jacob Schisler, N. Kaercher and Wm. C. Essmueller, 25 shares each.

The new building of the Peter Henderson Co., New York, is fast approaching completion. Already the offices on the second floor are occupied. The marble front will soon be finished, and in room and conveniences the whole building will be unexcelled in the seed trade in this country.

The National Sweet Pea Society of America has issued a preliminary list of prizes offered for the society's annual exhibition, which will be held sometime in July, the exact date and place to be announced later. Copies of this list may be obtained by addressing Harry A. Bunyard, secretary, 342 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, have issued "Sweet Peas Up-to-date," compiled by George W. Kerr, a well-known English sweet pea specialist who recently was added to the staff at Fordhook. The book of eighty pages contains cultural suggestions, descriptive lists of varieties by classes, and Burpee's selections of the best sorts for various purposes.

HENRY A. DREER 714 Chestnut St, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Mention The Review when you write.

Henderson & Co. for several seasons and was a young man of splendid character and generally esteemed.

The market gardeners' demand from the southwest continues to show rapid increase.

It is so generally well known that peas are scarce that those who need peas, even in small quantities, are ordering earlier than usual, and this helps to bring in orders for other items earlier than ordinary.

Visited Chicago: John Bodger, Jr., of Gardena, Cal., and W. J. Fosgate, of Santa Clara, Cal., returning from the east, both reporting extremely satisfactory trade; A. Lehman, manager of the Lompoc Produce Co., Lompoc, Cal., en route for the east and a European trip; W. H. Barrett, Adrian, Mich.; Alex Matthews, representing the Peninsular Seed Co., Port Huron, Mich.

The papers of Philadelphia and vicinity recorded the death, January 25, of Alfred Landreth, a member of the family of Landreths identified with the seed business since 1784. This Mr. Landreth, while a grandson of the founder, was not connected with the seed business, as he was always in possession of sufficient income to live a life of leisure. He served in the Union army during the War of the Rebellion and was 75 years of age. He was noted for his gentleness and affability and possessed the affection of everyone.

OPAQUE POCKETS MAILABLE.

Some time ago the post-office department made a ruling that seed packets must be transparent, so that it would be possible to tell whether or not any written matter was enclosed in the packet. We now are informed that the department has granted an extension of time up to July 1, 1910, on this ruling, thus permitting seedsmen to make use of stock on hand.

This will be welcome news to the trade and it is hoped that before another season the post-office department will change its ruling in such a way that it will not interfere with the future mailing of seeds put up in the ordinary way. There have been no complaints of seed dealers taking advantage of this privilege by sending out first-class mail in seed packets. There is, therefore, no legitimate reason for making a special ruling against the opaque sealed packets.

ANOTHER PURE SEED BILL.

The State of Maryland is to have a pure seed law, if the efforts of Representative Collier, of Talbot county, bear fruit. Mr. Collier is drafting the bill. No penalty will be provided for seedsmen furnishing poor seeds, but a deterrent will be provided in publicity of reports on various samples. "The bill will have a moral effect," said Mr. Collier. "Samples will be taken and the results will be published periodically in a bulletin, and this, we believe, will keep the seedsmen up to the mark and their goods up to a high standard. We do not wish to impose any hardship on the seedsmen, but we do wish to protect the farmer."

The Review sends Smith's Mum Manual on receipt of 40 cents.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business held fairly good during last week, January 29 seeing supplies well cleaned up. The present week opens with a steady trade and values in most cases well maintained. Roses, owing to the warmer and generally clear weather, have been more abundant, except in the case of American Beauties, which are off crop, and long-stemmed flowers are specially short. Carnations appear to be shortening up and prices have shown a harden-

NOVELTIES FOR 1910

ASTER, AURORA. The most unique colored Aster ever introduced. Yellow, passing to old rose. The flower-petals first appearing are shaped similar to those of the "Comet" type and are a perfect yellow, but when the flower is fully expanded it takes on a tint of delicate fresh rose, which the artist calls "old rose." The plant grows fully 24 inches high in a pyramid form and produces any quantity of double blooms 3½ inches across. Pkt., 35 cts.

ASTER, CACTUS CELESTINE. A new form of petal, resembling exactly a true Cactus Dahlia. The color is a most delicate lilac of unusual beauty. Pkt., 20 cts.

ASTER, CROWN OF GOLD. A pure, delicate yellow flower, of good size and borne on stout stems, resembling in shape the Victoria Aster. Its color is original and did not exist heretofore. Pkt., 20 cts.

ASTER, RAWSON'S NEW GLORY.

(Introduced by us in 1909.)

The most perfected type of Giant Comet that can possibly be produced. The flowers invariably measure 6 inches across and are always double. In our whole field last year we could not discover a single plant which showed the least sign of disease. The long stems are graceful and not stiff. Colors are distinct and most desirable for commercial use.

Delicate Lavender	.60	1.00	3.50
Shrimp Pink	.60	1.00	3.50
Finest Mixed	.50	.80	3.00

ASTER, TRIUMPH OF PARIS. The nearest approach to a yellow aster. The form is a single comet with a quilled center. The petals consist of two rows of glistening white, while the quills are a clear yellow. Stems range 2 feet in height and produce the giant blooms singly. A grand aster for the florist. ⅛ oz., $1.00.

THE CREGO ASTER. This aster is the nearest approach to a chrysanthemum of any flower grown. It is unusually large in size, running 4 to 5 inches in diameter when well grown. The petals are about double the length of those in the older varieties, and are twisted and curled in such a manner as to give the blossoms an exceedingly beautiful fluffy appearance. The plants are large and vigorous, producing their blossoms on very long stems. The central stalk is very short, the branches breaking out very near the ground, are generally clean their entire length, needing little or no disbudding, making it the easiest variety to prepare for market I have ever seen. Our seed is direct from the originator.

	Shell Pink. (Exact shade of Enchantress Carnation)	1.00	3.50	6.00
	Dark Pink	1.00	3.50	6.00

ASTER, RAWSON'S PINK BEAUTY. Unquestionably a grand and valuable florist aster and mainly so on account of its color and massive flower. The form of flower is a perfected Victoria which never shows a center. The color is so intensely beautiful that a graphic description can never do it justice. Delicate peach-tinted pink with a glowing shade of rich pink towards the center. No other aster can boast of such a pleasing combination. The stem of this flower is fairly tall and very erect. The plant branches from the bottom. ⅛ oz., 60 cts.; oz., $4.00.

NOVELTIES FOR 1910—Continued

ASTER, GEISHA. This strain originated in Japan and this can easily be seen in the formation of the flower. We were so much impressed with the attention the visitors to Rawson's Dahlia Farm paid to this fantastic type that we were actually forced to catalogue it and now believe it has a great future. The plant is extremely robust and produces stout stems growing very erect and carrying their gigantic flower formed of fine needle-shaped tubed petals around a conspicuous central disc. The very open center of this flower has an immense charm which appeals to the public, and as we must first of all please them, this is a point in its favor.

STANDARD VARIETIES

DAWN OF DAY

(Novelty, 1908.) The earliest flowering Aster in existence. Fine white, perfect in form and growth, long branching stems and flowers; often three weeks ahead of Queen of the Market. It is of branching habit and very full and if freely cut will continue to bear blooms until late in fall. See last week's Review, page 8. ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

RAWSON'S NEW MIDSUMMER ASTER.

This is our own introduction. We have received high praise from all growers. It has most graceful formed flowers, which are borne on immense long stems full two weeks ahead of the Late Branching Aster, and the plants will continue to bear flowers as late.

The colors are true and hardly any open-centered flowers among them.

Delicate Shell Pink	.60	2.00	Bright Rose	.60	2.00
Royal Purple	.60	2.00	Finest Mixed	.50	1.50

RAWSON'S DAYBREAK. This variety must not be compared with the strain offered elsewhere and a trial will convince the ever-so-critical of its superiority. ⅛ oz., 40c; oz., $2.50.

RAWSON'S PURITY. (Pure white.) Of the same type as Daybreak, differing only in color, which is a pure glistening white. Just as free-flowering and symmetrical as Daybreak and undoubtedly unsurpassed as a white bedding variety. ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

ASTER, RAWSON'S LATE BRANCHING. Flowers are very large in size and borne on long, stiff stems. It is one of the best and most popular varieties for late flower markets.

TWO NEW SALVIAS FOR 1910

ZURICH. The best salvia yet introduced. Plants grow very compact, show little foliage and bear heavy flower spikes, which are thickly laden with bright scarlet flowers. Flowers early in July and remains in bloom with later varieties, ⅛ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00.

SALVIA SPLENDENS. KING OF CARPETS. The best dwarf bedding Salvia on the market today, outrivaling even "Zurich." The plants branch from the bottom and to such extent that the main stem is never visible. All side branches droop completely to the ground, making the whole plant a perfect half ball of fire. The plant grows but 15 inches high and flowers even earlier than "Zurich." ⅛ oz., $1.00; oz., $6.00.

The veteran Salvia grower, Mr. F. Bedman, says: "About the Salvia, 'King of Carpets.' It has done very well considering the dry weather that we have had, and I consider it one of the grandest dwarf salvias that I ever saw."

ing tendency, the prices varying from $3 to $5 per hundred, only poor flowers selling below the former figure. Violets are increasing in numbers, and singles are of exceptional excellence. Bulbous stock is much more plentiful and prices on tulips and narcissi have declined. Quite a few poeticus ornatus are now coming in. Romans and Paper Whites are still plentiful.

There is no great surplus of lilies and callas, but lily of the valley is in heavier supply and moving more slowly. Some good mignonette is seen, fancy spikes bringing $1 per dozen. Antirrhinums are also coming of much better quality. Stevia is now practically finished. Freesia is quite plentiful, the variety Purity being much the best and selling up to 6 cents to 8 cents per stalk. Cattleya Trianæ averages $6 per dozen and is in good supply and demand. There is a steady demand for asparagus and adiantum.

Club Notes.

The annual banquet of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at Horticultural hall, January 27, was a grand success, 200 members and ladies being present. Shooshan catered in first-class style. The tables, chandeliers and stage were beautifully decorated with roses, carnations, freesias, antirrhinums, orchids and other cut flowers, while numerous palms and flowering plants were used. Southern smilax was freely used on the chandeliers. At the close of the banquet short addresses were made by Vice-President P. M. Miller, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, ex-President William Downs, E. H. Wilson and E. O. Orpet. W. J. Stewart made an efficient toastmaster. Scotch dances by Miss Nellie Ferguson, solos by George Collins and readings by Miss Chaffee were well rendered and vigorously encored.

Dancing commenced at 10 o'clock and continued until after midnight. Nearly everyone present joined in the grand march, and the entire evening was one of unalloyed pleasure, and without question the most successful and enjoyable the club has yet held. Great credit is due the committee having the affair in charge, who worked hard and were well rewarded for their pains. Many regrets were expressed at President Duncan's absence, owing to sickness in his family. Ex-President Pettigrew was also away, owing to indisposition. A message of good cheer and a handsome box of flowers were voted to genial Treasurer Hatch, who is seriously ill. A telegram of congratulation was sent to Pittsburg to the carnation convention, in annual banquet assembled the same evening. The news of the carnation convention coming to Boston in 1911 and E. A. Peirce's election to the vice-presidency was received with enthusiasm.

At the club meeting February 15, S. J. Goddard will read a paper on "Carnations." This being carnation night, there will be a big display of new and standard varieties, and a rousing attendance is a certainty. Those from a distance desiring to exhibit novelties should address them to W. N. Craig, Horticultural hall, Boston (for Gardeners' and Florists' Club), so that they will arrive Tuesday, February 15.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The full schedule for the big orchid exhibition in Boston, opening May 26, is now ready and may be had on application to W. P. Rich, Horticultural hall, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston. Additional classes added since the preliminary schedule are as follows: Group of botanical orchids, not less than twenty-five plants and fifteen genera, silver medal and $25, bronze medal and $15; six orchids, distinct genera, silver medal and $50, bronze medal and $25. For three orchid plants, distinct genera; three cattleyas, distinct species; three lælias, distinct species; three lælio-cattleyas or brasso-cattleyas, distinct; six miltonias; six odontoglossums, not less than three species; three orchids, bigeneric hybrids, other than lælio-cattleyas or brasso-cattleyas; and three orchids, distinct genera, not otherwise provided for, first prizes of a silver medal and $25 and second prizes of a bronze medal and $15 are provided. For three cypripediums, distinct species, a silver medal and $15 and bronze medal and $15 are provided. For single specimen plants of cattleya, cymbidium, cypripedium, dendrobium, lælia, miltonia, odontoglossum, oncidium, saccolabium or ærides, sobralia, vanda, bigeneric hybrid, other than lælio-cattleya and brasso-cattleya, and any other genera not provided for in schedule, prizes of a silver medal and bronze medal will be given. A gold medal is also offered for the best specimen orchid plant in the exhibition.

There promises to be a keen contest for the 400-foot group of orchids; in this class prizes offered are $1,000, $500 and $250, in addition to gold, silver and bronze medals. There are also several other big classes with valuable prizes. Exhibits are already promised from Belgium and Great Britain, in addition to the United States.

hall is scheduled for February 26 to 28. It promises to be an impressive one, rivaling the annual spring show in extent and interest. There are quite a number of valuable inducements for commercial growers in the carnation, rose, sweet pea and other classes, and a number of silver medals are included.

Various Notes.

The promise of the carnation convention and rose convention for Boston in 1911, in conjunction with the national show, will help to make the coming national show a memorable one. Some carnationists may object to the late date, but all will probably be willing to fall in line with President Pierson's wishes for a big joint meeting.

E. J. Rogean is handling extra fine lily of the valley from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., at Park Street Market.

N. F. Comley likes White Enchantress so well he says he will plant 30,000 of it next season.

John Beaton, of the R. & J. Farquhar & Co. staff, is seriously ill at his home with inflammatory rheumatism. He was taken sick while making a business trip in New York state in the interests of his firm.

Mann Bros., Tailby & Son, E. Sutermeister Estate and Paine Bros. are handling extra fine lots of bulbous stock at present.

Peirce Bros. are selling large quantities of well grown cyclamen, also azaleas extra well flowered.

Lemoine Bros., of South Framingham, have a fine house of sweet peas in full crop. Their carnations are also doing extra well.

Forcing Gladiolus

Many florists plant these in boxes, or among their carnations, in the winter. They are excellent for decorative purposes and realize good prices, either wholesale or retail. Gladioli are a good catch crop and take up but little room. The following are the best for this purpose.

Gladiolus Gandavensis Hybrids

America. The flowers, which are of immense size, are of the most beautiful flesh-pink color. $3.25 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

May. Pure white, flaked rosy crimson; the best forcer. Selected bulbs, $1.75 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

Brenchleyensis (true). Fiery scarlet. Selected bulbs, $1.50 per 100; $13.00 per 1000. First size bulbs, $1.25 per 100; $10.00 per 1000.

Shakespeare. White and rose. $4.75 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

Boddington's White and Light. Extra selected bulbs. 1¾ in. and up. $1.50 per 100; $14.00 per 1000.

Bulbs, 1½ to 1¾ in., $1.25 per 100; $10.00 per 1000.

American Hybrids. A mixture of the choicest varieties of Gladioli in cultivation. $1.00 per 100; $9.00 per 1000.

"NOT HOW CHEAP— BUT HOW GOOD"

Horseshoe Brand Products

If you are working for a man, work for him with all your might; believe in him; and stick to him through thick and thin. An ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. Get your happiness from your work, for without work you could not be happy. Be patient and persevere and success will surely come. In growing bulbous stock the same principle applies. Be loyal to your business and business associates. Every business is a good business, but how good depends upon the man. In the Bulb business the man must buy the best the market affords; grow them well; keep them free from aphis and other parasites; and work with all his might. Such a man will succeed.

We are direct importers of large quantities of good Bulbs and Roots, many Plants, some Nursery Stock and other odds and ends, such as Bamboo Canes, Orchids, Cycas, etc., etc.

COLEUS FOR NAMES.

We are sending you under separate cover some coleus labeled by numbers. Kindly give us the names of the varieties, by number. W. E.

The leaves were about all black on arrival and identification was impossible. There are so many seedling coleus on the market, unnamed and quite generally cultivated, that it is virtually out of the question to name them, and I regret my inability to do so in this case.

MILLEPEDS.

I am mailing you a package containing some small worms, which I find in my soil and under the flower pots. I should like to be informed whether they are harmful to the plants and what they are called. I have fumigated with Nico-fume paper. I wonder whether this will kill them, for I have found a quantity of them on the surface of the soil since, as though they were dead. G. H. R.

These are millepeds, commonly known as thousand-legs. They are not particularly harmful to plants. You can get rid of them by spraying them with a strong nicotine solution, or covering with tobacco dust. Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas and nicotine will kill any on the surface of the soil. Those in the soil can be easily destroyed by boring holes in the soil a foot apart each way and dropping a little carbon bisulphide in each. Immediately cover the holes after dropping in the carbon. The fumes are penetrating. This will explode if a naked light should be placed near it, so handle it carefully. It kills all larvæ and worms in the soil. C. W.

Dayton, O.—M. D. Schmidt & Son state that they have received many compliments on their seedling mums, but have decided to grow them another season before dissemination.

St. Patrick's Carnation Fluid

Directions for Use.

To get the best results put the stems of flowers in about 2 inches of fluid, leaving them there about 30 minutes. After taking them out of fluid put them right in water for about two hours, which has a tendency of forcing the fluid up to the bloom and making that pretty shade of green.

FUMIGATING N COLD WEATHER

I have read with interest the paper by Prof. Jarvis on "The Value of Insecticides," in the REVIEW of November 25, 1909, but there is one thing I should like to know: How do you get rid of the hydrocyanic acid gas in cold weather, when the heating pipes are working in full force and the ventilators are closed?

L. G. G.

The gas will not be strong enough to be dangerous in the morning, after using it in the house in the evening. It is well to open the ventilators for a few minutes before staying in the house to work. The odor will be noticeable, however, all that day. Sometimes I do not open the ventilators at all to air the house, if it is an extremely cold or windy morning.

We fumigate at about 5:30 p. m., and the night man goes into the houses at daylight for the first time. H. G.

CLOTH-COVERED FRAMES.

Please tell me what you think of the plant protecting cloth for growing early cabbage plants here in Ohio, starting them in the greenhouse and transplanting into the beds about March 20. Would it improve the cloth any to oil it, in order to turn the water? H. D. H.

My experience with cloth-covered frames has been entirely unsatisfactory. I used muslin-covered frames and oiled most of them. I think they are a nuisance. Besides, considering the cost of new cloth and the labor of putting it on each year, I believe they are more expensive in time than glass sashes, and I would not trade a glazed sash for a dozen of the cloth covers. My advice would be to use glass sashes, even if you have to cut down the number. You will be better satisfied and have better results. Farther south, cloth is used quite extensively, but even there they are unsatisfactory in most cases, for many reasons. H. G.

EFFECT OF GAS ON MUSHROOMS.

Please inform me if fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas can be safely undertaken when there is a fine crop of mushrooms under the center bench. If I cover the mushroom bed well with paper will it be safe to eat the mushrooms after fumigation? J. D.
